CABINET SECRETARY CALLS FOR OVERHAUL OF DATA PRACTICES

Centre puts ministries, states on DPDP compliance clock

PRASANTA SAHU
New Delhi, August 26

THE CENTRE HAS begun pushing its own ministries, departments and state governments towards compliance with the Digital Personal Data Protection (DPDP) Act, asking them to appoint senior officials, set implementation timelines and overhaul how they collect, process and protect citizens' personal data.

In a letter to secretaries of the Government of India and chief secretaries of states and Union Territories dated August 20, Cabinet Secretary TV Somanathan has asked government bodies to prepare phased implementation plans with clearly defined responsibilities and timelines. Progress is to be reviewed periodically by the secretary or chief secretary concerned, putting responsibility for implementation directly with the administrative leadership of each ministry and state.

ONUS ON ADMINISTRATION

■ Cabinet Secretary TV Somanathan has written to Gol secretaries and chief secretaries of states and Union Territories to ensure timely implementation of Digital Personal Data Protection (DPDP) Act

■ Each ministry, department and state must designate a senior officer to oversee DPDP implementation and a nodal officer to coordinate with MeitY

■ Govt bodies must prepare phased implementation plans with defined responsibilities and timelines; review progress periodically

■ They must identify personal-data processing activities and prepare appropriate data inventories

■ Privacy notices, consent mechanisms, wherever applicable, and grievance-redressal arrangements must be reviewed

■ Capacity-building and sensitisation of officers responsible for implementing the Act must be undertaken

Somanathan has also asked each ministry, department and state to designate a senior officer to oversee implementation and nominate a nodal officer to coordinate with the Ministry of Electronics and Information Technology (MeitY), the nodal ministry for the law. "A senior officer is designated to oversee implementation of the Act" and "a nodal officer is nominated for coordination with the Ministry of Electronics and Information Technology", he said in the letter. The exercise will require government organisations to first establish how and where they process personal data. The Cabinet Secretary has called for identification of personal-data processing activities and preparation of appropriate data inventories, along with a review of privacy notices, consent mechanisms wherever applicable and grievance-redressal arrangements. They will also have to strengthen technical and organisational safeguards and review contractual arrangements with third-party vendors and data processors.

JSW MG, SAIC discuss fresh capital

AKBAR MERCHANT
Mumbai, August 26

JSW MG MOTOR India is discussing a fresh round of capital with Chinese partner SAIC to expand production beyond the 220,000-unit capacity already planned at its Halol plant, as strong demand for its vehicles leaves the company looking to scale faster. The current expansion is being funded through a mix of debt and equity, with JSW's original equity investment sufficient for the present phase, but both shareholders are now discussing funding for the next

Parth Jindal, director, JSW MG Motor India, said. JSW MG is currently investing ₹3,500 crore in its operations, while vendors are putting in another ₹2,500 crore, taking the investment linked to the expansion to about ₹6,000 crore. Capacity at Halol is being raised from 110,000 units currently to 160,000 units by March and 220,000 units by January 2028. The existing facility can eventually be expanded to around 400,000 units, Jindal said, adding that the company does not see the need for a new plant for the next three to four years. It will reconsider a new location once production crosses 250,000 units.

Venu's Tata Sons board slot may face scrutiny

● Trustees likely to revisit his term once SRTT meets

URVI MALVANIA
Mumbai, August 26

VENU SRINIVASAN'S POSITION as a Tata Trusts nominee director on the Tata Sons board could come under fresh scrutiny once the meeting freeze on the Sir Ratan Tata Trust (SRTT) is lifted, allowing the trusts to formally consider pending agenda items, people familiar with the matter said.

Srinivasan's continuation on the Tata Sons board was among the issues slated for discussion at a Tata Trusts meeting scheduled for May 16. The meeting was indefinitely deferred after the Maharashtra Charity Commissioner directed SRTT not to convene meetings pending an inquiry into the composition of its board.

The issue had surfaced after Srinivasan publicly spoke in favour of listing Tata Sons, despite having been party to a unanimous decision of the Tata Trusts board against the proposal, people aware of the

Srinivasan's representation to the Charity Commissioner over the composition of the SRTT board has since added another dimension to the issue. In his May 15 order, Charity Commissioner Amogh S Kaloti recorded that Srinivasan had filed a complaint similar to an earlier representation by advocate Katyayani Agrawal, raising questions over the number of perpetual trustees on the SRTT board. The commissioner said the issues raised in the representations were serious and required consideration.

Nestle sees India entering global top five markets

ASHUTOSH MISHRA
New Delhi, August 26

INDIA'S EMERGENCE as one of Nestle SA's five largest markets globally is now within sight, with the Swiss food and beverage major expecting the country to sustain above-group-average growth and attract higher investments, CEO Philipp Navratil said on Wednesday. India is already among Nestle's top 10 markets by revenue contribution and was the group's highest-performing market in the first half of 2026, with the company now seeing a near-term opportunity to move into the top five. "Top five is definitely on the horizon. It is not something that will happen 20 years down the road," Navratil said at a select media roundtable during his India visit. He added that the company expects growth to be led by volumes and supported by investments.

India's strong growth is also prompting Nestle to increase its focus on the market as one of its key growth priorities globally. "As India grows above the group average, the investment will also be above the group average in this country," Navratil said, without specifying the amount of additional investment. Nestle had announced a ₹5,000-crore investment programme for India in 2022.

Navratil said India's scale, expanding consumer base, urbanisation and the movement of consumers into the middle class provide a combination of factors that makes the market particularly attractive. Its extensive distribution network also allows the company to reach consumers across the country, he said.

FM pitches GIFT City, fintech bets in Canada

FE BUREAU
New Delhi, August 26

WOONG INVESTORS IN Toronto, Finance Minister Nirmla Sitharaman pitched opportunities for Canadian banks, fintech firms and institutional investors in India, spanning digital payments, GIFT City, insurance, asset management and pensions. Sitharaman said India's real GDP growth was 7.6% in 2025-26, while rapid urbanisation, a growing middle class, and expanding consumption were creating opportunities across the economy.

For Canadian investors with a long-term horizon, India offered a combination of "scale, sustained growth, a young population, expanding consumption, and rapidly deepening capital markets," she said.

Sitharaman noted that Canadian pension funds have invested more than C$100 billion (around $72.02 billion) in India across infrastructure, logistics, renewable energy and financial services, reflecting confidence in India's long-term growth. "With 100% FDI now permitted in insurance and India's leadership in Fin-Tech at scale, opportunities for capital are expanding rapidly," she said.

LEGAL SETTLEMENT CALLS FOR TIGHTER YOUTH SAFEGUARDS, AGE CHECKS AND INDEPENDENT OVERSIGHT

Meta agrees to pay up to $16.7 billion in social media case

MADLIN MEKELBURG
August 26

META PLATFORMS HAS agreed to pay up to $16.7 billion to settle a landmark social media case with multiple US states, according to a court filing Wednesday.

The deal requires the company to put new guardrails on its platforms such as Facebook and Instagram, including restricting how much time youths can scroll and preventing them from switching off certain safety settings without parental consent. A judge needs to sign off on the agreement.

In the filing, Meta denies

STRONGER GUARDRAILS

■ Attorneys from 29 US states had sought massive penalties and sweeping changes to how Meta operates Facebook and Instagram

■ The settlement deal requires Facebook and Instagram to restrict teen scrolling time the allegations against it. The states had alleged violations of state consumer protection and federal privacy laws — which carry fines that add up quickly when multiplied by millions of young Instagram and Facebook users.

"This Agreement is entered into for settlement purposes only and does not constitute an admission by Meta of any liability, wrongdoing, or violation of any local, state, federal, or international law," according to the filing.

Meta didn't immediately respond to a request for comment.

The accord comes in the

■ Platforms must prevent users from disabling certain safety settings without parental consent

■ Meta will strengthen age verification and limit features such as like counts and beauty filters for teens

■ An independent auditor will monitor Meta's compliance and report findings to the states

■ Meta denies the allegations and says the settlement does not constitute an admission of liability or violations second week of a jury trial in federal court in Oakland, California, that posed enormous risk for Meta. The top legal officers of 29 states were seeking not only massive financial penalties on behalf of the public, but also court orders that could force the company to change how it operates its platforms.

Bloomberg reported late Tuesday that the parties had discussed a possible mid-trial settlement.

Meta shares were down about 0.8% at 9:46 AM in New York after rising as much as 4.1% after trading opened.

The planned settlement also includes the appointment of an independent auditor to oversee compliance, who can issue their own recommendations and report findings to the states.

The agreement would also require Meta to enhance its age verification tools to better identify young users on the app. Access to features like viewing the number of likes on a post or beauty filters would be restricted for teens.

"Meta has agreed to make massive transformations that will reduce the risk of harm from its platforms — and will do it within months," California Attorney General Rob Bonta said in a statement.

JAPANESE FIRMS INVEST OVER ₹1 LAKH CRORE IN INDIA IN 10 MONTHS

Japan may meet ₹7-L crore India pledge in 4 yrs: Goyal

MUKESH JAGOTA
New Delhi, August 26

JAPANESE FIRMS HAVE pumped over ₹1 lakh crore into India in just 10 months, fulfilling nearly 15% of Tokyo's 10-year, 10-trillion-yen investment pledge announced in 2025, Commerce Minister Piyush Goyal said on Wednesday.

Speaking to reporters in Tokyo, Goyal expressed confidence that, at the current pace, the entire ₹7 lakh crore (10 trillion yen) commitment will be realised within three to four years, well ahead of its decade-long target.

"Last time, Japan set a target of investing 5 trillion yen in India over 10 years and achieved it within five years," Goyal noted, adding that the rapid capital deployment prompted the doubled target set in 2025.

Prime Minister Narendra Modi has set an ambitious goal of doubling the footprint of Japanese enterprises operating in India from 1,500 to 3,000. Goyal urged Japanese firms to expand beyond traditional sectors into manufacturing, financial services, insurance and pension funds to leverage India's scale alongside Japanese precision engineering.

The other proposal focused on Manufacturing and Technology Integration, combining India's scale, engineering talent and entrepreneurial dynamism with Japan's precision engineering, technology and manufacturing capabilities.

He also stressed the need to set up Joint Startup Pitching Platforms to facilitate regular interactions among Indian founders, Japanese corporations, venture funds and strategic investors.

Sugar prices rise to ₹65/kg in retail market

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA
New Delhi, August 26

SUGAR PRICES ROSE for the second day in a row on Wednesday by over ₹1 per kg in the retail market due to an uptick in festive demand, according to government data. Retail prices of the sweetener continue to be high despite a nearly 20% decline in ex-mill rates after the government's decision to allow imports of 1 million tonne of raw sugar.

As per the data compiled by the Department of Consumer Affairs (Price Monitoring Division), the all-India average rate of sugar is ₹65.05 per kg on August 26 as against ₹63.97 per kg on Tuesday.

The current average price of sugar is 34% higher from ₹48.68 per kg a month back, while the rate is 41% more than the year-ago level, when sugar was available at ₹46.27 per kg. The data showed that the maximum selling price on Wednesday was ₹76 per kg, while the modal rate was ₹65 per kg. The wholesale price of sugar also rose marginally to ₹60.36 per kg.

Separate filings mandatory for foreign firms, says govt

MANU KAUSHIK
New Delhi, August 26

THE GOVERNMENT HAS clarified that there is currently no automatic data-sharing mechanism between the Ministry of Corporate Affairs (MCA) and the Reserve Bank of India (RBI) for the registration of foreign companies. In a frequently asked questions (FAQ) document on the registration of foreign companies and subsidiaries of foreign bodies corporate, the MCA said the documentation requirements of the two regulators are different.

RBI approval, therefore, does not replace separate MCA filings and documentation. The clarification comes as foreign companies operating in India are required to comply with both the Companies Act and foreign exchange regulations.

The ministry said the National Single Window System (NSWS) can help foreign companies identify the approvals they need, but it does not replace MCA filings or approvals from sectoral regulators. Foreign companies must continue to file Form FC-1 along with the necessary regulatory approvals, including those required from the RBI under the Foreign Exchange Management Act (FEMA).

The MCA has also clarified that a foreign company can operate outside the exclusive categories of branch office (BO), liaison office (LO) or project office (PO) under the Foreign Exchange Management Act

REGULATORY CLARITY

■ No auto-sharing: MCA says RBI approvals do not automatically flow into MCA registration filings

■ Foreign entities must file Form FC-1 with required regulatory approvals, including under FEMA

■ The National Single Window System can flag approvals but does not replace MCA or sectoral filings

■ Foreign companies need a resident representative for legal notices, not necessarily an Indian director.

■ An India-incorporated firm remains an Indian company even if wholly owned or acquired by a foreign entity (FEMA). If a foreign company's presence in India falls outside these categories, the Registrar of Companies (RoC) may seek clarification on the nature of the establishment, it said.

Typically, a foreign company establishing a physical presence in India without incorporating an Indian subsidiary uses one of these FEMA structures. However, a large majority—estimated at 85-90%—of foreign companies still prefer to establish a separate Indian subsidiary. Such a structure provides greater operational flexibility, permits manufacturing activities and can offer access to lower domestic tax rates.

"A foreign company under the Companies Act is not required to fall exclusively into BO/LO/PO categories under FEMA, though most do," the MCA said in the document.

The ministry has further clarified that a foreign company does not need to appoint an Indian director. It must instead appoint one or more persons resident in India who can receive legal notices and other official communications. An Indian-incorporated company, however, must have at least one director who is resident in India, irrespective of the person's citizenship. "The law requires an authorised representative resident in India, not necessarily an Indian citizen or director," it said.

The MCA said that an Indian company does not become a "foreign company" simply because it is wholly owned by an overseas entity. A foreign entity that incorporates a subsidiary in India creates an Indian company, rather than a foreign company under Section 2(42) of the Companies Act.

Danish firms target larger role in India's naval shipbuilding

SAURAV ANAND
New Delhi, August 26

DANISH COMPANIES ARE eyeing a greater role in India's naval shipbuilding and maritime security ecosystem, as New Delhi steps up investments in naval capabilities and Denmark looks to expand cooperation in shipbuilding, naval systems and maritime technology.

"Security and defence, including on the naval side, will form a more integral part of the partnership," Denmark's Ambassador to India Rasmus Abildgaard Kristensen said during an interaction with reporters. The two countries recently held their first maritime security dialogue in Copenhagen, involving representatives from India's Ministry of External Affairs, the Indian Navy and Denmark's defence establishment.

Danish companies are already supplying equipment to the Indian Navy. Kristensen said Denmark has strong capabilities in radar and other naval sys-

MARITIME EXPANSION

■ Denmark sees scope for deeper naval shipbuilding & maritime-security cooperation

■ Danish firm Terma already supplies about 60% of India's coastal warning radars tems, with Terma accounting for around 60% of India's coastal warning radars. The opportunity could widen as India expands its naval capabilities and the two sides move cooperation into more "trust-based" areas.

A Denmark-India feasibility study is also examining opportunities in naval and commercial shipbuilding, while Denmark is looking to facilitate engagement between its defence firms and Indian naval stakeholders.

Kristensen said Denmark's experience with modular naval vessels and the greater use of civilian or dual-use components could also be relevant for India. Using more civilian components in naval vessels can bring costs down because of economies of scale and make spare parts easier to source.

The envoy pointed to Denmark's modular approach to frigates, where equipment can be changed depending on the vessel's requirements. "This kind of modular thinking brings down the cost and gives more functionality to the navy," he said. The push comes alongside growing commercial shipbuilding cooperation. Shipowners have already commissioned around 10 vessels in India, totalling about 40,000 tonne, and more orders are expected as firms look to diversify.

Hormuz crisis adds $22.5 bn to fossil-fuel import bill

SAURAV ANAND
New Delhi, August 26

INDIA PAID AN additional $22.5 billion for fossil-fuel imports between March and August 2026 as the Hormuz crisis drove up oil and gas prices, making it the second-most affected importing country globally after China and adding a fresh burden to the country's energy import costs.

China faced the highest additional cost at $35.5 billion, followed by India at $22.5 billion and the US at $16.5 billion. The Netherlands paid an extra $13.5 billion, South Korea $13.2 billion, Italy $12.7 billion and Japan $12 billion.

Crude oil alone accounted for $164 billion of the additional global cost, with prices averaging a 35% premium over pre-conflict market expectations. Refined fuels saw even sharper increases. Diesel and gasoline prices were 59% higher, adding $74 billion, while gasoline prices rose 43%, adding another $36 billion.

SOARING COST

Additional fossil fuel import cost ($ bn)

Source: CREA

Six months after the Hormuz crisis began on February 28, disruptions to global shipping and energy markets have added more than $330 billion to fossil-fuel import bills, equivalent to around $55 billion a month, the Centre for Research on Energy and Clean Air (CREA) said in a report. It termed this the largest sustained fossil-fuel price shock since the 1990 Gulf

War. The estimate compares what importing countries actually paid for seaborne crude, fuels and gas with what markets had expected before the conflict. Importantly, it excludes higher freight charges and war-risk insurance, along with pipeline gas, coal, fuel oil and naphtha, meaning these costs are not captured in the headline estimate.

SAURAV ANAND
New Delhi, August 26

INDIA'S LANDED COSTS for lithium iron phosphate (LFP) battery cells and containers were 13-23% higher than China's after-tax prices in July, as freight, duties and other import-related expenses added to costs amid a rapid expansion in grid-scale energy storage.

Landed LFP cell prices in India stood at $62-67 per kWh (about ₹5,944-6,423 per kWh) in July, compared with about $54.5 per kWh (around ₹5,209 per kWh) in China. This meant an additional cost of $7-12 per kWh (approximately ₹671-1,150 per kWh) for Indian buyers.

According to a report by JMK Research & Analytics and IEEFA, a similar price differential was seen for assembled AC containers. The report attributed the gap to freight, duties and other import-related costs, and said local cell and pack manufacturing would help developers "avoid this import surcharge and reduce their reliance on Chinese supply."

IMPORT PREMIUM

■ India's landed LFP cell prices were 13%-23% above China's after-tax prices in July, adding $7-$12 per kWh in import costs

■ 314Ah LFP cell prices in China fell 1.4% in July to $54.5 per kWh, helped by lower lithium carbonate prices and ample supply

■ India commissioned about 8,236 MWh of BESS capacity in April-July FY27, alongside 250 MW of pumped hydro storage

The price differential emerged even as battery-cell prices softened in China. Average prices of 314Ah LFP cells, widely used in utility-scale battery energy storage systems (BESS), fell 1.4% month-on-month in July to CNY0.370 per Wh, or about $54.5 per kWh.

The decline was aided by a 10.7% month-on-month fall in lithium carbonate prices,

■ Domestic downstream capacity reached 6.35 GWh in July, led by Waaree ESS and Midwest Energy, but commercial cell manufacturing remains limited

■ The government has tendered the remaining 10 GWh of ACC capacity for grid storage, requiring 25% local value-add in two years and 40% in five expectations of additional supply following the restart of Chinese battery maker CATL's Jianxiawo mine, ample availability of 314Ah cells and stronger bargaining power among buyers.

Prices of integrated two-hour liquid-cooled AC containers, however, remained unchanged at $85.7 per kWh (about ₹8,216 per kWh). The roughly $30-per-kWh difference between an LFP cell and an assembled container reflects the additional equipment and services required for grid-scale deployment, including power conversion systems, thermal management, fire safety, energy-management systems, commissioning and warranties.

The import premium assumes significance as India's storage deployment accelerates. The country commissioned around 8,236 MWh of BESS capacity during April-July FY27, alongside 250 MW of pumped hydro storage. July alone saw about 710 MWh of ESS capacity commissioned.

Domestic manufacturing also expanded, with about 6.35 GWh of downstream capacity becoming operational in July.

Waaree ESS accounted for 5.15 GWh through its container plant, while Midwest Energy added a 1.2-GWh integration facility.

However, the report said commercial cell manufacturing in India "remains limited", leaving the country's BESS industry substantially dependent on imported cells.

The Ministry of Heavy Industries has meanwhile tendered the remaining 10 GWh under the 50-GWh advanced chemistry cell (ACC) battery production-linked incentive scheme exclusively for grid-scale storage. The tender requires domestic value addition of 25% within two years and 40% within five years.

The new nameplates will take Hyundai into segments where it does not currently have a presence, including MPVs and off-road-focused SUVs. The latest global roadmap provides more details on the products coming to India. Hyundai said it will expand its SUV portfolio, beginning with an all-new electric SUV in the fourth quarter. The model, which has been localised and designed for India, will feature a next-generation infotainment system and Level 2 assisted-driving technology. The firm will also introduce a new internal-combustion-engine-powered mid-size SUV in the country.

In India, Hyundai Motor will expand its SUV lineup, starting with the launch of an all-new electric SUV in Q4.

The broader global product offensive includes the all-new Elantra, Ioniq 3, Tucson and Tucson Hybrid, as well as the first Santa Fe extended-range India is also expected to play a bigger role in Hyundai's manufacturing and export strategy. The company plans to add 1.27 million units of manufacturing capacity globally by 2030, including 320,000 units in India. Other additions include 500,000 units in North America, 250,000 units across completely knocked-down assembly sites and 200,000 units in South Korea.

MG Hector Tomahawk EV launched at ₹19.49 lakh

AKBAR MERCHANT
Mumbai, August 26

JSW MG MOTOR India has launched the Hector Tomahawk in electric and plug-in hybrid forms at an aggressive introductory prices of ₹19.49 lakh and ₹25.69 lakh respectively. The company has also introduced Battery-as-a-Service (BaaS), under which the Tomahawk EV is priced at ₹13.99 lakh, with a battery rental charge of ₹4.90/km. The plug-in hybrid EV (PHEV) starts at ₹21.79 lakh under the programme, with a rental charge of ₹3.20 per km. Bookings for both versions have opened, with EV deliveries starting in September and PHEV deliveries in November.

Speaking on the sidelines of the launch, Parth Jindal, director, JSW MG Motor India said, "At this price point, customers can step into a C-segment SUV at a price comparable to many B-segment ICE SUVs." He further added that the PHEV version's BaaS price puts it close to diesel automatic SUVs, offering an electrified powertrain without a significant increase in upfront cost.

The Tomahawk launch reflects MG's strategy of using its limited production capacity for products in higher-value segments.

Tata Motors regains lost ground in EV market

NITIN KUMAR
New Delhi, August 26

TATA MOTORS PASSENGER Vehicles (TMPVL) is regaining ground in the electric vehicle (EV) market as a broader product portfolio is helping it grow faster than the market, reversing the share erosion it suffered during the rapid expansion of rivals.

According to Vahan registration data, Tata Motors' EV registrations rose to 14,262 units in July, up 11% from 12,853 units in June and more than double the 6,697 units registered in July 2025. Its market share rose to 41.5% in July from 38.2% in June and a low of 36.2% in March.

The recovery has come as the overall EV market has expanded sharply rather than because competing manufacturers have seen a significant fall in volumes. The market grew to 34,390 units in July from 17,930 units a year earlier, while Tata's registrations more than doubled over the same period. JSW MG's share, meanwhile, fell to 17.2% in July from 25.7% in January, even as its monthly registrations remained broadly around 5,900 units. Mahindra has emerged as Tata's strongest challenger, with a 23.4% share in July.

Tata's product interventions have been central to the recovery. The company launched the facelifted Punch EV in February, followed by the Tiago EV facelift in May and the Sierra EV in June, giving it a wider range across price points and vehicle segments.

"Tata has continued to offer EVs across segments, from the Tiago and Punch to the Nexon and now the Sierra. This gives it a wider addressable market compared with several newer competitors," said an industry expert.

This breadth is becoming more important as competition intensifies. Mahindra, JSW MG and other manufacturers have expanded their EV portfolios, but several newer models are positioned at around Rs 15 lakh and above. Tata continues to have products at the more affordable end through the Tiago and Punch, while also competing in the larger SUV segments.

The company is also benefiting from an established EV customer base and greater familiarity with its technology, charging ecosystem and ownership experience. Tata has sought to strengthen the ownership proposition further through measures such as battery-related lifetime warranty assurances.

The company said its improving market share reflected the strength of its portfolio, product interventions and growing customer adoption. It recorded more than 34,000 EV wholesales in the first quarter of FY27, its highest-ever quarterly EV volume, and crossed 15,000 units in monthly sales in July for the first time.

"Strong growth in enquiries, bookings and retail sales reflects rising customer confidence in EVs," a TMPVL spokesperson said.

The recovery, however, could prove difficult to sustain as the next wave of competition builds. Maruti Suzuki, Mahindra and Hyundai are adding capacity, while JSW MG and VinFast are expanding their product portfolios.

Flipkart Minutes overtakes Swiggy in dark store count

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA
New Delhi, August 26

FLIPKART MINUTES HAS overtaken Swiggy Instamart in dark-store count across India's top 10 quick-commerce cities, with 627 stores compared with Swiggy's 615, as competition intensifies in the country's fastest-growing delivery market, according to a CLSA report.

The gap is narrow but significant, pointing to the rapid expansion of Flipkart's quick-commerce business even as established players continue to deepen their networks. The 10 cities together account for 3,536 dark stores, according to CLSA's Quick Commerce Map, with Blinkit leading at 969 stores, followed by Zepto at 828, Flipkart Minutes at 627, Swiggy Instamart at 615 and BigBasket at 497.

Blinkit has the largest store footprint in six of the 10 cities - Bengaluru, Delhi, Pune, Gurugram, Lucknow and Ahmedabad. Zepto leads in Hyderabad, Mumbai and Chennai, while Flipkart Minutes has the highest store count in Kolkata.

Quick commerce players are deepening their presence in existing markets while selectively expanding into new geographies. Blinkit continues to lead this expansion. In newly entered markets, players appear to be adopting a measured rollout approach, with relatively smaller dark store

"At the same time, emerging players are increasingly targeting geographies that remain underpenetrated by incumbents, seeking to establish an early foothold and secure first-mover advantages," CLSA report said. "Within the top 10 cities, Flipkart Minutes has already surpassed Swiggy Instamart in both dark store count and pin-code coverage." Bengaluru is the largest quick-commerce market in the sample, with 735 stores across the tracked platforms. Blinkit has 180 stores there, narrowly ahead of Zepto at 177, while Swiggy Instamart has 143 and Flipkart Minutes 119. Delhi follows with 531 stores, where Blinkit has a more substantial lead at 188, compared with 112 for Zepto, 102 for Flipkart Minutes and 69 for Swiggy.

Flipkart Minutes' lead over Swiggy becomes particularly notable in markets such as Kolkata, where it operates 72 stores compared with 35 for Swiggy. In Delhi, it has 102 stores against Swiggy's 69, while in Mumbai the two have 67 and 62, respectively, according to the CLSA report.

Swiggy, however, is still expanding its network. According to broader analysis, it added the highest number of dark stores among the top three players across the 10 cities over the past month, suggesting that the firm is pursuing a densification strategy in established markets.

● SHYAMAL ANADKAT, FORMER RESEARCHER, OpenAI

‘India now has the ingredients to build frontier AI’

After nearly four years at OpenAI, Shyamal Anadkat returned to India earlier this year to build a stealth venture focused on AI for scientific discovery. In an interview with Poulomi Chatterjee, he discusses India's AI opportunity, the talent returning from global labs and lessons from OpenAI. Excerpts:

What made you return to India?

I grew up in India and moved to the US after 18. But over the past few years, I felt increasingly connected to the ecosystem here. The startup landscape has gained momentum, and I had worked with companies such as Portkey and Composia before joining OpenAI. Sarvam's growth in sovereign AI has also been exciting. I felt talent was beginning to rally together. The ecosystem is still fragmented, but there is a lot of enthusiasm around the next generation of startups.

What can you share about your new venture?

We are in stealth, but the broader goal is to accelerate scientific discovery. AI can generate hypotheses, including new molecules and materials, but verifying them in the physical world remains difficult. Scientific verification is scarce. It involves deciding what to test, what simulations to run, how to conduct experiments and how to measure and learn from the results. We want to close that loop. We are working on infrastructure and plan to build a series of scientific models that can help R&D teams become more AI-native.

How difficult is it to find the right talent?

These are interesting times because a lot of global talent is returning. In recent months, people at labs such as OpenAI and Anthropic who are considering coming back to India have reached out. But finding the right talent remains hard. Raw technical ability and people who learn quickly are easier to find. What is much harder is finding people who have trained, evaluated and operated frontier systems at scale. India has relatively high

AI skill penetration, at about three times the global average. Risk appetite has also increased significantly, which I found lacking earlier. The developer community is huge and growing, so my experience has been largely positive.

What will it take for India to build for the world?

Until now, Indian technology exports have largely meant increasing headcount. That needs to change. We need to compound knowledge. AI is a major enabler of that.

Ericsson expects pick-up in 5G services monetisation

OJASVI GUPTA
New Delhi, August 26

ERICSSON SEES INDIAN telecom operators entering the next phase of 5G with the focus shifting from building out networks to finding services and use cases that can generate additional revenue from the infrastructure already deployed. The Swedish telecom equipment maker believes differentiated connectivity, including through 5G standalone (SA) networks and network slicing, is beginning to move beyond experimentation in India.

"On monetisation, we are clearly moving beyond experimentation," Nitin Bansal, managing director, Ericsson India, told FE.

Globally, the number of commercial differentiated-connectivity offerings based on 5G SA network slicing rose from 65 to 84 in six months to June 2026, according to Ericsson's latest Mobility Report.

Bansal said India was following a similar trajectory, with differentiated connectivity beginning to be offered commercially to consumers, while 5G SA and network slicing were creating the foundation for enterprise and fixed wireless access (FWA) use cases.

The opportunity, he said, is increasingly about identifying applications where bet-

NITIN BANSAL, MD, ERICSSON INDIA
On monetisation, we are clearly moving beyond experimentation ter network performance has enough value for customers to pay for.

This could include connectivity with higher reliability, lower latency or more predictable performance for specific enterprise applications, rather than selling 5G simply as a faster version of existing mobile services.

AI is expected to strengthen that opportunity from both sides of the network. On one side, operators are already using AI to optimise network performance and resources, improve spectrum and energy efficiency, predict traffic patterns and automate operations. This could help carriers extract greater value from existing networks while keeping operating costs under control.

On the other side, the rapid adoption of AI applications is expected to create new demands on networks. As users increasingly interact with AI rather than simply consume content, uplink traffic could rise, while applications such as AI agents embedded in smartphones and augmented- and virtual-reality devices could require lower latency, greater reliability and more predictable network performance.

Bansal described this as a two-sided opportunity of AI for Networks and Networks for AI. The first involves using AI to make networks more efficient and responsive, while the second involves adapting networks to handle the changing traffic patterns and performance requirements created by AI applications.

Alongside the network business, Ericsson is also expanding the strategic role of its India-based chip-design operations. Eighteen months after expanding its ASIC development unit in Bengaluru, Bansal said the centre's mandate had widened from engineering support to a broader R&D and innovation role, covering ASIC development, telecom-grade AI, program-mable networks and future 6G systems.

Ericsson is also developing its RAN Compute portfolio to support 4G, 5G and 5G Advanced through software-led upgrades, reducing the need for fundamental network resets as requirements change. India is Ericsson's second-largest market globally and its largest employee base, with more than 20,500 employees.

ADANI ENERGY SOLUTIONS (AESL) on Wednesday said it has won a 4,500-MW transmission project for evacuation of renewable energy generated in Karnataka to major load centres in Maharashtra.

The project, which entails an estimated capital expenditure of ~₹4,700 crore, will also support the growing pumped storage ecosystem in the Satara, Pune and Mumbai Metropolitan Region (MMR).

The Satara transmission project will create a vital transmission backbone to support both renewable energy evacuation and energy storage deployment, strengthening power flows between southern and western India, Patel added.

The project includes establishment of a 765/400 kV sub-station at Satara, Kolhapur-Satara 765 kV double-circuit transmission line and augmentation of the Kolhapur pooling station along with associated transmission infrastructure.

Nestle sees India entering global....

The company currently has nine active manufacturing facilities in the country, with a tenth plant under development in Odisha.

Beyond the domestic market, Nestle is looking to make India a larger manufacturing and export hub for its global operations. Nestle India currently exports products to about 30 countries, but the company sees scope to expand both the number of markets and the scale of exports.

"We should do even more to see India as a production hub to export. We're doing that already," Navratil said, adding that the scale of the Indian market also allows investments in factories to reach capacity quickly.

Nestle's June-quarter global earnings had highlighted high double-digit growth in India, which the company described as "very, very strong", adding that it had led growth in its Asia, Oceania and Africa zone.

Navratil said the company sees opportunities at both the value and premium ends of the market, with its India strategy focused on increasing consumption while expanding the portfolio across price points.

The company's priorities include having the right portfolio, improving efficiencies, building a stronger performance culture and driving real internal growth, or RIG. RIG-led growth, he said, would involve reaching more consumers and households, while also using premiumisation, affordability and value to serve consumers across the income spectrum. However, Nestle does not intend to chase growth at the expense of product quality or consumer acceptance, Navratil said, stressing that the company's approach in India would remain focused on the long term.

Transparency in food labelling

Nestle welcomes greater transparency in food labelling and supports front-of-pack labelling in India, Navratil said, adding that any such system "has to be done the right way" and should be science-based.

"We welcome consumers being curious about what they eat and what they consume. And I think we have always been pro transparency," Navratil told reporters at the media roundtable, adding that the company is willing to contribute to the debate.

Nestle already declares calories on the front of its packs in India and provides recommended dietary allowance information, although it is not mandated, he said.

"If the regulation is to have front-of-pack labelling in different shapes or forms, we welcome that," the CEO said. "It's not something that we think is wrong."

Legacy players, VCs hop on to lab diamond trend

S SHANTHI
Bengaluru, August 26

WHAT BEGAN AS a niche category led by digital-first jewellery startups is rapidly evolving into one of the fastest-growing jewellery segments, drawing the attention of legacy brands, venture capital investors and large online marketplaces as lab-grown diamonds gain wider consumer acceptance.

The shift is visible across the value chain. Titan Company entered the segment with its lab-grown diamond brand BEYON in December 2025. Bluestone invested ₹25 crore in startup Ethera and demi-fine jewellery brand Palmonas has announced plans to launch its own lab-grown diamond range. E-commerce platforms are also expanding their offerings as consumer demand broadens beyond early adopters.

Amazon India said its lab-grown diamond category has grown nine-fold since the start of the year. "While metros continue to drive strong demand, we are also seeing growing interest from tier-2 and 3 cities. Customers are increasingly choosing lab-grown diamonds not just for gifting, but also for everyday wear," Siddharth Bhagat, director, Amazon Beauty, personal care and fashion accessories, told FE. The platform currently sells products from more than 20 brands, including GIVA, Sparkles, Lukson and KEEMTI.

The surge in demand is also drawing investor attention. According to Tracxn, seven lab-grown diamond startups have been launched this year, taking the total founded over the past three years to more than 37. Funding has accelerated sharply, with startups in the segment raising $125 million so far this year, compared with $78 million in 2025 and just $9 million in 2024. Recent deals include Limelight Diamonds raising ₹275 crore in a strategic funding round led by the Bhatwari Group, Aukera securing ₹90 crore in debt funding from Alteria Capital and Onya raising ₹5.5 crore.

Investors believe the category is benefiting from a structural shift in consumer behaviour. "India is a price-sensitive market with a very large population that historically could not afford diamonds. Lab-grown diamonds change that equation by making the category significantly more accessible," Aditya Singh, co-founder and partner at All In Capital, which has invested in Everyday Diamonds, said. "This will become a multi-billion-dollar category."

NCLT allows 99.97% haircut for Subhash Chandra's ₹22K-cr dues

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA
New Delhi, August 26

THE INSOLVENCY TRIBUNAL NCLT has approved a repayment plan under which Zee group founder Subhash Chandra will pay just ₹6.5 crore to settle admitted creditor claims of about ₹22,006.57 crore in his personal insolvency resolution process, translating into a haircut of nearly 99.97% for lenders.

NCLT Member (Judicial) Nishesh Sharma, ruling as a third member, on Tuesday approved the plan under Section 114 of the Insolvency and Bankruptcy Code (IBC), rejecting objections by lenders that the recovery was too meagre to merit approval.

Earlier, the two members of the National Company

Law Tribunal had given a split verdict, after which the president of the forum appointed Sharma as the third member amid the difference of opinion.

Sharma rejected the claims of the dissenting creditors led by LIC Housing Finance, which had argued that the payout was "unviable and unlawful".

Insurance premium, rates crash on fierce competition

● Pressure most visible in fire,
property lines

NARAYANAN V
Chennai, August 26

INDIA'S PUSH TO attract more insurers and reinsurers is beginning to create an unintended consequence: Too much capacity is chasing too little business.

The glut is triggering a price war in corporate insurance, with premiums for fire, property and other commercial covers falling sharply as insurers compete for a limited pool of large corporate accounts. However, for companies, the overcapacity has created a favourable buying environment.

"Over the last few months, insurers have been competing very aggressively for business, with increased appetite and capacity across several segments. This has resulted in significant price competition, particularly for softer occupancies and good loss experience," said Deepak Madan, head - commercial lines, large account practices, Prudent Insurance Brokers.

The pressure is most pronounced in property and fire insurance. "The availability of capacity and intense competition for established accounts are driving substantial rate reductions," he said.

The impact of the price war is already showing up in insur-

440,000 GROSS PROFIT-MAKERS IN DERIVATIVES BECOME LOSERS

Transaction charges take a heavy toll on traders

● Trading costs rise despite fall in derivatives
turnover

KUSHAN SHAH
Mumbai, August 26

TRANSACTION COSTS ARE taking a sizeable bite out of retail traders' returns in the equity derivatives market, even pushing them from profits into losses.

A recent study by the Securities and Exchange Board of India (Sebi) showed that 440,000 individual traders who were profitable before accounting for brokerage, exchange charges, statutory levies and other transaction costs turned into loss-makers after these expenses were deducted in FY26. These traders accounted for around 5-6% of all loss-making individual traders during the year.

The impact came even as trading activity moderated. While derivatives turnover measured in terms of premium declined by around 5% in FY26, the aggregate transaction costs borne by individual traders remained broadly unchanged at around ₹25,000 crore.

Chandan Taparia, head – derivatives & technicals at Motilal Oswal Financial Services, said the growing use of technology and trading infrastructure as participation in derivatives has expanded has also contributed to trading costs.

Transaction costs hurt loss-making traders significantly. They amounted to around 35% of the gross trading losses incurred by loss-makers in FY26, compared with 21% of the gross profits earned by profitable traders. The average transaction cost per trader also climbed more than 22% to ₹31,628 in FY26 from ₹26,027 in the previous year.

The brokerage cost was the biggest component of transaction costs, accounting for 44% of the total in FY26. The good news: Its share, however, has declined from 52% in FY22.

In contrast, the share of securities transaction tax (STT) has risen sharply. Following the increase in STT rates from October 2024, the levy accounted for 27% of transaction costs paid by individual traders in FY26, more than double its 13% share in FY22 and up from 20% in FY25.

Consequently, STT collections from individual equity derivatives traders jumped more than fivefold to ₹6,645 crore in FY26 from ₹1,291 crore in FY22. Collections in FY26 alone accounted for more than 30% of the cumulative STT collected from individual traders over this period.

The tax burden is set to rise further in FY27. The latest Budget increased STT on derivatives with effect from April 1, including a 150% increase in the levy on futures and a 50% increase on options premium. This could push STT's share in overall transaction costs even higher.

Market expert Arun Kejriwal said Sebi's investor-awareness initiatives, coupled with higher transaction costs, have already made some retail investors think twice before entering speculative derivatives trades.

Govt mobilises ₹3,000 cr from Hind Copper OFS

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA
New Delhi, August 26

THE GOVERNMENT HAS realised nearly ₹3,000 crore from share sale of Hindustan Copper with the closure of OFS on Wednesday.

The offer for sale (OFS) received enthusiastic responses from retail investors, Department of Investment and Public Asset Management (DIPAM) Secretary Arunish Chawla said on X.

"The issue was oversubscribed on both days, and the government decided to exercise its entire green shoe option. We thank all investors for their participation and reposing their faith in us," he said.

Institutional investors on Tuesday subscribed 3.4 times to the Hindustan Copper offer for sale (OFS) by putting in bids worth over ₹4,600 crore.

As against the 26.1 million shares reserved for them, institutional investors put in bids for over 89.1 million shares, data on the BSE showed.

At an indicative price of ₹520.35 per share, the bids are valued at over ₹4,600 crore.

The OFS comprised of 58 million shares, with the base offer size of 2,90,10,721 shares and the oversubscription option of 2,90,10,721 shares.

Against 5,80,21,442 shares on offer, 41,56,68,400 (provisional) bids came at the end of last day of the OFS, as per data available on the exchanges.

Shares of Hindustan Copper on Wednesday closed at ₹556.55, up 4.38% on the BSE.

The government currently has 66.14% equity holding in Hindustan Copper.

So far in the current fiscal year, the government has mopped up ₹52,716 crore via PSU disinvestment through OFS in eight PSUs and remittances from SUUTI.

With the realisation of Hindustan Copper Ltd, the collection under the disinvestment head would rise to about ₹55,700 crore with minority stake sale in nine PSUs.

Jio Financial to roll out more features on its app

FE BUREAU
Mumbai, August 26

JIO FINANCIAL SERVICES is in advanced stages of rolling out two features on the JioFinance app, Hitesh Sethia, managing director and CEO, said at the annual general meeting on Wednesday.

The first is an exclusive membership programme which will incentivise transactions on the JioFinance marketplace through structured value-back rewards. "The more you transact, the more you earn back," he said.

The second one, a "personal CFO", will offer unbiased advisory and actionable recommendations to users, based on a proprietary financial fitness score.

The app has crossed 25 million unique users, with average monthly active users expanding to approximately 9 million in Q1FY27.

On the recent tie-up with Bank of America, Sethia said the ₹18,268-crore deal will give access to growth capital. "In addition to growth capital, this transaction will enable Jio Credit to leverage BofA's global banking expertise, including best-in-class governance and advanced risk management practices," he said.

'M&A space sees heightened activity'

With banks beginning funding acquisitions, the domestic M&As market is poised for stronger activity, says Kamraj Singh Negi, managing director and CEO, investment banking, Pantomath Capital. He tells Kshipra Petkar that the IPO market is expected to remain strong, both in terms of volume and value.

How do you see the M&A landscape currently, and which sectors are attracting the maximum interest?

The bulk of the activity is on the capital markets side because the pool of capital is larger. Having said that, there is a lot of build-outs happening in M&As as well. Global buyout funds have had success with control transactions, encouraging more such deals. Domestic private equity players have become larger and are doing more control transactions. Financial services continue to see strong interest, while manufacturing and industrials are picking up. In defence, niche manufacturers want to expand capabilities either organically or through acquisitions. We are expecting a couple of conversations in that space.

How significant is allowing banks to fund acquisitions?

It is quite positive. It makes the access to capital easier. Banks are actively evaluating transactions, and you will see deals funded through a mix of equity and debt. Debt will mostly come from the Indian lending ecosystem, which was not the case earlier.

Are you seeing greater foreign interest in Indian financial services?

Yes. Investors from the US and Japan are showing a lot of interest. South Korea should also be mentioned. As of now, Europe has shown limited interest. The financial services sector is better understood compared to others. The regulatory clarity is higher. Investors understand what is happening, who is being lent to and what compliances are being followed. People are convinced about the credit opportunity; you just have to find platforms that can scale up.

How do you see the IPO market and capital raising evolving?

The IPO market will remain strong. Volume and value will be higher than last year. Manufacturing and industrials will continue to see good interest. There will also be more issuances across the power value chain, including capital goods. Financials, although delayed, will come back in a big way, probably starting with QIPs, followed by primary issuances.

Valuations in financial services are currently quite depressed. Private deals are happening at higher valuations, so a public issue may not provide proper value discovery. As market valuations stabilise, financial services will come back.

US INFLATION STEADY AS SPENDING STALLS

US INFLATION rose in line with expectations in July while consumer spending stalled, giving the Federal Reserve room to keep interest rates steady in the near term. Core personal consumption expenditures prices increased 0.2% month-on-month and 3.3% year-on-year. Inflation-adjusted consumer spending was flat after strong gains in May and June. The data suggest economic activity cooled last month, strengthening the case for a September rate hold as Fed officials await signs of easing inflation pressures linked to the Iran war. Overall PCE inflation stood at 3.7%, well above the Fed's 2% target. Treasury yields the dollar rose, while the S&P 500 opened lower. REUTERS

AIMS TO PROPOSE GLOBAL EFFORTS TO MITIGATE THE GROWING AI RISKS

Gates seeks meeting with Xi on AI

JEFFREY DASTIN
San Francisco, August 26

BILL GATES IS looking to meet with Chinese President Xi Jinping later this year, eager to propose global efforts to mitigate the growing risks posed by artificial intelligence. The Microsoft co-founder and billionaire philanthropist told Reuters in an interview that he believes China might agree to restricting potentially dangerous AI model releases if the US took initiative on that first.

“The whole world would go along with that,” said Gates, who met with Xi three years ago, when he was the first foreign entrepreneur to be hosted by the Chinese president post-pandemic.

Gates also said he’d like to propose that countries monitor AI’s ability to create molecules and carry out biological attacks — something that would not get in the way of any tech industry’s development.

Gates’ staff are working to finalise a meeting with Xi for his next China trip, his spokesperson said, scheduled tentatively for November.

President Xi “might be surprised by how vehement I am,” Gates said. He said China is protecting children from AI companion addiction, but he believes few leaders globally are rising to the occasion to get ahead of a litany of potential harms from AI. “Yes, in the past, technology never did this. This time is different. This is like an evolutionary milestone that needs incredible policy management by society as a whole.”

China’s foreign ministry did not immediately respond to a request for comment.

AI hacking ‘should blow people’s minds’

Gates struck a more optimistic note about AI in January, but since then he has become concerned that it can conduct attacks while supplanting jobs and hooking users psychologically.

Zuckerberg’s plan to replace Meta staff

KATIE PAUL
New York, August 26

IN JANUARY, META CEO Mark Zuckerberg and his top lieutenants gathered for their annual leadership retreat at his Hawaii compound. There they hatched a radical plan to reimagine work at the social-media giant in the age of artificial intelligence.

Code-named Project OT — short for Organisation Transformation — the plan envisioned an “AI native” future for the owner of Facebook and Instagram. AI would take over much of the daily work performed by thousands of human employees. Virtual workers would be overseen inside Meta by smaller, “talent-dense” cadres of human staffers, according to one planning document reviewed by Reuters.

In scenario-planning exercises, two of these people said, executives explored slashing the size of many teams across Meta by as much as 60%. Some employees would be offered roles in new units, while others would be laid off as part of a culling that one human-resources executive projected would be as big as or bigger than the company’s cuts of 25% three years ago, according to another internal document. —REUTERS

In a blog post on Wednesday, Gates called for a new international organisation to manage AI, drawing on elements from a nuclear inspections regime, international aviation regulations, and ozone layer protection agreements.

His foundation is aiming to spend $200 billion by 2045 with an increasing focus on AI. It is working with Anthropic on AI-powered health checks for pregnancy, and with OpenAI to help healthcare workers in Rwanda, Gates said. —REUTERS

Moonshot in talks over K3 revenues with 3 firms

Beijing/Singapore, Aug 26

CHINA’S MOONSHOT AI is negotiating revenue-sharing agreements with Microsoft, Amazon and Alphabet’s Google that would allow the US cloud giants to host its blockbuster Kimi K3 model, three people familiar with the talks said.

Any deal could mark the first big revenue-sharing pact between a Chinese AI firm and a major US cloud company.

The discussions highlight how China’s leading AI models, often far cheaper than Western offerings, are gaining traction in the US, despite national security concerns in Washington that have led to bans on exports of AI chips to China.

They are also taking place despite critical comments about Moonshot from senior US officials. IPO-bound Moonshot is seeking up to a 30% share of revenue generated from K3-related services on Microsoft’s Azure, Amazon Web Services and Google Cloud, according to sources.

The discussions are at an early stage and there is no certainty they will result in agreements, the sources said.

Moonshot, Microsoft, Google, and AWS declined to comment. Moonshot has come under fire from US Treasury Secretary Scott Bessent who said last month that he might add it to a trade blacklist.

U.S. officials have accused the Beijing-based company of stealing from Anthropic’s most sophisticated model, Fable, to help create Kimi K3 and illegally acquiring Nvidia chips.

Moonshot has rejected suggestions that Kimi K3’s performance was achieved via distillation, telling China’s National Business Daily last month that its performance gains came from original changes to underlying architecture.

According to one of the sources, unresolved issues in Moonshot’s negotiations with the U.S. cloud companies include how revenue might be split, data access and auditing token usage. —REUTERS

Iran, Oman reach revenue-sharing deal on Hormuz

ARSALAN SHAHLA & PATRICK SYKES
August 26

IRAN’S MILITARY SAID it reached a revenue-sharing agreement with Oman on the Strait of Hormuz, as Tehran and Washington’s standoff over control of the crucial waterway continues.

“Agreements have been reached regarding each country’s share of the strait’s waters as well as Iran and Oman’s share of its revenues,” the Islamic Revolutionary Guard Corps’ spokesman Hossein Mohebbi said on Wednesday, according to the state-run Sepah News agency.

“The US is obstructing this process, causing progress to be delayed,” he said, without elaborating.

The comments by the IRGC go further than a joint statement issued by the two countries’ foreign ministries on Tuesday, which said they discussed an “interim framework” for resuming ship transits but stopped short of announcing an agreement and didn’t mention fees. Iran has also cautioned that a re-opening of the strait will take more than a deal with Oman.

Neither country’s foreign ministry responded to a request for comment.

On Wednesday, US President Donald Trump repeated a claim that “the mines are

Last week, the head of the International Maritime Organization said that the strait was not open and that there was no confirmation that mines had been removed. —BLOOMBERG

Global economy in tug-of-war oil shock vs AI boom: IMF chief

THE GLOBAL ECONOMY has weathered the oil shock caused by the closure of Hormuz “better than feared” due to various factors, including an investment boom in AI, IMF MD Kristalina Georgieva has said. “What started out as a US phenomenon with AI is now becoming a growth engine for the global economy, with other countries ramping up construction of data centres and other infrastructure,” she said.

The IMF chief said the global economy had “weathered the energy shock caused by the closure of Hormuz better than we feared” due to a combination of factors, including drawdowns of oil and gas reserves and increases in non-Gulf supply.

The global economy was witnessing a tug-of-war between the negative supply shock from West Asia and the positive demand shock from AI, she said. Georgieva said ahead of the G-20 finance ministerial meeting in Asheville, North Carolina, next week. PTI

JSW MG, SAIC discuss fresh capital

THE STRONGER DEMAND outlook has been reinforced by the performance of the Windsor, giving JSW and SAIC greater confidence to invest further in India. Halol is already operating three shifts, while the company’s headcount has risen 50% in six months. SAIC, which holds 49% in JSW MG against JSW’s 35%, sees India as an important growth market as automobile demand in China and Europe matures.

The company is also tar-getting 70% localisation for the Windsor and Hector Tomahawk by the end of 2027, although battery cells, rare-earth magnets and some electronics remain difficult to source locally. Its plans to manufacture battery cells in India remain on hold pending access to LFP technology. Alongside capacity expansion, MG is also seeking a more favourable tax treatment for plug-in hybrids and extended-range electric vehicles (EREV), stating that differential taxation could accelerate adoption of new-energy vehicles. Jindal said an EREV, in which the engine primarily acts as a generator for the battery, should receive EV-like treatment.

MG also wants the benefit of any tax reduction to flow to consumers rather than the company. The push is part of its strategy to offer multiple powertrain options based on different consumer requirements, while seeking to increase India’s new-energy vehicle penetration.

The company’s current product strategy reflects the capacity constraint. It is prioritising higher-value SUVs, where absolute margins per vehicle are higher, rather than immediately entering the ₹10-15 lakh segment where it has a portfolio gap. Jindal said MG ultimately wants to scale to around 400,000 vehicles at Halol and eventually reach 1 million cars in India, a target that will require another round of capital.

FM pitches GIFT City, fintech bets in Canada

FM Nirmala Sitharaman delivered the keynote address during an interaction with business community members of Indian diaspora in Canada, on Wednesday

@NSITHARAMAN

City, India’s international financial services centre, as a gateway for international capital, alongside greater foreign participation in insurance, asset management and pensions.

Deeper, more liquid and sophisticated capital markets could allow Canadian institutional investors not only to participate in India’s growth story but also to use India as a platform for wider regional and global financial activity.

Sitharaman said the Indian diaspora in Canada was much more than a cultural link between the two countries. “The Indian diaspora is therefore merely a bridge between our two countries. It is one of the strongest foundations of our economic partnership,” she said, while addressing prominent members of the Indian diaspora business community.

She placed the investment pitch against the backdrop of a renewed India-Canada relationship. Referring to the understanding reached between the two prime ministers on the sidelines of the G7 summit in June 2025, Sitharaman said the two countries had reaffirmed a “future-focused strategic partnership.”

The relationship was being given a stronger economic foundation, including through negotiations for a comprehensive economic partnership agreement and an ambition to more than double bilateral trade to ₹70 billion (over $50 billion) by 2030, she said.

“I believe India and Canada are the most natural partners in the world,” Sitharaman said, citing their shared democratic values, parliamentary traditions, commitment to multilateralism and, above all, experience as multicultural societies.

Centre pushes ministries, states on DPDP compliance

AN IMPORTANT PART of the exercise will be embedding privacy considerations into government technology rather than treating them as a compliance requirement after systems have been built. Ministries and states have been asked to incorporate privacy-by-design principles into the development, enhancement and operation of digital government services and review legacy systems in a phased, risk-based manner.

The push is significant because government is among the country’s largest collectors and processors of citizens’ personal data, with digital systems spanning welfare delivery, taxation, healthcare, identity and a range of other public services. The implementation of the DPDP Act within government systems will, therefore, be an early test of how privacy requirements translate into the country’s expanding digital public infrastructure.

The cabinet secretary has also called for capacity-building and sensitisation of officers responsible for implementing the law, alongside appropriate governance mechanisms and institutional processes. This will require departments to examine not only their technology systems but also internal processes governing access to, use and protection of personal information.

MeiTY has already begun preparing guidance material, conducting awareness initiatives and capacity-building programmes, and consulting stakeholders to support implementation of the law. It will continue to provide implementation support to ministries, departments and state and Union Territory administrations.

The August 20 letter asks government bodies to accord the matter “high priority” and initiate appropriate institutional, administrative and technical measures for timely implementation of the 2023 law. Somanathan has also asked them to submit a brief note to MeiTY on the status of implementation from each ministry, department and state so that “common implementation issues requiring guidance or support may be addressed in a coordinated manner.”

Capex with care

Capital discipline is welcome, but must not become an excuse for excessive caution

KUMAR MANGALAM BIRLA'S recent defence of corporate India against the charge that it is reluctant to invest is timely. Companies, he argues, remain strongly bullish on India's prospects; what is sometimes read as hesitation is really capital discipline. The distinction matters. The debate over the supposedly "missing" private capex cycle too often assumes that optimism must immediately produce new factories and large projects. Investment, however, is not an expression of confidence alone. It is a commercial decision based on demand, capacity utilisation, and returns. Corporate India learnt this painfully during the previous investment boom, when exuberant borrowing and poorly conceived projects left companies overleveraged, banks burdened with bad loans, and assets stranded for years.

Private capex is moving again, but the recovery needs closer examination. Much of the visible momentum comes from a few large, deep-pocketed conglomerates capable of making long-horizon bets across renewables, digital infrastructure, electronics, and advanced manufacturing. That confidence is real, but it is very different from thousands of mid-sized companies independently deciding to invest in India's future. Beyond the biggest groups, private investment remains patchier. Smaller firms face uneven domestic demand, cheap imports, commodity-price volatility, high financing costs, and geopolitical uncertainty. The capex numbers, therefore, cannot yet establish whether India Inc as a whole has rediscovered its risk appetite or whether a handful of conglomerates are making the biggest bets they can afford while others keep watching. Concentrated confidence is also more fragile than broad-based investment rooted in demand across industries and regions.

The government should therefore resist treating caution as a problem that can be solved through exhortation. Its task is to make investment rational, not cajole companies into undertaking it. Stable trade policy is essential: businesses cannot build capacity when tariffs change abruptly or unfairly priced imports undercut domestic producers. Competitive logistics, reliable power, faster land and environmental approvals, predictable taxation, and consistent regulation would reduce project costs and uncertainty. The cost of capital matters too, particularly for mid-sized firms without access to the cheapest domestic and global funding. Deeper bond markets, quicker dispute resolution, and fewer financing frictions are essential if the capex revival is to extend beyond corporate India's top tier. Stronger domestic demand is equally important. Public capex has created valuable infrastructure and supported activity, but it cannot indefinitely substitute for broad-based consumption and private investment. Production-linked incentives have delivered results in areas such as mobile phones, but they must build competitive supplier ecosystems rather than permanent dependence on state support.

Yet Birla's argument also places an obligation on corporate India. Capital discipline cannot become a respectable euphemism for excessive risk aversion. Companies cannot wait for capacity utilisation to reach its limit, demand to become certain, and every policy risk to disappear. By then, the opportunity may have passed. With leverage lower, cash flows stronger, and the banking system capable of funding sound projects, businesses have room to invest ahead of demand where India possesses durable advantages — in renewable energy, pharmaceuticals, speciality chemicals, electronics, defence, food processing, and digital infrastructure. Large companies must also draw smaller suppliers into these investment networks, diffusing technology, orders, and confidence through the economy. The true measure of a capex revival is not the value of projects announced, but how widely productive capacity, jobs, technology, and exports are created. India needs neither reckless expansion nor permanent caution. It needs capital deployed broadly, productively, and with care.

Time for a total reboot

THE RBI SUDDENLY announced that it would close the foreign currency non-resident (bank) window earlier than planned since the mop-up of dollars was more than anticipated. This set the cat amongst the pigeons with most people wondering why they had done this. Interestingly, despite inflows of more than $50 billion in a little over two months, the reserves rose by hardly $7 billion. Clearly, rather than selling the incoming dollars in the spot market (which would have led to rupee appreciation), the RBI must have used these to close out some of its forward sales, earning some premium which would off-set part of the subsidy provided by the central bank on the scheme.

Thus, unlike in 2013 (the last time such a scheme was launched) when the rupee appreciated by nearly 5% over three months and nearly 9% over six months, the rupee has been largely steady.

This also suggests the RBI is more or less comfortable with the rupee's current value, which is a bit surprising since it is well known that on a real effective exchange rate basis, the rupee is over 10% undervalued. Indeed, the weak rupee is beginning to impact many of the much-heralded PLI projects, including the India Semiconductor Mission, that are part of the government's Viksit Bharat plan.

To my mind, this is not the kind of signal the RBI should be giving, particularly when we have just come off the major trauma of the past few months with the rupee crashing by more than 6% since the start of the year, reinforcing the long-held belief that the rupee can only weaken going forward. The RBI should be working to prevent the build-up of a "one-way street" mentality, which is not only self-fulfilling but also creates untenable pressure on the reserves, making these kinds of expensive schemes necessary.

Significantly, "the-rupee-will-always-fall" mentality exacerbates the pressure on the rupee through leads and lags — where importers rush to hedge while exporters hold back till the last minute. Several analysts have estimated that $150-185 billion of the decline in the reserves was made up of exactly such leads and lags; one author suggested a wonderfully creative way to address this — by charging an additional cash reserve ratio on import cover. This would increase the premiums on the import side, which would certainly slow down import hedging and, likely, increase export sales, which would keep the rupee from falling further, and may even lead to the much-needed appreciation.

There are many sound ideas like this being propounded by analysts, including the crying need to increase liquidity in the debt markets by changing the taxation of medium-term debt income to capital gains, which would not only increase the flow of investment to MSMEs, but would also make Indian debt more attractive to foreign portfolio investors, again easing the pressure on the rupee.

Another interesting aspect about the current scheme is that the RBI seems comfortable with investors using leverage — even SBI is announcing that it is happy to provide it. In 2013, most of the deposits were, indeed, leveraged, but it was undertaken quietly. Because of the leverage, the RBI needs to provide only a modest jump over US rates, which is good since it saves us money. It highlights the reality that NRIs, at least, are quite comfortable with India risk, at least as far as the financial sector is concerned.

Unfortunately, in the real sector which creates jobs — one of our many number one problems — India's risk appears to be almost unsurmountable. It is well known that over the past several years net FDI has been largely flat — in other words, global investors are really not interested in investing in India, and have not been since around 2011. Net FDI as a percentage of GDP has moved between 0.7% and 2%, averaging 1.5% over the past 16 years, sharply down from the peak of 3.6% of GDP in 2008.

Tragically, but hardly surprisingly, domestic private investment, too, has been flatlining at around 12% of GDP for over a decade (as compared to 25-28% globally).

Clearly, we are doing something — or several things — wrong. It's time for a complete reboot of Indian economic policy.

● BANKING REGULATIONS

INDIA ADOPTING BASEL III TO THE LETTER, RIGHT WHEN THE REST OF THE WORLD IS WATERING THEIRS DOWN

Wall Street folded, RBI held

KRISHNAN RANGANATHAN

Former Executive Director, Nomura, alumnus of Harvard Business School, and a visiting faculty at B-schools

When Covid hit, and switched it off again in 2022 — orderly in, orderly out. Britain went further, permanently taking central bank money out of the calculation in 2016 and raising its minimum to 3.25% to compensate. America had written down nothing: it improvised an emergency rule in 2020, let it lapse in 2021, then spent years relitigating the wreckage in the Treasury market, an argument concluded only this April. That's the case for writing the fire drill before the kitchen catches fire. And the RBI adds a sensible catch: use the escape hatch, and the minimum goes up to compensate, so nobody quietly loosens the safety net.

Then there's the neat fix for "window dressing" — shrinking your riskiest short-term book the night before results day, then piling back in the morning after. The draft makes banks publish the quarter-end number, the daily average, and an explanation of why the two diverge. The RBI isn't policing this daily itself; it's putting the numbers on the table and outsourcing discipline to the market. Good luck explaining a convenient 40% dip to investors with a straight face. One loose thread: banks must clear the minimum at all times, yet measurement is quarter-end unless the RBI permits otherwise. Making averaging the default would close that gap for nothing.

Where it gets harder

The leverage ratio is deliberately blind to risk. That isn't sloppiness; it's the design. Before 2008, banks got very good at loading up on whatever the rules treated as harmless, sovereign paper included — which is exactly why carving out an exception for government bonds would reopen the loophole the sledgehammer slams shut. Silicon Valley Bank died in 2023 holding impeccably safe Treasuries. Zero credit risk, fatal interest rate risk. So no, the RBI isn't "penalising" banks for obeying the rule that forces them to hold government bonds. Those bonds have sat in the denominator in full since 2019. This draft doesn't touch it.

The sharper worry is harder to dismiss. Because G-secs are treated as risk-free, a bank stuffed with them looks wonderfully safe on that measure while its leverage ratio doesn't budge — so the sledgehammer bites first. Most Indian banks sit comfortably clear. Some public sector banks with heavy bond books could sit closer than they'd like.

Hence the asymmetry worth raising in the consultation: the emergency valve covers balances parked at the RBI, not gov-

India's floors aren't moving: 4% for the biggest banks, 3.5% for the rest, both above the 3% global minimum and both unchanged since 2019. The drama, effective April 2027, is how you count the pile — plus a new straitjacket for Indian branches of foreign giants

Participation is India's problem, not growth

RAVI VENKATESAN

Chairman, Global Energy Alliance for People and Planet, and Founder, Global Alliance For Mass Entrepreneurship

CHANNAVA USED to earn a daily wage, cooking and selling what she could after someone else's shift ended. A solar-powered stove and a small loan changed the arithmetic of her day — more hours to cook, a lower cost per batch, enough surplus to turn a side hustle into a business. A few villages over, Kamalavva's sewing machine now runs on solar power too; she works faster and it costs her less in strain on her body. Anand's forge, once at the mercy of an erratic grid, runs on the sun, and his blacksmith trade, the kind of work economists file under "informal, low-productivity, will disappear", is instead what feeds his family.

None of these are dramatic stories. That's the point. Viksit Bharat, India's ambition to become a developed economy by 2047, will not be won by a few more unicorns or a couple more world-class firms. It will be won or lost in millions of small transactions like these. India's challenge is no longer primarily to grow fast. It is to broaden who gets to participate in that growth.

That reframing changes what we should be arguing about. The first phase of India's rise ran on liberalisation, demographics, and capital. The next phase has to run on productivity — and three forces are converging to make that possible: artificial intelligence (AI), clean and distributed energy, and digital public infrastructure. Together they could deliver India's biggest productivity leap since 1991. In Andhra Pradesh's tribal highlands, roughly 1.2 lakh coffee farmers in Paderu and Araku are being brought onto a single app that handles compliance and market access, turning subsistence growers into participants in a formal, traceable supply chain. That is

Business needs to show up as a capability builder, not a CSR donor: its supply chains, technology, and management talent are worth more to an ecosystem than a grant cheque

Vandana Yadav turned an idea and a state-backed loan into a working cold-pressed oil mill. That is not a hobby business — multiplied by tens of millions, that is what India's employment agenda actually looks like on the ground. Mass entrepreneurship isn't a side story to India's growth. It is the central tale. The third shift is geographic. The next trillion dollars of India's GDP cannot come only from Bengaluru, Hyderabad, the NCR, and Mumbai. It has to come from district India. West Godavari's new entrepreneurship mission, launched in the presence of the finance minister, is targeting 5,000 new enterprises and 25,000 livelihoods over five years, building on a similar effort already under way in Visakhapatnam. The district, not the metro, is the right unit for this next phase of development.

Which brings us to who actually benefits. Rekha Sen is not a banker or a bureaucrat. She's a former self-help group member in a Rajasthan village, trained as a "Vitta Sakhi" to help other women navigate loan paperwork — and in three months she helped 15 women secure loans ranging from ₹75,000 to ₹5 lakh. More than 860 women like her are now doing this work across three states. This is what the idea of "women's entrepreneurship is India's biggest untapped growth opportunity" looks like once it stops being a line in a strategy deck. It looks like one woman helping the next one fill out a form.

None of this happens through government support alone, and it shouldn't. Philanthropy's job is to be India's R&D incubator — absorbing the risk of testing what doesn't yet work, whether that's AI for informal workers or new models for women's market access, so the government can scale what's proven and markets can commercialise it. Business needs to show up as a capability builder, not a CSR donor: its supply chains, technology, and management talent are worth more to an ecosystem than a grant cheque. Civil society is the connective tissue that makes all of it reach the last village.

When historians look back on whether India actually became Viksit Bharat, they won't be checking whether GDP crossed twenty or thirty trillion dollars. They will be asking whether Channava, and the tens of millions like her, became more productive, more prosperous, and more hopeful. Get that right, and the GDP number takes care of itself. Get it wrong, and no GDP number will matter.

ernment securities. In a genuine stress episode — exactly when the RBI would want banks hoovering up sovereign paper — no relief exists, not even temporarily. Britain's fix isn't a direct precedent, since it covers central bank money rather than bonds. But it establishes the principle: identify a structural distortion, deal with it permanently, and raise the minimum to compensate. The RBI has the harder version of the same problem and has reached for neither remedy.

Second, the foreign branch rules. A branch has no shareholders and pays no dividend. "Retain 100% of earnings" really means "stop remitting profits to head office" — with tax and treaty complications the draft never addresses. Worse, a Mumbai branch's requirement is 3.5% plus whatever buffer its home regulator prescribes. Washington has just eased its own requirements, which means India's effective floor for a foreign branch has loosened without anyone in Mumbai deciding anything. A domestic override, or simply a floor beneath the borrowed number, would keep the judgement where it belongs.

Finally, the Bank of England is consulting on a lower floor paired with a buffer that can be switched off in a downturn, freeing banks to lend rather than hoard. Given the RBI's evident thinking on flexibility, the same instinct applied to buffers is a natural next question.

The verdict

The direction is undeniably right. The RBI isn't reinventing the wheel; it's enforcing global standards while its peers negotiate exemptions from them, and that stubbornness is worth its weight in gold. The unfinished business is what a consultation exists to surface.

As Archimedes might observe, a well-placed lever stabilises a structure as easily as it topples one. The RBI has built a sturdy fulcrum. It just needs to check where its thumb is.

Inclusion doesn't trickle down from productivity boom, it has to be engineered into it; India also needs to build livelihood systems & focus on districts for development

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Household savings

Apropos of "Tap household savings for growth" (FE, August 26), Indian households are shifting their savings from traditional bank deposits and physical assets towards market-linked financial assets such as mutual funds. The surge in investor base and drop in deposit share in recent times are testimony to this. However, a lot still needs to be done because physical assets like real estate and gold still command around 70% of household savings. Schools, colleges, workplaces, banks, and all digital platforms should explain compounding, risk diversification, and inflation in layman terms. Preferential tax treatment for long-term investments in equity mutual funds and regular SIPs should be the order of the day. Risks associated with fixed deposits and mutual funds should be explained by banks, post offices, and financial intermediaries, especially in tier-II and -III cities. —Bal Govind, Noida

H-1B fee fears

Apropos of "H-1B fee plan threatens IT playbook" (FE, August 26), the proposed US fee of $103,265 on new cap-subject H-1B petitions could alter the way Indian IT firms deploy talent in the US. While large technology firms may be able to absorb the additional cost, smaller companies and firms with large numbers of employees travelling from India could face considerable pressure. The move may encourage Indian IT to reconsider the traditional practice of sending employees to the US for short-term assignments. More projects could instead be handled by teams based in India, reducing costs while strengthening India's position as a technology and delivery hub. Companies may also become more selective in sponsoring new H-1B workers and rely increasingly on hybrid models. The proposal, however, should be examined carefully for its wider implications. Excessive costs hit affect American businesses that rely on skilled foreign workers. A balanced immigration policy is essential to protect US interests without any disruptions. —Sanjay Chopra, Mohali

AI factories are the defining infrastructure of the AI era, turning energy and data into intelligence that powers businesses, industries and countries

When knowledge travels

APURVA.AI IS BUILDING DIGITAL PEOPLE INFRASTRUCTURE FOR THE SOCIAL SECTOR

SUDHIR CHOWDHARY

A FARMER FINDS a better way to deal with drought, a village learns to manage water or a community develops ways to cope with climate shocks. Yet that knowledge often remains where it was created—in field reports, recordings or lived experience.

Bengaluru-based Apurva.ai, founded by Anand Rajan and backed by Nandan and Rohini Nilekani, is trying to change that. Its AI-enabled suite of products brings together community voices, institutional knowledge and ecosystem intelligence to help governments, NGOs and development organisations turn local experience into better decisions at scale. Rajan calls it “Digital People Infrastructure”, with community voices at the heart of systems change.

The parallel Rajan draws is with UPI. Its significance was not merely that it made payments easier; it created common infrastructure on which banks, fintechs and businesses could build. Rajan believes social sector could benefit from a similar layer.

One of Apurva.ai’s projects is with the Foundation for Ecological Security, helping create trusted knowledge infrastructure by bringing together curated experiences from locals working on shared challenges around land, water, biodiversity and livelihoods. Community members could ask questions in their native language and receive grounded responses from other members’ lived experiences rather than a generic AI response. This enables contextual, trusted peer-to-peer learning and

SHARED INTELLIGENCE

- Apurva.ai uses AI to connect organisations with knowledge and insights
- It retains context, turning fragmented experiences into intelligence for better decisions
- Projects with Foundation for Ecological Security and Tamil Nadu farmers enable peer-to-peer learning
- Platform’s larger aim is to bring community voices into decisions at scale

ANAND RAJAN
FOUNDER, APURVA.AI

Shared, public-good infrastructure can allow organisations to build on what already exists and focus on solving the problems they know best shows how AI can help communities learn from one another at scale.

Likewise in Tamil Nadu, the ministry of agriculture & farmers welfare, as a prototype, deployed Apurva.ai to document farmers’ innovations, make that knowledge accessible across languages and enable farmers to learn from one another.

In partnership with SELCO Foundation and WASSAN, it has developed Millet Mentor AI, to train millet entrepreneurs, farmer-producer organisations, SHGs and processors. With Dasra, Apurva.ai is working across documents, portfolio data and conversations to help teams retrieve institutional knowledge and surface insights without manually shifting through large volumes of material.

The work is expanding beyond India, across Central and South America, Africa and Asia-Pacific. Its partnership with Rare, an international environmental non-profit, captures and analyses community feedback, including interviews, to understand how people experience climate events and interventions.

The geography may change, but the problem remains: those closest to an issue often have the richest context, while decision-makers struggle to access it. “The greatest value is not automation,” Rajan says. “It is shortening the distance between what people are experiencing and the decisions being made about them.”

That ambition is still being tested. But if a farmer’s experience can help another farmer, institutional knowledge can be put to use, and community feedback can shape a programme in time, AI becomes more than a productivity tool.

AI is reshaping the entry point to careers

KARAN MAHADIK

AMID WARNINGS OF an AI-driven jobs apocalypse, there is mounting evidence to suggest that a senior professional with experience, status, and a deep social network may be relatively safe from being replaced by AI. A young college graduate vying for an entry-level job, on the other hand, may face a very different reality.

New research from economists at Stanford University suggests that AI is accelerating the loss of entry-level jobs in some fields. An August 2026 paper provides fresh data that holds up employment trends first identified for entry-level workers last year.

Employment among workers aged 22 to 25 in the most AI-exposed occupations is now 19% below that of their peers in less-exposed fields.

The researchers traced the divide to lower hiring rates for entry-level workers in AI-impacted fields, with the impact primarily manifesting as fewer jobs rather than lower wages. Among workers aged 22 to 25, employment in the top 40% of AI-impacted jobs fell 11%, while employment in the 60% of jobs with the least AI impact grew 10%. The findings are based on anonymised, high-frequency payroll data aggregated by HR management firm ADP.

Researchers also rated occupations’ exposure to AI disruption using measures including the Anthropic Economic Index, which tracks how occupations use Claude in everyday work. They highlighted jobs requiring heavily codified knowledge that can be taught through education, textbooks or written procedures. Jobs involving practice, mentorship and repeated exposure to real situations are more likely to see AI tools complement workers rather than replace them.

The study found that higher education may serve as a buffer against AI’s employment effects, with more muted differences between AI-exposed and less-exposed occupations. The bigger concern may not be an immediate jobs apocalypse, but a shrinking entry point into professional careers as companies use AI to automate tasks traditionally assigned to junior employees.

The new software equation

FOR DECADES, SOFTWARE engineering evolved through incremental improvements. Faster development cycles, cloud infrastructure and automation helped organisations build software more efficiently, but the fundamentals remained unchanged. Humans defined requirements, wrote code and managed delivery, while technology supported the process.

Artificial intelligence is changing that equation. The conversation often focuses on productivity: AI can generate code, automate testing and accelerate routine tasks. What makes this moment different is that AI is beginning to execute parts of the software development lifecycle itself. Software engineering is moving from an AI-assisted model to an AI-native one.

As machines take on more execution, the developer’s value shifts towards defining problems and ensuring outcomes. Competitive advantage will depend less on coding ability and more on judgement: translating business intent into outcomes.

Intent, however, is not something a machine can reliably act on by itself. It must be expressed through specifications, supplied with the right context and bounded by constraints. Two disciplines are emerging to enable this. Context engineering gives AI domain knowledge, business context, reference patterns and access to tools. Harness engineering establishes architectural and design guardrails, security boundaries, testing and evaluation loops, orchestration and human review that determine what an AI system can produce.

For leaders, the challenge is how to adopt it responsibly. Many organisations still approach AI through isolated experiments, creating pockets of productivity without a strategic framework. As AI-generated outputs become more prevalent, quality, security, reliability, compliance and auditability become critical.

Leaders therefore need a structured way to determine where AI creates value, where governance is required and where the organisation is ready. Organisations should assess adoption across development workflows, quality assurance, workforce readiness and the level of autonomy assigned to AI systems.

The organisations that derive the greatest value from AI will be those that adopt it thoughtfully. Success will depend on balancing innovation with governance, automation with accountability, and speed with quality. AI-native engineering must move beyond coding to governed agents across the full software lifecycle.

This requires checks and balances to prevent technical debt, quality erosion and architecture drift. Enterprises will need governed agent and skill marketplaces to standardise reusable capabilities and approved patterns, while managing AI consumption, model selection and tool sprawl. The journey must be measurable through indicators of speed, quality, cost, risk reduction and business outcomes. The opportunity is not simply to build software faster, but to redesign software engineering around an operating model in which intelligent systems and human expertise work together. The leaders of the next decade will not be distinguished by how much AI they deploy, but by how effectively they govern and orchestrate it.

In the AI-native era, competitive advantage will belong to organisations that design systems for humans and AI to build together.

Explainer

● What has the US proposed?

THE US DEPARTMENT of Homeland Security (DHS) has proposed to levy a new six-figure fee on all fresh H-1B visa petitions. The fee — a steep $103,265 — would be payable at the time of filing for all H-1B cap-subject petitions (annual 65,000 visas under the regular cap) plus the 20,000 visas for foreign workers with a US master’s degree or higher. Cap-exempt H-1B petitions, including petitions filed by institutions of higher education, affiliated nonprofit organisations, nonprofit research organisations and governmental research organisations are not covered by this proposal and it would not automatically apply to every H-1B extension or transfer petition. This is a proposed employer-side fee and companies sponsoring any new foreign worker will have to pay this fee. The fee would be in addition to all other applicable fees or payments.

The H-1B visa is valid for three years and can be renewed for another three years; after that it can be extended an unlimited number of times if the visa holder is waiting for a green card. The typical fees for the H-1B visas ranged between $2,000 and $5,000 during the Biden administration.

● What does this mean for visa seekers from India?

MORE THAN 70% of H-1B visa applicants are Indian nationals. The proposed hike may force Indian IT services companies to rethink their strategy of moving staff trained in India to the US for two-three year assignments, while making them more selective about the talent they deploy onsite. Large technology firms may

BORDER CONTROL

How US hopes to deter foreign workers with steep H-1B visa fee

The Trump administration, on Monday, made it much costlier for employers in the US to hire skilled foreign workers by proposing a $103,265 fee for H-1B visas. Banasree Purkayastha looks at what this could mean for Indian professionals seeking jobs in the US and the potential legal challenges to the proposal have the financial capacity to absorb the additional cost for specialised or senior talent, but could still become more selective about new sponsorships. Industry body Nasscom has urged the US to weigh the H-1B programme’s role in addressing skill shortages there. Meanwhile, Indian-American advocacy group Foundation for India and Indian Diaspora Studies said the additional fee could make legitimate hiring economically impractical and push high-value US jobs overseas. It could choke cash-strapped startups, while firms hiring thousands of H-1B workers could face huge additional costs, it said in a statement.

OF H-1B VISA APPLICANTS ARE FROM INDIA

US EMPLOYERS REGISTERED FOR ABOUT 344,000 H-1B VISAS IN 2025, MORE THAN 25% DOWN COMPARED TO 2024, AS PER USCIS DATA

● What rationale has the DHS given?

THE LATEST PROPOSAL is a fresh attempt by the Donald Trump administration to make it prohibitively costly for US employers to bring foreign workers into the country. A federal court in June had struck down an earlier attempt through a Presidential proclamation to put a $100,000 fee on visas. Unlike the earlier measure, the new fee is being proposed by the DHS through formal rule-making under its fee-setting authority. The DHS has said the fee would serve as a dedicated revenue mechanism to help recover a portion of the government’s costs of administering the lawful immigration system, covering the ambit of activities by the DHS, US Departments of Justice, State and Labour. It estimates that the federal government spends about $8.78 billion every year for running the immigration system. Assuming 85,000 cap-subject H-1B petitions annually, that would mean $103,265 per petition: the exact fee that the DHS is now proposing to impose on these visas.

● Will it face legal challenges?

WHILE IT SEEMS the Trump administration is on a stronger footing this time round, immigration lawyers say the proposal would face legal challenges. They believe that the DHS cannot impose fees, taxes or other means to generate revenue for the US without permission from Congress. The Hill quoted David Bier of the Cato Institute saying that even if the new fee did raise revenue, that would not make it legal because immigration fees can only be imposed to recover the costs of adjudication and naturalisation services. “And because this is a filing fee, employers would have to pay it with no guarantee that the US Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS) will approve the petition. Almost no one will risk more than $100,000 with no guarantee of approval,” Bier told The Hill. The first fee had led to a $28 million loss in revenue. The US government itself had told the federal court that the $100,000 fee was ‘arguably prohibitive’ and ‘does not raise revenue,’ he added.

● Has H-1B applications fallen recently?

LAST YEAR’S FEE hike had discouraged H-1B visa requests. According to an Al Jazeera report, as of February 15, USCIS had received from 70 employers just 85 payments of the $100,000 fee. Trump and other H-1B critics have said that companies abuse the system by underpaying foreign workers for jobs that they could hire for locally, but at steeper salaries. “Given that demand for H-1B workers greatly exceeds the statutory cap, this fee could also have the indirect benefit of better protecting the wages and job opportunities of US workers, as the H-1B program is intended to do,” the DHS said in its proposed regulation. US employers last year registered for about 344,000 H-1B visas, 25% less than that in 2024, and fewer than half of the 794,000 visas sought in 2023, as per USCIS data. Nasscom has said the number of H-1B workers employed by Indian IT companies has fallen sharply over the past five years as firms expanded their local US workforce.

'Misuse of power': SC judge seeks transfer of HC justice

ANANTHAKRISHNAN G & HAMZA KHAN
New Delhi, Jaipur, August 26

INA HIGHLY unusual development, Justice Sandeep Mehta of the Supreme Court wrote three letters to Chief Justice of India Surya Kant earlier this month, seeking the transfer of Justice SP Sharma, Acting Chief Justice of Rajasthan High Court, to another High Court and the appointment of a new Chief Justice.

In his letters to the CJI — which were written on August 2, August 10 and August 17 and also copied to other members of the Supreme Court Collegium — Justice Mehta accused Justice Sharma of "misuse of powers" and said he had received "several complaints" which "raise doubts" on the Acting CJ's "integrity". Justice Mehta, who also hails from Rajasthan, requested that Justice Sharma be "forthwith transferred out of the State looking to his unbecoming conduct" and that not doing so would be "wholly against the interest of the institution".

Phone calls to the Registrar General of the Rajasthan High Court for comment did not elicit a response.

Incidentally, on Tuesday, Ranjeet Joshi, president of the Rajasthan High Court Advocates Association of Jodhpur, also wrote to the CJI, urging him to consider the transfer of Justice Sharma "outside the state of Rajasthan... so that a harmonious atmosphere can be re-established between the Bar and the Bench". Seeking the appointment of a permanent Chief Justice, Joshi said, "The lack of communication and treatment of advocates is leading to frequent disagreements and conflicts between the Bar and the Bench, which is detrimental to the smooth functioning of the Bar and the Bench. Furthermore, there are also issues regarding the basic needs of advocates, such as providing small chambers/meeting spaces (e.g., 10x10 feet tin sheds), for which the expected cooperation is not being received, due to which there is dissatisfaction among the advocates."

Justice Mehta alleged that "pursuant to taking charge as the Acting Chief Justice of the Rajasthan High Court, Mr. Justice Sharma has exhibited total lack of leadership qualities and behaviour unbecoming of a leader of the institution on more than one occasions."

Why global competitiveness now runs through India

■ RICKARD GUSTAFSON

DURING MY VISITS to our engineering centres and operations in India, I am constantly struck by how seamlessly discussions move between precision mechanical systems, software, data and artificial intelligence (AI). A country long viewed primarily as a manufacturing base is increasingly becoming a core hub where global industrial solutions are conceived, developed, and scaled. That shift says as much about the future of global industry as it does about India itself.

The new industrial imperative: Resilience over pure cost

For much of the past three decades, the competitive logic of global industry was straightforward: locate production where scale and cost were advantageous, build efficient supply chains and serve growing markets. While that model delivered enormous gains, the underlying conditions have changed.

Geopolitical fragmentation, energy security, technological disruption and the transition to a lower-carbon economy now force industries to optimise for something far more demanding than efficiency alone, requiring resilience without sacrificing competitiveness. Multipolarity, localisation and automation have become structural features of the current investment cycle, driven by accelerating capital deployment in power, renewables, grid infrastructure, railways, defence, and advanced technology.

Fusing physical systems with digital intelligence

This evolution changes the nature of industrial leadership. For instance, a modern wind turbine combines advanced materials, precision bearings, sensors, software, and predictive analytics. Its performance depends not on any single component, but on how these technologies operate as a unified system. The same holds true for a modern railway, a renewable power grid, or an automated production line. The factory floor has become the primary intersection of the physical and digital worlds.

In a more complex environment, competitiveness increasingly depends on an organisation's ability to reduce friction across systems, processes and value chains. That friction typically manifests as unplanned downtime, energy losses, fragmented data, disconnected decision-making, and operational inefficiency. As modern industries grow more complex, the task is to ensure that complexity does not turn into friction. And the organisations that solve this challenge will lead the market.

Redefining innovation & customer value

Achieving this requires a different model of innovation. For industrial companies, this means connecting engineering expertise, product development, operational data, and customer insights around real-world problems. This shift directly reflects changing customer priorities.

Having worked closely with customers across manufacturing, mobility, renewable energy, and infrastructure, I see that reliability, uptime, energy productivity and asset life matter just as much as individual product specifications. Technologies create true value only when they improve tangible outcomes such as sensors that prevent failures, AI that supports better engineering decisions, and digital tools that eliminate waste.

Sustainability as a core competitive driver

This is where sustainability

becomes inseparable from competitiveness. Extending the useful life of equipment, using less energy for the same output, predicting maintenance before failure and reducing unnecessary material consumption are simultaneously economic and environmental gains. In industrial operations, the most sustainable solution is almost always the most productive one. Similarly, innovation that enables industry to do more with fewer resources will prove far more durable than treating sustainability as a compliance obligation.

India matters increasingly to this industrial future because its role in the global economy is changing. The country has long been recognised as a powerful growth market and a reservoir of technological talent. It is now developing another identity: a partner in building, engineering, and increasingly innovating for global industry.

Having led an industrial company with deep roots in India, I have observed this evolution firsthand. Operations here have moved from manufacturing at scale toward direct engineering ownership and complex problem-solving for global customers.

Mamdani opposes RSS chief's NY event

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA
New York, August 26

NEW YORK CITY Mayor Zohran Mamdani has said he does not support the planned event at Madison Square Garden featuring RSS chief Mohan Bhagwat, who is scheduled to address the Indian diaspora later this week.

Mamdani, however, noted that the city may not have jurisdiction to cancel the "private" event.

Bhagwat, who arrived in the US on Tuesday, is visiting the country as part of the Rashtriya Swayamsevak Sangh's (RSS) centenary-year global outreach programme. His outreach tour also includes Canada and the UK.

In the US, he is scheduled to address a gathering of around 5,000 people at the Madison Square Garden (MSG) on August 29.

The planned appearance has drawn criticism from several civil rights organisations.

New York City Mayor Zohran Mamdani

"I don't support the rally, but I don't know if the city has any jurisdiction on cancelling a private event," Mamdani said at a press conference in New York on Tuesday, responding to a question on the RSS chief's planned event and protests against it.

The Indian-origin mayor was asked whether the MSG event should be cancelled.

Mamdani, who described himself as the first Indian-American mayor in New York City's (NYC) history, said his mother's family is still in India.

Global accountability, led from India

Increasingly, global mandates, product ownership, engineering accountability and innovation programmes are being led from India rather than merely supported from it. This shift reflects growing confidence in India's ability to shape outcomes, not just execute them.

With capital investment in India projected to rise 1.8 times by FY30 to approx $2.2 trillion* across energy, infrastructure, manufacturing and advanced technologies, the real story lies in its concurrent breadth. Power systems, transport networks, digital infrastructure and industrial capacity are advancing simultaneously, creating the exact multi-domain complexity that modern industry must learn to integrate.

Bridging research, talent, and industrial execution

India's innovation metrics highlight both current strengths and future opportunities. Ranked 38th in World Intellectual Property Organization's Global Innovation Index, India stands out as an exceptionally efficient innovator, generating strong output relative to its input base. The next leap forward will come from tightening the connections and bridging universities and factories, research and commercialisation, software and physical engineering and capital with patient experimentation. Globally, leading industrial companies are building integrated technology centres where digital, software, and AI capabilities converge to solve operational challenges. India is uniquely positioned to lead this shift, serving as a primary hub where engineering accountability and customer value are created directly.

A bilateral framework for global impact

There is also an important international dimension.

The strategic partnership between India and Sweden focused on economic security, supply chain resilience, innovation, climate, and trade provides a clear framework to double bilateral commerce and investment. The two nations offer distinct, complementary strengths: India's scale, agility, and software talent combined with Sweden's century-long tradition of industrial engineering and manufacturing excellence. The true opportunity lies in combining these strengths to address complex global industrial challenges.

India's transition to an innovation partner is creating an ecosystem where manufacturing, engineering, digital technology, and human capability continuously reinforce one another.

RISKS TO INVESTORS

1. Risk to Investors: For details refer to section titled “Risk Factors” on page 21 of the Prospectus.

- Informal farmer arrangements may lead to supply disruptions: Our Company relies on informal arrangements with farmers and does not currently execute legally enforceable contracts with them, which may result in risks relating to supply, pricing, quality and potential disputes. Any disruption in procurement or inability to meet customer requirements may adversely affect our operations, revenues and financial condition.
- Seasonal and climatic conditions may adversely affect potato yields: Our business depends on favourable seasonal and climatic conditions for cultivation of processed-grade potatoes, particularly in Gujarat. Adverse weather, pests or diseases may reduce crop yield and quality, increase procurement costs, and adversely affect our operations and financial performance.
- Concentration in Gujarat exposes us to regional business risks: Our operations are primarily concentrated in Gujarat, including cultivation, procurement, storage and supply chain activities. Regional climatic, regulatory, infrastructure or logistical disruptions in Gujarat may adversely affect our operations, supply commitments and financial performance.
- Dependence on third-party seed suppliers may disrupt operations: Our operations depend on third-party suppliers for seed potatoes, with most arrangements based on commercial understanding rather than binding long-term contracts. Delays, supply interruptions, quality issues or changes in commercial terms may affect cultivation, operations and financial performance.
- Dependence on few buyers may adversely affect our business: Our sales are concentrated among a few customers, particularly potato processing companies. Loss of key customers, reduced offtake, delayed payments or adverse changes in terms may adversely affect our revenues, cash flows and financial performance.
- Price fluctuations may adversely affect costs, margins and performance: Our seed procurement costs and processed-grade potato selling prices are subject to market and seasonal fluctuations. Such price volatility may cause margin compression, higher working capital requirements and adversely affect our financial performance.
- Dependence on a limited product portfolio may restrict growth and expose us to sector-specific risks: Our operations and revenues are concentrated on a limited number of processed-grade potato varieties. Changes in customer preferences, processing requirements or demand for these varieties may require additional investment and adversely affect our sales, margins and business growth.
- History of negative cash flows may continue in future: The Company has experienced negative cash flows from operating activities during Fiscals 2024, 2025 and 2026, with financing activities being the primary source of cash inflows during these periods. Continued negative cash flows and evolving market conditions may adversely impact the Company’s operations, liquidity and growth plans.
- Seasonality and crop cycles may cause operational fluctuations: Our operations are seasonal due to dependence on potato cultivation cycles, with plantation and harvesting activities concentrated between October and March. Seasonality may result in fluctuations in revenue, cash flows and working capital requirements, with higher cash outflows during sowing and harvesting periods. Any delays in cropping cycles, climatic variations, yield fluctuations or regional disruptions in Gujarat may adversely impact our operations, financial performance and profitability.
- Restated Financial Information prepared by Peer-Reviewed Auditors other than Statutory Auditors: Restated Financial Information as disclosed in the Offer Document is prepared by peer-reviewed auditors who are not our Statutory Auditors.
- The Issue Price is based on various factors and assumptions determined in consultation with the Lead Manager. These may not reflect the market price upon listing, which will be influenced by market conditions beyond our control.

DISASTER CLAIMS 95 LIVES SO FAR; NEARLY 500 MISSING, INCLUDING 133 INDIANS

Flash flood ravages Nepal

SHIRISH B PRADHAN
Kathmandu, August 26

AT LEAST 95 people died and nearly 500, including 133 Indians, are missing after a torrential flash flood originating in Tibet swept through central Nepal districts causing devastation in towns and villages, washing away bridges and damaging at least a dozen hydropower projects on Wednesday.

The flood surged through the Bhote Koshi River at around 9 am (local time) affecting Rasuwa and Dhading districts bordering Tibet, officials said. Situated near the Tibet border, Rasuwa is about 125 kms northeast of Kathmandu.

The flood waters then spread to Nuwakot and Chitawan districts, damaging at least four permanent bridges and few temporary ones.

According to preliminary study reports on the basis of analysis of satellite pictures, the flash flood occurred due to an ice avalanche caused by an unstable mountain rock mass lying near the Nepal-Tibet border, 20 km northeast from Tibet-Rasuwa road border area.

The massive flood entered into Trishuli river through Bhotekoshi in Timure due to the rock slide and swelling Lhende river situated in Nepal-Tibet border, said the National Disaster Risk Reduction and Management Authority (NDRRMA), Nepal.

The Kathmandu Post quoted Rijan Bhakta Kayastha, a professor at Kathmandu University and a climate researcher, as saying that an earthquake also occurred on the Tibetan side around the same time.

According to the US Geological Survey, a magnitude 4.4 earthquake struck Tibetan territory at 8:37 am, about 47 kilometres from different parts of the affected areas, according to Rajendra Prasad Dhamala, spokesperson at Bagmati Province Police Office.

Among them, 30 people are undergoing treatment at the Tribhuvan University Teaching Hospital in Kathmandu.

At least 133 Indians and 37 NRIs are among the nearly 400 persons missing.

Over and above that, 80

securitymen, including 44 Nepal Army personnel, have gone missing across various locations, Foreign Minister Shisir Khanal informed the House of Representatives.

Nepal's Flood Forecasting Division said in a post on X in the afternoon, "According to information received from the Chinese side, since the lake at the river blockage site has not yet been fully drained, the risk remains in the Bhote Koshi and Trishuli areas" and asked people to stay away from the rivers and remain in safe places.

"Even though the lake has not been fully drained at the site where the river is blocked, the risk persists in the Bhote Koshi and Trishuli areas, and people are urged to stay away from the river and remain in safe locations until the next update is issued," the NDRRMA said in a post on X later in the day. Food warning labels may change packs, not habits

● FMCG firms face a packaging, recipe reset

ASHUTOSH MISHRA
New Delhi, August 26

THE POSSIBILITY OF mandatory front-of-pack (FoP) nutrition labelling has come into sharper focus after the Supreme Court questioned the Centre over the delay in introducing warning labels for packaged foods high in sugar, salt and saturated fat, a move that could force food companies to rethink packaging, product claims, advertising and, eventually, formulations. However, the impact on consumer buying behaviour is expected to be gradual as taste, price, availability and brand familiarity continue to drive food choices.

The Supreme Court on August 13 questioned the Food Safety and Standards Authority of India (FSSAI) over the delay in acting on FoP warning labels and gave the Centre two weeks to place its final decision on record. The court also warned that it could issue directions itself if there was no action. The issue comes amid wider regulatory scrutiny of how packaged foods are presented to consumers, with FSSAI also taking action against misleading or inadequately substantiated claims.

The regulator has specifically advised food businesses against using "100%" on food labels, packaging and promotional material, saying the term is undefined under the current regulatory framework and could create a misleading impression for consumers. A mandatory FoP regime would add another layer of scrutiny by making nutritional information more prominent and potentially drawing attention to products high in sugar, salt or saturated fat.

For companies, the first impact is likely to be on packaging,

THE BIG BITE

■ SC pushes Centre on FoP labels

■ Centre gets two weeks to respond

■ Warnings target sugar, salt, saturated fat

■ FoP rules could reshape FMCG strategies

■ Packaging may need immediate changes

■ Existing packaging could become obsolete

■ Companies may face higher packaging costs

■ Health claims face greater scrutiny

■ '100%' claims already under FSSAI scanner

■ Brand positioning could come under pressure

■ Advertising strategies may need revision

ing, brand positioning and advertising. Brands that currently use broad health, nutrition or superiority claims would have to ensure that those claims are supported by the actual nutritional and ingredient profile of their products.

"If the front of package labels get implemented, FMCG companies might have to change their strategies substantially," Sachin Bobade, FMCG expert and head of research at Monarch Network Capital, said. Headed that the immediate impact would be on brand and product positioning and advertising expenditure, as companies would have to align their communication with what is actually contained in the product.

Packaging could also become an immediate cost for companies with existing inventory. Packs are generally designed and procured well ahead of production, raising the possibility of waste and write-offs if new labelling requirements are introduced before existing material is exhausted.

Manoj Verma, COO of Bikaai Foods International, said the impact would span packaging, formulation and branding, with packaging and brand communication likely to face the earliest pressure. A clear implementation window would therefore be important.

The bigger question is whether FoP warnings eventually change what companies put inside the packet. Products carrying warnings for high sugar, salt or saturated fat could encourage companies to gradually improve their nutritional profiles. Verma said companies would evaluate opportunities for reformulation, but changes would have to preserve taste, texture and familiarity, particularly in traditional and ethnic snacks. He favoured progressive reformulation through gradual reductions, better ingredients and improved processing technologies.

For now, however, companies are unlikely to expect an immediate or sharp change in volumes. Nutrition information may have a greater influence on frequently consumed products, particularly when parents choose food for children or consumers are actively looking for healthier options, but packaged-food purchases remain strongly influenced by taste, affordability, availability, occasion, habit and brand trust.

Bobade said consumer behaviour would change gradually, with the short-term impact more likely to be visible in costs, margins and marketing than in volumes. "A consumer won't change their habits all of a sudden, just because this is coming now," he said.

RISK TO INVESTORS

For details, refer to section titled "Risk Factors" on page 20 of the RHP.

1. Customer concentration: Our Company generates a significant portion of its revenue from its top 10 customers. Our top 10 customers accounted for ₹12,460.30 million, ₹8,839.29 million and ₹6,901.89 million representing 64.67%, 63.27% and 67.36% of our revenue from operations, based on our Restated Financial Information for the Fiscal 2026, Fiscal 2025 and Fiscal 2024 respectively. Our Company does not enter into long term contracts with our customers and any decision by these customers to reduce or terminate their business with us could significantly impact our business, financial condition and results of operations. The revenues generated from our top 1, top 5 and top 10 customers in Fiscal 2026, Fiscal 2025 and Fiscal 2024, is set out below.

(in ₹ million, except percentage data)

Customer concentration	Fiscal 2026		Fiscal 2025		Fiscal 2024
	Amount	% of total revenue from operations	Amount	% of total revenue from operations	Amount	% of total revenue from operations
Top 1	3,236.54	16.80	1,981.81	14.19	1,612.21	15.74
Top 5	8,613.08	44.70	6,398.83	45.80	5,376.88	52.48
Top 10	12,460.30	64.67	8,839.29	63.27	6,901.89	67.36

2. Product revenue concentration risk: Our revenue from operations is significantly concentrated in certain products. Revenue from operations from the sale of vaddanam and CNC machine cut bangles together accounted for a substantial portion of our revenue from operations during Fiscal 2026, Fiscal 2025 and Fiscal 2024. Any reduction in demand for, cancellation of purchase orders relating to, or inability to sell these products in the quantities or at the prices currently anticipated by us could adversely affect our business, cash flows, financial condition and results of operations. The revenue from operations and corresponding percentage contribution from the sale of vaddanam and CNC machine cut bangles for the relevant periods are set out below:

(in ₹ millions, except percentage data)

Particulars	Fiscal 2026		Fiscal 2025		Fiscal 2024

- 3. Revenue concentration (geography wise): A significant portion of our revenue from operations is generated from the South Indian states of Andhra Pradesh, Telangana, Karnataka, Tamil Nadu and Kerala. For Fiscal 2026, Fiscal 2025 and Fiscal 2024, our revenue from operations generated from Southern India amounted to ₹18,181.87 million, ₹13,738.07 million and ₹10,199.85 million respectively, representing 94.37%, 98.33% and 99.55% of total revenue from operations for the respective periods. Accordingly, our business is highly concentrated in these markets, and any adverse economic, social, political, regulatory or market developments, or changes in consumer preferences, in these regions could adversely affect our business, financial condition, cash flows and results of operations.
- 4. Inventory management risk: Our results of operations are dependent on our ability to effectively manage our inventory. Our inventories as of Fiscal 2026, Fiscal 2025 and Fiscal 2024 were ₹873.62 million, ₹827.87 million and ₹722.56 million, respectively, representing 4.53%, 5.93% and 7.05% of our revenue from operations for the respective periods. Any inability to accurately forecast customer demand, preferences and design trends or maintain optimal inventory levels could result in excess or insufficient inventory, affecting our ability to meet customer demand. Further, if we are unable to sell our inventory, we may be required to recycle it, resulting in material losses and additional manufacturing costs. Any decline in gold prices could also reduce the value of our inventory and adversely affect our business, financial condition, cash flows and results of operations.
- 5. Volatility in gold prices and dependence on the availability of gold bullion: Gold bullion is our key raw material, and our business is dependent on the timely availability of gold bullion of the requisite quality and at commercially acceptable prices. The prices and availability of gold bullion are subject to various factors beyond our control, including general economic conditions, foreign exchange rates, import duties, competition and production levels. Gold prices have remained volatile, with average prices ranging from ₹58,738 to ₹154,039 per 10 grams across Fiscal 2024 to Fiscal 2026. Any significant increase or volatility in gold prices or any disruption in the availability of gold bullion, could increase our procurement costs, adversely affect our margins and cash flows, and have a material adverse effect on our business, financial condition and results of operations.
- 6. Supplier concentration: We depend on certain key suppliers for procurement of gold bullion, which is our key raw material. Our top 10 suppliers accounted for ₹16,021.93 million, ₹10,845.93 million and ₹9,582.83 million representing 91.81%, 82.32% and 96.89% of our total purchase based on our Restated Financial Information for the Fiscal 2026, Fiscal 2025 and Fiscal 2024 respectively. We procure gold bullions from RBI registered bullion bank, independent bullion dealers, exchanges from customers and import through India International Bullion Exchange (IIBX), with whom we do not have any long-term contracts. Any disruption in our relationships with these suppliers, failure by any of them to fulfil their obligations in a timely manner, or any adverse regulatory or policy changes affecting the procurement or import of gold bullion could adversely affect the availability and cost of our key raw material and, consequently, our business, financial condition, cash flows and results of operations.
- 7. Dependency on third party karigars: We are dependent on third party karigars for the production and manufacturing of all our products. We have not entered into formal agreements with some of the karigars. As on June 30, 2026, we have a pool of 41 karigars, out of which, we have entered into formal agreements with 29 karigars. Any discontinuation or interruption of services by these karigars, disruptions at their production or manufacturing facilities, or failure to adhere to applicable quality standards could adversely affects our reputation, business and financial condition.
- 8. Our business and demand for our products are dependent on the performance of our customers: We supply our products to jewellery retail chains and standalone stores, which sell them to their respective retail customers. Accordingly, demand for our products is dependent on our customers' ability to successfully market and sell their products. Any decline in demand due to increased competition, seasonality, loss of market share, macroeconomic conditions, regulatory actions, litigation, price fluctuations or other factors could reduce orders placed by our customers and adversely affect our business, financial condition, cash flows and results of operations.
- 9. We have experienced negative cash flows from operating activities: Our Company had negative cash flows from its operating activities in the current and previous periods, as per the Restated Financial Information. Net cash (used in) / generated from operating activities for Fiscal 2026, Fiscal 2025 and Fiscal 2024 were ₹(147.30) million, ₹(98.64) million and ₹48.45 million, respectively. Negative cash flows may adversely affect our financial condition, results of operations and prospects.
- 10. Indebtedness Risk: As of July 31, 2026, our total sanctioned and outstanding indebtedness was ₹1,150.00 million and ₹1,274.07 million, respectively. Conditions and restrictions imposed on us by the agreements governing our indebtedness could adversely affect our ability to operate our business.

- 11. Past regulatory non-compliances: Our Company has, in the past, experienced delays in filing certain statutory and regulatory forms with Registrar of Companies. These delays include delayed filings of Form CHG-1 in relation to the creation and modification of charges for Fiscal Years 2017, 2018, 2019 and 2022, as well as delays in filing various forms relating to the appointment and resignation of statutory auditors. Although such filings have been made subsequently, any past or future non-compliance with applicable statutory or regulatory requirements may expose our Company to regulatory proceedings, penalties, fines or other actions, which could adversely affect our business, financial condition and results of operations.
- 12. Dependence on personal guarantees provided by our Promoters for borrowings: Our Promoters have provided personal guarantees for loan facilities obtained by our Company. Further, our Promoter, Chairman and Managing Director, Ashish Agarwal, in his capacity as a guarantor, has mortgaged his property, being the Registered Office of our Company, in favour of Yes Bank Limited. Any failure or default by our Company to repay such loan facilities in accordance with the terms and conditions of the financing documents could trigger repayment obligations on our Promoters, which may affect their ability to effectively service such obligations. Further any revocation or withdrawal of the personal guarantees by our Promoters could adversely affects our business, operations, financial condition and cash flows.
- 13. Security risks: We maintain significant quantities of inventory of raw material and finished goods at our Registered Office, sales offices and with karigars, as well as expose such inventory during the transit and delivery of our products to customers. Given the high value and portability of our products, our inventory is exposed to risks of theft, fraud, loss, damage, misappropriation and employee or third-party negligence. Any such incident, particularly during transportation or while our products are in the custody of karigars or other service providers, could result in financial losses, disruption to our operations, claims from customers or other counterparties, and reputational damage, which could adversely affect our business, financial condition, cash flows and results of operations.
- 14. The Price/Earnings ratio based on diluted EPS for the Financial Year 2026 for the Company at the higher end of the price band (i.e., ₹177) is at high as 13.85 as compared to average Price/Earnings ratio of industry peer group is 23.92.
