Karnataka outfits call

BENGALURU

Various organisations in Karnataka have called a State bandh on August 13 in protest against the Cauvery Water Management Authority (CWMA)'s directive to release water to Tamil Nadu.

On Thursday, the CWMA upheld the Cauvery Water Regulation Committee's (CWRC) earlier order to Karnataka to release 3,500 cusecs of Cauvery water to Tamil Nadu for 15 days. Citing poor storage in its reservoirs, Karnataka has been reiterating its inability to release water to Tamil Nadu.

A decision to call the bandh was taken at a meeting of various Kannada organisations held in Bengaluru on Friday under the leadership of veteran leader and former MLA Vatal Nagaraj.

Chief Minister D.K. Shivakumar appealed to the organisations not to go

In view of the tense atmosphere in the State, Mr. Shivakumar appealed to his Tamil Nadu counterpart, C. Joseph Vijay, to put off his visit to Karnataka.

Trump touts Gaza deal,
 Hamas seeks Israeli exit

U.S. leader hails 'historic agreement' on disarmament; Palestinian militant group acknowledges deal, says it will abandon weapons only if Israel withdraws troops and 'stops killing Palestinians'

Stanly Johny

U.S. President Donald Trump on Friday announced that the Board of Peace, an organisation Washington established to oversee a Gaza ceasefire, has reached a "historic agreement" for the disarmament of Hamas and other militant organisations in the Palestinian enclave.

"Today, the Board of Peace reached a historic agreement for the complete disarmament of Hamas and all other armed groups in Gaza. This is a monumental step toward lasting peace and security," Mr. Trump wrote in a social media post.

Hamas, the Palestinian militant group that runs parts of Gaza, made an official statement acknowledging the deal, but added that it would abandon weapons and end its rule only if Israel, which currently occupies more than 60% of the enclave, withdraws its troops and "stops killing Palestinians".

Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu did not immediately respond to Mr. Trump's announcement, but National Security Minister Itamar Ben Gvir said the deal was "unacceptable". He said the "assassinations in Gaza must continue". Israeli media quoted "a senior official" as saying in a statement that "there will be no IDF withdrawal from Gaza without the genuine disarmament of Hamas".

According to Mr. Trump, the agreement is a step towards Gaza finally being governed by a new Palestinian government in coordination with the Board of Peace. "At the same time, Israel will have the security it deserves, with Gaza no longer used as a base for terror attacks," he wrote.

"This is a major milestone in the implementation of the Trump 20-Point Plan. The agreement will be carried out in carefully structured phases," Mr. Trump said on Friday. "As disarmament is completed, Israeli forces will withdraw, and the International Stabilization Force will work with a new Palestinian police force to take responsibility for Gaza being safe for its residents and its neighbours."

The U.S. leader thanked Egypt, Qatar, and Turkiye for their mediation efforts.

Suspected terrorists shot dead a migrant worker and injured another in a targeted attack in south Kashmir's Kulgam on Friday evening. It is the second targeted attack in the region since July 22.

A senior police officer told The Hindu that two workers were fired upon in Kilam. "One died and another was being operated," said the officer.

Officials said the injured person was taken to the Government Medical College, Anantnag, "for advanced treatment".

Preliminary reports suggested that suspected terrorists fired at the two workers after sundown and fled the spot. Security forces have cordoned off the attack site and a search operation was on to trace the attackers.

Lok Sabha passes Births and Deaths Bill amid protests over police crackdown

The Hindu Bureau
NEW DELHI

The Lok Sabha on Friday passed the Registration of Births and Deaths (Amendment) Bill, 2026 without debate amid loud protests by the Opposition against the police crackdown on student protesters at Jantar Mantar on July 20.

The Opposition protests began as soon as the House convened at 11 a.m., forcing Speaker Om Birla to adjourn it till noon. The ruckus continued when the House reassembled.

BJP MP Dilip Saikia, who was in the chair, asked for listed papers to be laid on the table. These included grant of deadline extension to the Joint Parliamentary Committee examining the Constitution (130th Amendment) Bill, 2025 for submission of report. The Constitution Amendment Bill proposes the automatic removal of Ministers, Chief Minister, or Prime Minister if they are arrested and held in custody for 30 days on serious criminal charges carrying a jail term of five years or more.

Following this, Minister of State for Home Nityanand Rai put up the Registration of Births and Deaths (Amendment) Bill for discussion. It seeks to make delayed registration of births and deaths more stringent by requiring an order from a judicial magistrate (first class) for registrations done after two years.

Unfortunate, says Rijiju
The Opposition MPs then trooped into the Well of the House demanding the presence of Home Minister Amit Shah even as Mr. Saikia called out the names of MPs listed to speak during the debate. The Bill was passed by voice vote amid sloganeering.

Parliamentary Affairs Minister Kiren Rijiju said the passage of the Bill in this manner was unfortunate. "Please do not repeat this in the future. People who sent you to Parliament will seek answers from you," he said.

Stone-laden truck: Cong.
flags differing police claims

The Hindu Bureau
NEW DELHI

The Congress on Friday flagged conflicting claims made by the Delhi police and their counsel in the Delhi High Court regarding the presence of a truck loaded with stones and bricks near Jantar Mantar, the protest site from where the Cockroach Janta Party (CJP) called for a march to Parliament on July 20 over the NEET paper leak row, as a "major contradiction".

Indian Youth Congress (IYC) national president Uday Bhanu Chib said initially the truck was near Jantar Mantar on July 20, but by afternoon was parked outside the IYC office on Raisina Marg. "The government counsel stated [on July 22] in the High Court that the truck was linked to the protesters. On July 28, Delhi Police tweeted that the truck had been seized following an accident. This in itself is a major contradiction," he said.

The Deputy Commissioner of Police, New Delhi, said claims alleging that the truck was deliberately deployed by the police were false and misleading.

Four-storey building collapse leaves 10 dead in Maharashtra

Rescue bid: NDRF and civil defence personnel carrying out search operations in the Balaji Nagar area of Bhiwandi in Maharashtra's Thane district. EMMANUAL YOGINI

Chinmay Gaikwad
MUMBAI

At least 10 people were killed and three injured after a four-storey residential building, declared "dangerous" by the civic body in September 2020 and undergoing illegal repairs, collapsed in Bhiwandi city in Maharashtra late on Thursday night.

Residents of the 48-room Kohinoor Building, located 50 km from Mumbai, said they heard "loud cracking sounds" around 9 p.m. Local people began evacuating the families and around 30 to 35 people escaped through the back gate.

Rescue teams from the National Disaster Response Force, Thane Disaster Response Force, and the fire brigade launched rescue operations, deploying heavy machinery and sniffer dogs to locate survivors.

A three-year-old girl was among the 10 rescued from the rubble of the structure built in 2010.

An NDRF official said 10 bodies were recovered from the site and appealed to the public to inform authorities about any missing persons. "If no one comes forward, we will stop rescue operation after the commissioner's order," the official said.

Five of the deceased have been identified as Shamim Shaikh, 32, Ranjeet Singh, 45, Miraj Rasul Shaikh, 34, Santosh Kumar Pandey, 42, and Shamim Ansari, 30.

Repeated notices

The Bhiwandi Nizampur City Municipal Corporation said that after repeated notices, eviction orders were issued to the residents on June 5, and electricity and water connections were snapped. The owners of the building began structural repair work without obtaining permission from the civic body. On Thursday, hours before the collapse, an inspection team led by an assistant municipal commissioner found the structure unstable and evacuated around 40 residents and labourers.

Officials said the contractor and the workers were instructed to stop the repair work but they ignored the orders. Some residents also refused to vacate the building. A witness said the contractor had removed two pillars during repair work.

The civic body's commissioner ordered criminal proceedings and action against the contractor.

Maharashtra Water Resources and Disaster Management Minister Girish Mahajan visited the site and announced financial assistance of ₹5 lakh for families of each victim.

Chief Minister Devendra Fadnavis expressed grief over the incident and directed officials to register a case and take action against those responsible.

Prime Minister Narendra Modi announced an ex gratia of ₹2 lakh for families of the deceased and ₹50,000 for the injured. "Pained to hear about the loss of lives due to the collapse of a building in Thane, Maharashtra," he said in a post on X.

Tahir Hussain, 4 others get life term for murder of IB officer during 2020 riots

Court denies police plea seeking death for ex-AAP councillor saying prosecution failed to establish that convicts are beyond reformation; all five awarded separate terms for offences such as rioting

Ishita Mishra
NEW DELHI

A Delhi court on Friday sentenced former Aam Aadmi Party (AAP) councillor Tahir Hussain and four others to life imprisonment for the murder of Intelligence Bureau staffer Ankit Sharma during the 2020 north-east Delhi riots, describing the killing as one of “utmost brutality”. The court also observed that the victim was targeted “solely on account of his religion”.

“The crime was committed during the communal violence that erupted in the wake of the protests against CAA/NRC. The manner in which it was committed was of the utmost brutality. The victim was sucked in by the murderous mob, baying for blood, solely on account of his religion,” Additional Sessions Judge Parveen Singh of the Karkardooma Courts noted.

‘Rarest of rare’ category Even as the court noted that the murder reflected “barbarity of immense magnitude” and hence satisfied the “crime test” for the “rarest of rare” category, it declined capital punishment to the accused after finding that the prosecution had failed to establish that the convicts were beyond the possibility of reformation. The court also held that although the prosecution had established the convicts’ guilt with the aid of Section 149 of the Indian Penal Code (IPC), no specific fatal act had been attributed to any individual accused during the murder. The absence of an individually proved role, the court said, constituted a “huge mitigation” while considering whether the death penalty should be imposed. The judge also rejected the prosecution’s attempt to rely at the sentencing stage on allegations that Hussain had instigated or led the mob, observing that those allegations had not been proved during the trial. The former AAP councillor has already been acquitted of conspiracy and abetment charges. In another notable observation, the court treated the poor educational background of four of the five convicts as a mitigating circumstance in the specific context of the riots. At the same time, it emphasised that they must face “the full force of the law”. All five convicts – Hussain, Nazim, Kasim, Javed and Anas – were sentenced to life imprisonment for murder under Section 302 read with Section 149 of the IPC. They were also awarded separate prison terms for rioting, promoting enmity, unlawful assembly and abduction, with all sentences directed to run concurrently. The court also ordered payment of compensation to the victim’s family from the fines imposed on the convicts.

Reported missing The case relates to the FIR registered at the Dayalpur police station on the complaint of Sharma’s father, who reported him missing after he failed to return home from a trip to buy groceries during the riots. Sharma’s body was later recovered from a drain near Chand Bagh Pulia. In his complaint, he named Hussain and others. During the trial, which lasted over six years, the prosecution examined 91 witnesses and relied on eyewitness accounts, forensic evidence and call detail records to establish its case. In March 2023, the trial court framed charges against 11 accused, including Hussain, for rioting, murder, abduction, criminal conspiracy and promoting enmity. Of these, Hussain, Nazim, Kasim, Javed and Anas were convicted on July 14.

Triumph of justice vs Hussain a BJP man: parties trade barbs

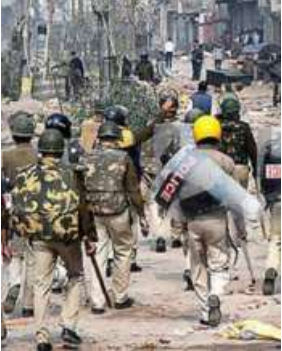

The Hindu Bureau
NEW DELHI

A war of words broke out between the ruling Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP) and the Opposition Aam Aadmi Party (AAP) on Friday following the sentencing of former AAP councillor Tahir Hussain and four others to life imprisonment for the murder of Intelligence Bureau officer Ankit Sharma during the 2020 north-east Delhi riots.

While the BJP hailed the court order for “establishing how AAP-backed miscreants spread riots”, the Opposition party hit back, claiming that Hussain had been “indirectly working for the BJP”.

Welcoming the order, Chief Minister Rekha Gupta said people of Delhi are now demanding answers from AAP. “Hussain was arrested on charges of murder, yet even after that, [AAP chief Arvind] Kejriwal and [AAP leader] Manish Sisodia stood in his support! They kept trying relentlessly to save him! Why? Will Mr. Kejriwal tell the people of Delhi? Was it under their patronage that people like Hussain conspired to incite riots? Today, justice has triumphed. This verdict further strengthens the faith of every citizen of the country in the law and the judiciary,” she posted on X.

Delhi BJP president Harsh Malhotra said, “Kejriwal should be ashamed for not only sheltering such criminals within the party but also for repeatedly using his influence to protect them. The true character of the Aam Aadmi Party is now well understood not only by the people of Delhi but also by the people of Punjab.” Delhi Law Minister Kapil Mishra said the sentencing was “the beginning of justice”.

‘BJP strategy’ Addressing a press conference, AAP’s State unit chief Saurabh Bharadwaj said his party had expelled Hussain as soon as an FIR was registered against him in the Ankit Sharma murder case. Mr. Bharadwaj said Hussain had contested the Mustafabad Assembly election last year on an All India Majlis-e-Ittehadul Muslimeen ticket as part of a “well-planned strategy by the BJP”. “There are dozens of instances where the BJP has embraced individuals involved in the most heinous crimes. In reality, Hussain was a BJP man. If anyone gained political advantage from the Delhi riots, it was the BJP,” he added.

L-G leads plantation drive in Ridge; seeks survival monitoring

The Hindu Bureau
NEW DELHI

Lieutenant-Governor Taranjit Singh Sandhu on Friday led a plantation drive organised by the Delhi Development Authority (DDA), during which more than one lakh native trees and shrubs were planted across 77 locations in the national capital.

The L-G, who is also the DDA Chairperson, directed the urban body to make such drives a regular exercise and appoint a nodal officer for each site to ensure the survival of saplings. At Kamla Nehru Ridge, Mr. Sandhu said plantation efforts should evolve into a people’s movement with greater youth participation. “Such initiatives should be driven by the youth and aimed at them,” he said, adding that the present generation has a responsibility to leave behind an ecologically richer Delhi. He also called for similar drives across other Ridge areas and urged the DDA to take a more proactive role in expanding the city’s green cover. Close to 200 people, including students, participated in the drive at Kamla Nehru Ridge. Similar drives were also held at Aravalli Biodiversity Park and Sanjay Van, featuring native species such as dhok, amaltas, peepal and neem. The events were part of the urban body’s afforestation programme and the 70 Lakh Plantation Mission, under which the DDA is tasked with planting 23 lakh saplings in Delhi.

CM Gupta distributes bicycles to over 3,000 Class 9 girls

The Hindu Bureau
NEW DELHI

The Delhi government on Friday launched the Vidya Vahini Yojana, under which more than 3,000 Class 9 girl students in government schools received bicycles. The scheme aims to improve access to education by easing travel to schools, boosting attendance and minimising dropouts. Speaking at the launch of the scheme at East Vinod Nagar, Chief Minister Rekha Gupta said that 1.4 lakh girls would receive bicycles under the scheme in multiple phases. In a post on X, Ms. Gupta stated, “These bicycles will make it easier for daughters to go to school, increase attendance, provide more opportunities for studies and sports, reduce family expenses and, above all, give a new flight to their confidence.” During the event, the CM interacted with students and spoke to them about their studies and future aspirations. Education Minister Ashish Sood said the scheme intends to help girls who struggle to continue their education due to the lack of transport.

BLOs in race against time as only 57.54% SIR forms digitised so far

Suruchi Kumari
NEW DELHI

With a week remaining for the door-to-door enumeration phase of the special intensive revision (SIR) of the electoral rolls, only 57.54% of enumeration forms have been digitised, even though 99.91% have been distributed, according to data released by the office of Chief Electoral Officer Ashok Kumar on Friday. Booth-Level Officers (BLOs) said they were struggling to meet deadlines amid a mounting workload while a citizens’ collective assisting voters alleged that many electors had not received forms despite official claims of near-complete distribution. The door-to-door verification phase, initially scheduled to end on July 29, was extended till August 8. The draft rolls will be published on August 17.

Inadequate clarity

A BLO posted in North Delhi said officials were under pressure to achieve “unrealistic” daily targets. “We are being told to get 60-70 forms completed every day. How can we ensure that every form is verified

Several people have approached our organisation saying they have never seen their BLO and have never received a form and correct in that time? Many people still do not have their forms filled. We have to help them complete those. Migrant families take much longer because addresses and records have to be verified. At the same time, we have to finish door-to-door visits,” he said. He added that the workload had begun affecting his health. “I have been taking medicines for stress for the past week on my doctor’s advice. I was experiencing an increased heartbeat and pain in my arms.”

MAANSI VERMA
Member, Voter Adhikar Manch

Another BLO said officials were grappling with anomalies in voter records without adequate clarity on how to resolve them. “If it is a simple name mismatch, we know how to deal with it. But there are cases where a voter is linked to someone else in another State or where there are other errors. Those records cannot simply be undone, so we end up searching for another family member to verify details.”

Letter to EC Voter Adhikar Manch, a citizens’ collective working on electoral rights in the Delhi-National Capital Region and assisting voters during the SIR process, has written to the Election Commission (EC) and the Delhi Chief Electoral Officer seeking clarity on issues being faced by electors. Maansi Verma, a member of the collective, said many voters claimed they had never received enumeration forms. “Several people have approached us saying they have never seen their BLO.”

In its letter, the collective stated that the process assumed every elector was digitally literate. “Enumeration forms are being signed or thumb-marked without being read to the elector, while errors in names, age and relationships are often discovered after submission,” it stated.

Delhi HC seeks police response to third bail plea by Umar Khalid

The Hindu Bureau
NEW DELHI

The Delhi High Court on Friday asked Delhi Police to respond to a plea by activist Umar Khalid seeking bail in a case related to the “larger conspiracy” behind the February 2020 north-east Delhi riots.

A Bench of Justice Prathiba M. Singh and Justice Vikas Mahajan asked Delhi Police to file its response within two weeks.

Mr. Khalid said it was his third bail application since his arrest in September 2020 and that he was seeking interim bail in the case based on similar relief given to the other co-accused by the Supreme Court.

The Bench said it will hear the plea on August 27 when the bail plea of co-accused Sharjeel Imam is also listed.

Mr. Khalid has challenged a trial court’s July 4 decision dismissing his bail application.

The Bench will hear the petition on Aug. 27 when the bail plea of co-accused Sharjeel Imam is also listed had also rejected Mr. Imam’s bail plea, and both cases could be taken up together by the Bench.

September 2020 arrest Arrested in September 2020, Mr. Khalid has been booked under the Unlawful Activities (Prevention) Act (UAPA) on allegations of being one of the “masterminds” behind the riots that left 53 people dead and over 700 injured.

Activists Sharjeel Imam and Khalid Saifi, among others, have also been booked for their alleged involvement in the ‘larger conspiracy’ case, which is being investigated by Delhi Police’s Special Cell.

On July 4, the trial court rejected Mr. Khalid’s bail application, stating that it had “no option but to follow” the Supreme Court’s January 5 order rejecting his plea for relief.

The Bihar unit of the People's Union for Civil Liberties (PUCL) on Friday sought action against the police for allegedly illegally detaining, handcuffing, and harassing its members. It claimed that the police, in particular Station House Officer (SHO) Akhilesh Kumar Mishra of the Gandhi Maidan police station, took action against its members who were raising their voice against denial of due process to detained students.

Assam flood: death toll reaches 80, over 2 lakh people hit in 8 districts

Latest fatalities reported from Sivasagar district; 21 revenue circles, 437 villages continue to be affected; 75,583 people in 112 relief camps in four districts; State govt. announces 6-month moratorium on repaying loans taken by flood-hit people

Press Trust of India
GUWAHATI

The death toll due to floods in Assam rose to 80 with two more fatalities while eight districts and 2.12 lakh people remain affected, officials said on Friday.

Officials said the latest deaths were reported from Sivasagar district.

The State government has announced a six-month moratorium on repaying all types of loans availed by the flood-affected people while also demanding a support package from the Centre for the relief and rehabilitation of people ravaged by the unprecedented deluge.

Twenty-one revenue circles and 437 villages in Golaghat, Sivasagar, Biswanath, Charaideo, Kamrup (Metropolitan), Jorhat, Dhemaji and Nagaon districts continue to be hit.

A total of 2,12,400 people have been affected, including 80,000 in Charaideo, 71,000 in Sivasagar, and 40,000 in Jorhat.

The flood situation has improved since Wednesday, when seven districts and more than three lakh people were affected. The administration is operating 112 relief camps and relief distribution centres in four districts, taking care of 75,583 affected people.

Multiple agencies such as the Army, National Disaster Response Force, State Disaster Response Force, Fire & Emergency Service, police and civil agencies are engaged in rescue and relief work.

Crop area of 17,198.09 hectares has been submerged across the State.

Embankments, roads, bridges and other infrastructure have also been damaged by floodwaters.

Meeting with bankers
Meanwhile, Chief Minister Himanta Biswa Sarma said a special meeting of the State-Level Bankers' Committee (SLBC) decided on a relief scheme for customers who availed of loans in Sivasagar, Charaideo, Jorhat, and Golaghat.

It was attended by representatives from the Reserve Bank of India, National Bank for Agriculture and Rural Development, State Bank of India, and other commercial banks.

"The SLBC decided that a six-month moratorium will be offered to all flood-hit people in these districts," Mr. Sarma said.

He added that the tenure of loans can be extended from one year up to seven years.

Tribal land stir in Kerala: court acquits all who faced trial

The Hindu Bureau
KOZHIKODE

Bringing an end to a protracted 23-year legal marathon, the Principal Sessions Court, Kalpetta, in Kerala's Wayanad on Friday acquitted all those who faced trial, including social activist M. Geethanandan, in the case related to the murder of police constable K.V. Vinod during the Muthanga tribal land agitation on February 19, 2003.

Judge E. Ayyoobkhan set all those facing trial free as the prosecution failed to prove beyond reasonable doubt that there had been a prior conspiracy to murder the police constable.

However, the court found Ashokan, the second accused, guilty of delivering the fatal blow to Vinod's head during a rescue operation. The murder charge against him had to be abated because the accused died during the trial.

However, the court convicted Geethanandan and three others of attempting to murder senior police constable Abdul Salam, abducting forest range officer P.K. Sasidharan, and criminal conspiracy.

The judge sentenced all four to five years of rigorous imprisonment. Each convict was also ordered to pay a fine of ₹42,000.

Of the 57 accused, 15 had passed away during the trial proceedings. One accused, Radhakrishnan, remains absconding.

Case against Noida woman for ‘abusing’ PM moved to Delhi

Suruchi Kumari
NEW DELHI

A day after reports of an FIR registered in Noida against a woman named Ruchika Singh for “abusing” Prime Minister Narendra Modi came to light, a Delhi Police officer on Friday said the case has been transferred to the Parliament Street police station.

When reached for comment, Deputy Commissioner of Police (New Delhi) Sachin Sharma said the case had not yet been handed over to them as of Friday evening. “We will decide the course of action once we get it,” he said.

On Wednesday, the U.P. police had registered a zero FIR at the Expressway police station based on a complaint by a Ghaziabad resident, Smriti Singh. The complainant alleged that Ms. Ruchika used “abusive and objectionable” language against Mr. Modi, thereby undermining “the dignity of the constitutional office”. She claimed that the remarks were intended to “spread hatred and disrupt public peace”.

‘Misuse of machinery’
Reacting to the development, Cockroach Janta Party (CJP) spokesperson Saurav Das said on X: “The misuse of criminal machinery against Ruchika Singh is unacceptable. Profanity does not attract a criminal case. The police can focus their energy elsewhere, not on a 25-year-old.”

In a video statement, CJP founder Abhijeet Dipke said, “Law should be the same for everyone. It cannot be used against the youth of the country and not against political leaders for using abusive language.”

The FIR comes against the backdrop of the CJP-led protest at Jantar Mantar, which was called off on July 25 after Dharmendra Pradhan stepped down as the Union Education Minister. Since then, media clips and social media content posted by women protesters have been circulated on social media and they have been subjected to online harassment.

One such post on Friday by an X user identifying himself as Shashi Kumar, a co-convenor of the Bharatiya Janata Party's Uttar Pradesh social media unit, contained a video of three women and sought an FIR against them purportedly for similar “offences” as those Ms. Ruchika Singh is accused of.

Lucknow fire: demolition cost recovery notice to owners

The Lucknow Development Authority (LDA) has issued a notice to the owners of the illegal commercial building in Aliganj, where a fire claimed 15 lives on June 22, seeking to recover the ₹26.14-lakh cost incurred in demolishing the unauthorised structure, an official said on Friday. The recovery notice has been sent to building owners Virendra Prasad Shukla and Surendra Shukla, after the LDA demolished illegal portions of the structure on July 25 in compliance with a court order. The building had been constructed as a residential structure but was allegedly converted into a commercial establishment. PTI

Teacher thrashes Dalit boy for drinking water from his bottle

An eight-year-old Dalit boy was allegedly thrashed and targeted with racial slurs by a teacher in a government school in Madhya Pradesh's Shivpuri district for drinking water from his bottle, officials said on Friday. According to them, the incident took place on July 28 in a government primary schools in Ukawal village under Kolaras police station area where the teacher, Lokesh Sharma, beat up the Class 4 student with a cane in front of his fellow students after which the boy narrated the incident to his parents. SC stays arrest of ex-T.N. Minister Senthilbalaji in Tasmac corruption case

Court rejects State's arguments that the DMK leader might interfere with probe if he is out on bail; Bench points to 'change in political climate now', says State no longer under influence of petitioner

Krishnadas Rajagopal
NEW DELHI

The Supreme Court on Friday ordered the arrest of former Tamil Nadu Minister for Prohibition, Electricity and Excise V. Senthilbalaji in a corruption case to "remain stayed".

The FIR, registered on July 28 by the Directorate of Vigilance and Anti-Corruption (DVAC), accused the former DMK Minister and then officials of the Tamil Nadu State Marketing Corporation Ltd. (Tasmac) of abusing their official position to enter into a criminal conspiracy from 2021 with distillery firms, bottle companies, their owners, and private individuals. The DVAC alleged that Mr. Senthilbalaji and others "laundered huge illicit money by various means of manipulation and favouritism in the decision-making processes" of Tasmac.

Rejecting the State's arguments that the DMK leader might interfere with the investigation if he was out on bail, Justice Joymalya Bagchi said there had been a "significant change in the political climate now". "The State is no longer under the so-called malefic influence of the petitioner [Mr. Senthilbalaji]," Justice Bagchi said.

The Tamilaga Vетtri Kazhagam-led alliance assumed power in Tamil Nadu following the 2026 Assembly election, bringing an end to the DMK's five-year tenure.

Chief Justice of India Surya Kant, who headed the Bench, said the State must not be afraid of the former Minister trying to influence the probe or the witnesses.

The case came up in the morning before a three-judge Bench, but Justice V. Mohana chose to recuse. A Division Bench of Chief Justice Kant and Justice Bagchi reconvened at 1 p.m. for the brief hearing, which culminated in Mr. Senthilbalaji getting relief.

Conditions set

The Bench set conditions, including the surrender of Mr. Senthilbalaji's passport to the investigating officer, not influencing witnesses, and fully cooperating with the probe. The court also gave the State liberty to approach the court for removal of protection against arrest at the "slightest hint" of misdoing on the side of Mr. Senthilbalaji. Senior advocate Kapil Sibal, leading for the DMK leader, said the "State's enthusiasm speaks volumes".

The former Minister, also represented by senior advocates Mukul Rohatgi and Amit Anand Tiwari, had appealed in the Supreme Court within hours of the Madras High Court dismissing his bail application on July 30. The High Court had concluded that the allegations against the DMK leader warranted his custodial interrogation.

On Friday, Mr. Sibal opened the submissions in the hearing by terming the case a "strange" one. He submitted that the events alleged in the FIR had occurred between 2021 and 2025 when Mr. Senthilbalaji was a State Minister.

Senior advocates Guru Krishnakumar and Siddharth Dave, along with Tamil Nadu Additional Advocate-General Haripriya Padmanabhan, for the State, countered that the former Minister had successfully stalled investigations against him throughout his tenure in power.

Justice Bagchi said the court would ensure that Mr. Senthilbalaji did not "jump the investigation and go out of the country". "If there is any breach or perception of breach, please come to us," Justice Bagchi told the State.

Bombay HC pulls up FDA for clean chit to State govt. canteens

Press Trust of India
MUMBAI

Taking a stern view of "partial and selective action" by State authorities, the Bombay High Court on Friday pulled up the Maharashtra Food and Drug Administration (FDA) for granting a clean chit to government canteens while heavily cracking down on private eateries.

Court-appointed panel

A High Court-appointed panel of four lawyers had inspected the three canteens inside Mantralaya, the State Secretariat, and submitted a report claiming that the canteens were unclean, had broken and open sewage and drainage, and the kitchen floors had cockroaches and flies.

The lawyers' report was contrary to the report submitted to the court on Friday by the FDA which had said the canteens were 98% compliant of the rules.

A Bench of Acting Chief Justice Ravindra Ghuge and Justice Gautam Ankhad said the FDA needs to be "fair, impartial and uniform" in its drive concerning hotels and eateries, including those in government and semi-government establishments.

The Bench, after examining the photographs of the Mantralaya canteens submitted by the panel, expressed shock and said FDA ought to issue a notice to these establishments too.

The court was irked to note that for similar deficiencies, the FDA had issued a suspension notice to Poornima Restaurant in south Mumbai but the Mantralaya canteens were declared 98% compliant of rules.

'Law not followed'

Senior counsel Venkatesh Dhond, appearing for Poornima Restaurant, had told the court that the FDA issued a suspension notice without following the due process of law.

"Suspend the licence of Mantralaya (canteens) too then. Either suspend this licence or restore Poornima's licence. No one is above the law," HC said.

Channi conspicuous by his absence, Punjab Cong. kicks off booth-level mobilisation

The Hindu Bureau
CHANDIGARH

Ahead of the Assembly poll due in early 2027, the Congress on Friday kicked off its mass mobilisation programme at the booth level. The conspicuous absence of former Chief Minister Charanjit Singh Channi, who is still believed to be upset with the party's revamp, again triggered the question surrounding Congress's internal cohesion.

The party's general secretary in charge for Punjab, Bhupesh Bhagel, who is on a nine-day visit to the State, presided over the event at Fatehgarh Sahib.

Addressing the workers, Mr. Bhagel said the ruling Aam Aadmi Party (AAP) is on its way out and the Congress is the only option for the State, even as he predicted a five-cornered contest in Punjab this time.

Mr. Bhagel said the Congress is faced with a challenge from two governments, the BJP government at the Centre and AAP in Punjab. "They are two sides of the same coin. There will be two more players, the Akalis and the Waris Punjab De," he said.

The Congress leader said both the BJP and AAP have no faith in the Constitution. "Punjab is unsafe with drugs being peddled freely and the gangsters ruling the roost. Also, people are killed in broad daylight with criminals who have no fear of law," he alleged.

'Party strong, united'

Asserting that the Congress is strong and united, State party chief Amarinder Singh Raja Warring said, "There can always be differences of opinion, which is quite natural."

Bihar BJP MLC resigns, Minister may take seat to remain in Cabinet

Amarnath Tewary
PATNA

A day after the Supreme Court rapped the Bihar government for keeping an unelected Minister, Deepak Prakash, beyond six months, the ruling BJP's MLC Devesh Kumar on Friday resigned from his position. Mr. Prakash might be elected in his place to remain a Minister in the State Cabinet. Mr. Prakash is the State's Panchayati Raj Minister since November 20, 2025, without being a member of either House of the State Legislature.

Supreme Court rap

Earlier, on May 30, 2026, a petition in the Supreme Court was filed by Rakesh Kumar Singh seeking Mr. Prakash's appointment as Minister be declared "invalid". The petition further alleged that the Minister's appointment was a "fraud upon the Constitution".

Hearing the petition, the apex court on July 30, had rapped the State government, asking how could an unelected member be a Minister in the government even after six months.

Mr. Prakash, 36, is the son of Upendra Kushwaha, NDA coalition partner Rashtriya Lok Morcha leader and Rajya Sabha member. BJP sources said Mr. Kumar is set for a new, bigger responsibility in the party.

NSA invoked against activist who opposed luxury hotel in Kaziranga day after he gets bail

The Hindu Bureau
NEW DELHI

Amid ongoing protests in Assam over a luxury hotel project near the Kaziranga National Park, the State government has now invoked the National Security Act (NSA) to detain environmental activist Pranab Doley, who has been supporting and leading these protests for weeks now.

Mr. Doley was arrested by the police in Assam on July 12 over a sit-in protest that was held in the area and was granted bail by a local court earlier this week on July 29. The court, while granting him bail, had observed in the order, "In matters where ecological preservation intersects with indigenous survival, the standard apparatus of criminal law cannot be used to suppress local anxieties."

In an order issued the day after Mr. Doley was granted

bail, the Political Department of the Assam government said his activities were "prejudicial to the maintenance of public order as well as security of the State", adding that the government was invoking powers under the National Security Act, 1980 to preventively detain him.

'Foreign funding'

In a notification accompanying the NSA detention order, the government has cited as many as 13 police cases registered against Mr. Doley from as far back as 2017. It alleged that he had received funding from foreign sources and that he had made several trips to foreign countries. The State government also accused Mr. Doley of being involved in "road blockades and damage of public properties to create lawlessness for vested interests".

While granting bail, the court of the Additional Sessions Judge in Golaghat concluded that the police were unable to seize any "deadly weapons" from the protesters as alleged. The court also noted that none of Mr. Doley's foreign visits or funding seems to be hidden.

Before parting with the order, Additional Sessions Judge N.M. Abdullah Ahmed noted that the nature of the issue in the case was a result of a "deep-rooted anxiety about environmental degradation and its impact on the socio-cultural fabric of the tea tribes".

Abandoned Rajasthan girl with special needs finds loving embrace of a mother from France

Mohammed Iqbal
JAIPUR

A girl with special needs, abandoned near a temple at Dausa in Rajasthan three years ago, has found the loving embrace of a French mother through the first inter-country adoption facilitated by a government agency in the district. The girl, residing at the Specialised Adoption Agency's centre, was adopted by a single mother from France.

The adoption, routed through the Central Adoption Resource Authority (CARA), will take the girl thousands of kilometres away to a place where she finds a mother's affection, family love, and a secure future.

At a farewell ceremony organised in the District

The girl with her adoptive mother (faces blurred) with District Collector Saumya Jha in Dausa on Thursday. SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT

Collectorate on Thursday, there were tears in the eyes of those present, but the lacrimation also reflected happiness and hope for the innocent child's bright future. The girl, found abandoned near the Mehandi-pur Balaji temple area about three years ago, was brought to the centre which cares for orphaned children and helps place them with families.

Dausa Collector Saumya Jha, Principal Magistrate Aishwarya Jagarwal, and officials from the adoption agency bid the girl an emotional adieu, offering their affection and gifts. Ms. Jha discussed the girl's upbringing and education with the adoptive mother, emphasising the need to submit follow-up reports as per regulations and ensure adherence to all legal provisions.

The inter-country adoption was finalised after completion of all legal and documentary procedures in accordance with the Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2015, as amended in 2022, and the CARA guidelines.

'Significant challenge'

The District Collector had issued orders for the girl's adoption earlier this year.

Narendra Singh, a Superintendent with CARA, said finding families for children with special needs remained a significant challenge as most couples prefer children considered "normal".

68% water samples near Bhopal gas tragedy site found with sewage contamination, say activists

Mehul Malpani
BHOPAL

A group of activists in Madhya Pradesh's Bhopal on Friday alleged that 68% samples of the civic body-supplied drinking water in areas affected by the 1984 Bhopal gas tragedy were found to be contaminated with presence of faecal coliform in tests conducted by the activists and residents of the area.

According to the activists from four organisations representing survivors, 63 samples were taken from 30 localities around the defunct Union Carbide factory, the site of the tragedy, and tested between July 2 and 22, of which 43 were found sewage-contaminated.

They alleged that the supply of contaminated water was creating a situation in the area similar to Indore's Bhagirathpura, where government-supplied sewage-contaminated water claimed more than 35 lives in December 2025 and January 2026.

"We tested 63 water samples from taps in 30 communities this month and presence of faecal coliform was confirmed in 43 samples. There is clear evidence that drinking water supplied to 19 out of 30 communities is contaminated with faeces," an activists said at a press conference here, presenting data of the group's findings.

They claimed that there were 12 localities where all the water samples were found contaminated, including some areas where pipelines were laid in recent years.

Speaking to The Hindu, Rachna Dhingra of the Bhopal Group for Information and Action said 90% samples of drinking water supplied from the city's upper lake and 25% samples of water supplied from Kolar dam were found to be contaminated. Four samples of water supplied from Narmada river were found negative for contamination.

BMC claim

In a statement, the Bhopal Municipal Corporation (BMC) claimed that the tests conducted by the civic body in July "had not found impurities" in any of the 61 samples.

Force of law

Delhi Police are pursuing protesters, but not acting against their own

The extent and the nature of police action, which continues in Delhi against student protesters, remain a matter of grave concern for India’s democracy. The Supreme Court of India is seized of the matter, but it has done little so far to restrain the police, which appears to be acting outside of the law. To have an independent inquiry that examines the allegations being raised – as is being considered by the Court – is one thing. But an accountable police force would have swiftly acted to preserve its own honour and reputation, considering what is already available in the public domain. Its male officers in uniform appear in videos slapping a woman protester, and attempting to bring down a lathi on the private parts of a girl. The Delhi police is actively pursuing protesters who were apparently present at the protest site, using facial-recognition and other surveillance technologies, the legality of which remains dubious and controversial. Yet, it has offered no response regarding the identity of the officer seen openly assaulting a young woman at a public gathering. The Delhi police would not require any software or Court intervention to identify and hold its own personnel accountable. All it needs is professionalism and a strict adherence to the principle of the rule of law.

There is also a simultaneous law-enforcement sweep against freedom of expression, both online and offline, targeting critics of the government. The police appears eager to proceed against people merely for saying something. Abusive language has indeed been used by some content creators against government functionaries. If any of that warrants police action, the applicable law should be clearly cited, and due process should be followed transparently. Instead, there are reports of arbitrary police action that appears intended more as intimidation than law enforcement, targeting protesters, their families and, in some cases, even social media platforms. At the same time, the police seem uninterested in acting against online mobs that are threatening and abusing the protesters. The Delhi police has maintained that criminals infiltrated the protests. Those involved in violence must certainly be identified and brought to justice in accordance with the law. The force has also not explained the circumstances under which pellets were fired at protesters. Police practices must adhere to established rules and standards, and any breach must be dealt with firmly. This is an occasion for both the Centre and the Court to underscore a basic constitutional principle: nobody, including the police, is above the law. The government should not appear to have gone back on its promises to the agitating students, who called off the protests once their demands were met. That would only entrench cynicism and deepen resentment among the youth who turned up in their thousands at Jantar Mantar.

A healthy tax

The government must act to tax foods high in fat, sugar, and salt

India, which has a long history of addressing the challenges of undernutrition, has to pivot to attack the curious phenomenon of over-nutrition that evolving lifestyles have now laid at its door. The recent National Family Health Survey data showed that in India, while stunting and undernutrition continue to be cause for concern, despite some gains, the sharp rise in adult overweight and obesity, besides diet-related metabolic conditions, cannot be ignored any more. Two unrelated developments have advanced the question of unhealthy diets in very pointed suggestions that would nudge consumers to make the right choices. First, a Parliamentary Standing Committee has recommended mandatory front-of-pack nutrition labelling indicating whether packaged food products are high in sugar, and second, a national consortium has advised the government to levy a health tax on high fat, salt and sugar foods, and enforce stricter regulations on their advertisements. The Standing Committee on Consumer Affairs, Food and Public Distribution also made a recommendation to include the sugar content in baby foods, attacking the excess sugar consumption issue right where it begins. The consortium on adolescent nutrition, which goes by the practical name Let’s Fix Our Food, is led by the Indian Council of Medical Research-National Institute of Nutrition (ICMR-NIN), and comprising several other prominent institutions in India and abroad, has recommended that the government ensure a healthier school food environment, stricter regulation of marketing of unhealthy food, and front-of-pack nutrition labelling. These efforts will be among the steps to tackle the rising burden of obesity and diet-related non communicable diseases that require a comprehensive strategy helmed by the government.

According to the World Health Organization, since 2017, at least 133 countries have increased or introduced a new health tax. A “junk food law” came into force in Colombia in 2023, to tackle the high consumption of packaged foods. An additional tax on such foods began at 10%, rose to 15% the next year and touched 20% the subsequent year. Norway, Hungary, Denmark, Bermuda, Dominica, St. Vincent and the Grenadines, and the Navajo Nation (U.S.), have also specifically implemented taxes on unprocessed sugar and sugar-added foods. With the ICMR-NIN report indicating that over 17 million children and adolescents are affected by obesity, and that this number can cross 27 million by 2030, there cannot be a better time to act on these suggestions that will go a long way in educating the consumer to make healthy food choices.

Gen Z’s voice must lead to a humane education system

With the successful demonstration by the Cockroach Janta Party, a point has been made. A light has been shown in our national darkness. We can use that light, or we can continue to curse the darkness. The choice is always there. Gen Z has pronounced a fiat. It will be wise on our part to take heed. The education system needs not just an overhaul but also a complete change. A change in policy itself. We must now sit down and work out a system in which examinations are seen as fair, conducted professionally, and taken happily and voluntarily. Competitive examinations should no longer be associated with student suicides.

India’s education system has produced extraordinary professional talent, yet its admission culture has also created a dangerous emotional environment in which marks, ranks, and single-shot competitive examinations are often treated as the sole measures of intelligence, worth, and future possibility. This must change.

Examinations need to become more inclusive, projecting students’ worth and abilities even as they assess a candidate’s competence for the chosen field of higher education. Gen Z is very aware of the competitive world it has inherited and is quite capable of making prudent choices for its future. It is up to us – parents, teachers, and policymakers – to consult with them and evolve a system that is fair, robust, and respected.

Assessing competence

A fair system of admission must adopt a multi-dimensional assessment of competence. Admissions should combine moderated school performance, discipline-specific aptitude, analytical writing, structured interviews where appropriate, practical or scenario-based tasks, and verifiable portfolios, projects, internships, community work and co-curricular achievement.

Such an approach would test not only memory and speed but also reasoning, persistence, communication, judgment, ethical orientation and suitability for a chosen field. Entry-level institutions themselves, with the involvement of competent schoolteachers, should design and administer these assessments with transparent criteria and proper safeguards. Examinations should be redesigned to assess application, interpretation and higher-order thinking rather than predictable patterns that feed the coaching industry. This would preserve standards while aligning admissions more closely with real ability, educational purpose and student potential.

Industry, parents, and students must together broaden the meaning of educational success beyond a few high-pressure professional courses. Regular industry interaction through career fairs, internships, mentorship programmes, workplace visits, and alumni engagement can make students aware, even at the school level, of emerging opportunities in newer sectors and reduce blind dependence on competitive examinations for traditional career paths. Parents, especially those with limited access to reliable information and who often resort to unaffordable loans, need structured counselling in local languages on courses, careers, costs, scholarships, aptitude, mental-health risks, and the difference between a child’s interests and parental ambitions. Students must be helped to assess their abilities, dispositions, and aspirations realistically through guidance and aptitude-based conversations rather than prestige-driven choices. When informed industry exposure, responsible parental support, and self-aware student decision-making come together, educational choices become more rational, humane, and less fear-driven. This is the groundwork on which a fair and effective entry-level assessment system can be built.

John Varghese

Former Principal of St. Stephen’s College

Role of elected representatives

The Constitution treats education as a public good, not a commercial race, and places a clear duty on the state to protect equality, dignity, and the right to education, especially for children and weaker sections. When the coaching ecosystem becomes exploitative – creating inequality, displacing formal schooling, and harming student well-being – Parliament and State legislatures must respond through law, regulation, and oversight. Members of Parliament and Members of the Legislative Assemblies may not be individually liable for a persistent social problem, but they remain institutionally responsible for creating and enforcing safeguards on fees, advertising, mental-health support, hostel standards, and fraudulent practices. In the face of evidence of student suicides and commercialisation, persistent inaction invites democratic and legal scrutiny, making urgent action a constitutional responsibility.

Does one size fit all? No. A centralised agency such as the National Testing Agency rests on the assumption that one examination model can fairly judge all students across disciplines, regions and social contexts; this assumption is flawed – especially in a country such as India, which is varied in every possible way. Institutions and professional bodies are better placed to define what they seek in candidates because they understand the intellectual and academic demands, skills, aptitude and ethical orientation required for specific courses leading to careers. A single national test also creates logistical overload and demographic unfairness: language, geography, school background, digital access, and local educational disadvantages all affect performance, making a “one-test-fits-all” model neither educationally sound nor socially just.

A decentralised system, with universities or clusters of institutions designing and conducting their own assessments within broad University Grant Commission norms, would allow for more relevant and balanced evaluation. Students, too, may be consulted through structured representation in identifying appropriate modes

The time has come to rethink merit, reform admissions, and restore dignity to every student’s academic journey

Western Ghats conservation with science and dialogue

The Western Ghats, spanning six coastal States of India, are internationally recognised for their rich biodiversity. They contain 39 biodiversity hotspot areas, including national parks, reserved forests, and wildlife sanctuaries declared World Heritage Sites (WHS) by UNESCO in 2012. To protect this natural heritage, the Western Ghats Ecology Expert Panel (WGEEP) was constituted in 2010 under the chairmanship of ecologist, academic, and writer Madhav Gadgil. Its report recommended declaring 142 talukas covering 44 districts in the entire Western Ghats into Ecologically Sensitive Area (ESA), while sub-dividing it into three Ecologically Sensitive Zones (ESZ). Such a declaration would regulate human activities to protect fragile ecosystems and, once notified under the Environment Protection Act, 1986, would provide legal protection.

The ESA journey

Following strong local and political opposition in the States concerned to the WGEEP recommendations, the central government constituted a high-level working group headed by Krishnaswamy Kasturirangan in 2012 to review them. The group limited restrictions on economic activities and livelihoods to ecologically sensitive natural landscapes, reducing the area covered to only 37% of the Western Ghats

Based on this recalibrated report, the Ministry of Environment, Forest and Climate Change (MoEF&CC) issued the first draft notification in 2014. Since the matter remained unresolved, the Ministry constituted an expert panel headed by former Director General of Forests Sanjay Kumar in 2022 to examine the concerns raised by the stakeholder States. Following the expert panel’s deliberations, Gujarat and Goa appear to have agreed to the finalisation of the ESA notification, while Maharashtra has sought a fresh review.

Nadu, are ongoing. A “phased rollout” or “State-wise finalisation” is possible after the inclusion of this clause in the 2024 draft notification.

Between 2015 and 2026, five draft notifications were issued as the Centre and States did not reach a consensus. Following the expiry of the last notification, in July 2026, the Ministry has extended the expert panel’s tenure by another year.

The case of Karnataka

Karnataka has 10 districts in the Western Ghats, with 23.4% of the State’s population residing there. Around 20,668 square kilometres have been identified for ESA declaration. Regardless of the government’s political affiliation, the State has consistently opposed the proposal, citing its potential impact on agriculture, plantations, mining, and infrastructure development.

A study by this writer covered villages located in the proximity of 10 WHS across four districts – Chikkamagaluru, Kodagu, Shivamogga, and Udupi – and three other important sites in Uttara Kannada and Udupi, including the Kali Tiger Reserve, Mundigekere Bird Sanctuary (five acres and a breeding ground for cattle egrets in Sirsi), and Mookambika Wildlife Sanctuary. The study highlighted local perspectives on livelihoods and conservation efforts.

In villages adjoining the Kali Tiger Reserve and Kudremukh National Park, some residents reported accepting or considering rehabilitation packages. Those opposing relocation felt that they might eventually have to follow due to declining village populations and the resulting threat to village life. Even villages with granted forest rights have faced challenges due to restrictions on minor forest produce collection and agricultural practices. Concerns were also raised over the rejection of forest rights claims by non-tribals with long-standing residence, including in a village (at least 150 years) near the of assessment, though access to live question papers or confidential content should be strictly avoided. To preserve sanctity and prevent paper leaks, these safeguards are essential: encrypted digital paper transmission; multi-layered question banks with algorithmic randomisation; strict vetting and rotation of paper setters; secure printing and sealed distribution protocols; independent audit and surveillance of examination centres. And severe penal consequences for any breach. Additional safeguards may include biometric candidate verification, time-staggered papers, and post-examination forensic review of anomalies.

Properly scheduled, decentralised examinations spread across the academic calendar would reduce stress, avoid nationwide disruption from a single failure, and permit institutions to test genuine competence and readiness rather than coaching-driven examination technique alone.

Entrance exams should help our students assess themselves for their abilities and competency in a chosen field. Students should undertake the exams willingly, with the clear understanding that it is indeed a competitive world, and that they have a self-worth even beyond the particular exam that they are sitting for. When alternate career choices are there, the pressure on the students is much less; and if they are passionate about a profession, then they will learn to work hard for it.

A humane direction for reform

India requires a shift from rank-based filtration to capacity-based recognition. A just admissions system should ask not only who scored highest under exam pressure, but who has the aptitude, motivation, ethical seriousness, resilience, and capacity to grow in a chosen field. Such a system would still value excellence, but it would define excellence more intelligently and more humanely. Over the past few days, Gen Z has brought us face-to-face with a dark secret we have long lived with: the overemphasis on certain professions. This generation has choices, and we must allow them to choose responsibly while understanding the consequences.

The constitutional promise of education cannot be fulfilled by a structure that rewards fear, debt, and psychological distress while calling the result merit. The alternative lies in holistic assessment, regulation of coaching commercialisation, institutionalised mental-health support, industry involvement, and sustained counselling for parents and students, keeping interests, abilities, and dignity at the centre of educational choices. This will help create happier and more confident young people who choose careers deliberately, not out of compulsion, paving the way for a better India and a better world. If these changes begin now, the suicides caused by entrance examination stress can come to an end.

Balahalli Reserved Forest. Meanwhile, local officials and some communities supported regulating environmentally harmful activities such as stone quarrying and unplanned tourism projects, including proposals for forest ropeways.

With specific reference to the notifications, it must be noted that local communities faced similar restrictions whenever these areas were declared protected zones, even before the WGEEP was constituted. Many residents believe that buffer zones extend 10 kilometres from core areas and fear possible eviction from their lands. Stakeholders across the study districts unanimously expressed concerns that reliance on satellite imagery for identifying ESA areas was unfair, as they were convinced that it could not distinguish plantation crops such as arecanut, shade-grown coffee, rubber, and coconut from forest cover. They also raised concerns that no committees had physically visited their villages.

In this context, Karnataka’s case requires an empathetic approach that addresses genuine stakeholder concerns before a final decision is taken.

Protecting indigenous communities

In the broader context, the Union government’s decision to proceed with the ESA notification for the Western Ghats reflects political will to protect ecology and biodiversity. Conservation efforts cannot be indefinitely delayed as it will result in States losing their control in such areas; ecological systems transcend administrative boundaries.

More importantly, ESA should include indigenous communities living deep within forests, as they naturally follow conservation principles and maintain a sacred, sustainable relationship with the environment despite challenging conditions. Their presence serves as a bridge between forests and mainstream society, while their absence risks the loss of biocultural diversity.

protection of citizens who speak out against perceived wrongdoing are not separate issues – they are both essential to preserving public trust.

Celebrated at birth, pushed into sex work

Unlike most communities in India, the Banchhadas in M.P. invest more in their daughters' upbringing than in their sons', by giving them better nutrition and clothes, only so that they can force them into sex work and live off their earnings. Branded a 'criminal tribe' by the British and now classified as a Scheduled Caste, the community remains on society's margins as government and NGOs have struggled to break the cycle, reports Mehul Malpani

Identities of all sex workers, former sex workers, and their families have been changed to maintain privacy

Sitting in her older daughter's room, where one corner is covered with maps and math formula sheets, Savitri, a 40-year-old former sex worker, recalls when she began hating her profession. "It was when my girls turned five and seven," she says. "I had decided that my daughters would never live the life I had. They would live with dignity."

Although she continued in the profession for a few more years due to family responsibilities — her husband, who was one of her clients, abandoned the family years ago — Savitri eventually quit. Now, about 10 years later, her elder daughter works with an NGO and is preparing to write the police exam, while her younger daughter is preparing for medical entrance tests in Indore.

The family belongs to the Banchhada community, a de-notified tribe with an estimated population of 25,000 spread across 78 villages in the districts of Mandsaur, Neemuch, and Ratlam in western Madhya Pradesh.

Unlike Savitri's daughters, most girls in the community are born into a system in which their families expect them to enter sex work — a practice passed down over generations. According to several members of the community and NGOs in the region, while many Indians celebrate the birth of a boy over a girl, the Banchhadas welcome a girl with sweets and firecrackers. As girls grow up, they receive better nutrition than boys. They are given expensive clothes and, unlike in much of India, are not told that they will have to marry one day and leave the nest.

The reason, however, is disturbing: for generations, the Banchhada girls have been pushed into sex work on hitting puberty and given the responsibility of earning. Their family members function as pimps and live off their money.

Akash Chouhan, founder of the Jan Shaurya Social Welfare and Development Society, an NGO based in Neemuch, estimates that at least 10,000 women of the community, including about 3,000 girls, remain trapped in this form of exploitation. "Girls are forced to drop out of school after Class 8 or 9 and are pushed into sex work by their families," says Akash, who is from the community. "Community elders protect the practice in the name of tradition."

Radhika, a sex worker, says girls are conditioned from childhood to believe in the tradition. They are told it is their responsibility to ease the family's financial woes. "I quit school on my own after Class 9 and began working," she says. "But if a girl refuses to quit, her family forces her into sex work through physical or emotional abuse."

Abuse along the highway

A drive along State Highway 156, which connects the three districts, passes through several villages of the community. Girls wearing bright lipstick stand along the way, while older women sit on cots outside their houses and shanties, watching children playing nearby. As evening approaches, they gesture to men to come in.

Girls are forced to drop out of school after Class 8 or 9 and are pushed into sex work by their families. Community elders protect the practice in the name of tradition.

AKASH CHOUHAN
Founder, Jan Shaurya Social Welfare and Development Society

In Neemuch's Jaitpura village, an elderly woman approaches a car parked on the roadside and asks if anyone would like to come in. She points to three girls sitting outside her house; two of them are her granddaughters. "You can pick either of them and go into the house," she tells them. "It will cost you ₹300 for 10 minutes but I will take ₹100 as my tip. The room has a fan; you will be comfortable."

Most girls along the highway, including those who look underage, say that they are around 20; some say they recently turned 18. Conversations with them reveal that they have been involved in sex work for about four years.

Multiple dhabas along the highway are also involved in brokering deals between prospective clients and sex workers. The owner of a highway dhaba in Ratlam's Dhodar village claims he can "arrange girls" and lists different price brackets based on location, duration, and the girl's age. Standing near a toll booth, he lists the facilities available, including an air-conditioned room, car parking, and assurances of safety from the police. The rates range from ₹300 for 10 minutes, to ₹1,000 for an hour, and ₹6,000 for a night. They go up to ₹10,000 for a younger girl.

"If girls are taken to a hotel, clients face the risk of police raids. But here, clients have no problem," the dhaba owner explains. "The girls avoid going to hotels as they face incidents of violence by drunken men. That is why many of them have built rooms in their houses with AC."

Several sex workers from the region also travel to cities such as Indore in Madhya Pradesh, and Chittorgarh and Udaipur in neighbouring Rajasthan, on client requests.

Shivangi, a former sex worker in Neemuch's Nilkanthpura, who now works with the government's Women and Child Development (WCD) Department, recalls some of the horrific incidents she faced. "In 2003, my friend and I had gone to a hotel in Chittorgarh for two clients. After a few minutes, two or three others entered the room. For hours, we suffered sexual and physical violence that still haunts me. All I could think of was jumping out a window," says Shivangi, who is now married with two daughters.

Shivangi says girls rarely share grim experiences with their families as they have to "get to work as soon as the next client approaches".

hostels and centres returned to sex work as they had to vacate these places on turning 18. "While the government is running initiatives and programmes to provide them livelihood options such as sewing or skill-based jobs, it is difficult to match the income and lifestyle the girls earn through sex work. This leaves a gap in our efforts to rehabilitate the community," the official adds.

In Mandsaur, however, Garg says the district administration has been able to find a way to issue caste certificates through ancestral records or any fraternal records that can establish a person's connection to their family.

A cycle of exploitation

A recent short film, Khilawadi, which has received awards at various national and international film festivals, depicts the story of a Banchhada girl who dreams of becoming a doctor. Made by a debutant filmmaker, Shobhita Thakur, the film's title comes from a local term often used for the oldest daughter of a family, who is not allowed to have a life of her own, whether it is a career or marriage.

In the Banchhada community, dowry is paid by the groom's family to the bride's. The reason is simple: her in-laws compensate her family for lost income. Activists and community members say the amount has increased over the years, with some girls' families even taking ₹25 lakh.

As per the community's customs, a girl cannot marry within the caste once she enters sex work. A married woman is not allowed into sex work.

Sangita, a social worker with Udan Women Employment Welfare Society, explains that the girls are fed ideas against marriage from childhood, and encouraged to get into sex work which promises materialistic benefits such as smartphones, scooters, and clothes. "They tell the girl that if she is unmarried, she can buy whatever she wants, but if she gets married, she will be stuck doing household chores," says Sangita.

After the age of 25, many women are forced to become brokers or offer their houses on commission as client demand begins to decline. Others, suffering from infections, sexually transmitted diseases, or HIV/AIDS, become dependent on relatives or NGOs.

While researching for her film, Shobhita found that a girl suffering from AIDS was in hospital. "The girl's father came to the hospital in a drunken state and asked her to give him money even though she was in a critical condition. He created a scene and left. The girl died a few days later." She says she came across many incidents that were so revolting that she could not include them in the film.

Sex workers say it is because demand goes down with age that they take on as many clients as they can. Radhika says she has about 10-15 clients a day and earns about ₹5,000. "I don't have a large family; I only have my grandmother. So, I have to save enough to buy a house and live comfortably after a few years," she reasons.

Sangita says the girls are unable to escape as caste panchayats punish or penalise those who try to break free from the practice. She adds that the community has an unofficial nexus of pimps and agents that keeps a close watch on the girls, including those who have been rescued.

Garg adds that caste panchayats and community members oppose programmes they believe could affect the profession. "We recently faced resistance during our HPV (human papillomavirus vaccination) drive for cervical cancer as they feared it could impact their girls' work," she says.

A generation of hope

Social activists allege that multiple government campaigns and programmes have failed to impact the community. For instance, the Jabali Scheme launched by the State government remains "completely missing from the ground," Akash says. Launched in the early 1990s, it was aimed at building hostels for the women from the Banchhada and Bedia communities that are involved in caste-based sex work. Officials say there has been no allocation for the scheme for about four years. "Even when it was active, the allocation was just about ₹5 lakh-7 lakh a year for a district," says a WCD official.

Narendra says most government programmes focus on creating awareness instead of providing women with alternative livelihood options and erasing the stigma. "And even their awareness drives often turn into photo opportunities for government officials," he points out.

Meanwhile, NGOs have been running learning centres for children of the community so that they can resist their families' push when the time comes. The youth in various villages also have initiatives to do away with the practice.

In Sagargram, a group of mostly college-going youth formed a committee about four years ago. Within a year, they were able to stop sex work and liquor inside their village. "We faced objections, but we stood our ground," says Vikas Chouhan, a Master of Social Work student.

Saniya, who is part of the committee, says she encouraged a friend, who was being pressured by her family to get into sex work, to fight back. "Her parents came home to complain to my parents, but my parents took my side. My friend fought with her parents. They eventually relented. She is now continuing her studies," she says.

Her approach was simple, Saniya explains. "Start with one house, one person, then move up. Now, our village feels much safer," she says.

The government added that women farmers had

"The assistance provided under PM-KISAN has enabled farmers to make timely investments in seeds, fertilizers, irrigation, agricultural machinery and other agricultural requirements. This has enhanced farmers' productive capacity, reduced their dependence on informal credit and strengthened the financial stability of rural households," the Ministry added.

"Material costs had started to increase in the quarter and were seriously aggravated during the war, as a result of which the net profit was impacted," the company said.

NEW DELHI

The Supreme Court upheld a NCLAT order that set aside a ₹301.6 crore penalty imposed on Grasim Industries by the Competition Commission of India (CCI) and directed the fair trade regulator to hear the Aditya Birla Group firm again over alleged dominance in the viscose staple fibre market.

sion of India's (CCI) appeal challenging the May 5 NCLAT order.

The tribunal had obser-vedt the CCI did not provide a chance to Grasim Industries to present its arguments after it differed from the findings of the Director General (DG), the regulator's probe unit.

The CCI had imposed the penalty on Grasim Industries in March 2020 for allegedly abusing its dominant position with respect to the supply of viscose staple fibre (VSF) to spinners.

Grasim challenged the order before NCLAT which "set aside the impugned order and remanded it back to the Commission."

Bengaluru gets first tariff-free Scottish salmon via U.K.FTA

Nagesh Prabhu
BENGALURU

Bengaluru received the first tariff-free shipment of Scottish salmon to India under the U.K.-India Comprehensive Economic and Trade Agreement (CETA), marking one of the earliest commercial outcomes of the trade pact.

Owen Richards, Deputy Head of Mission at the British Deputy High Commission here, formally received the shipment at the premises of Sashimi Foods Pvt. Ltd. on Friday

The consignment comprised freshly farmed Scottish salmon produced by Bakkafrost Scotland.

The CETA eliminated India's earlier 33% import tariff on Scottish salmon. Industry estimates the CETA could generate up to £130 million in additional export opportunities for Scotland's salmon sector over the next decade.

Abhinandh flicks mental switch, lights up Ultimate Table Tennis

The 18-year-old's fearless aggression and tactical awareness brought him success in Season 7 of the league. The performance, coming as it did as he begins the transition to the senior ranks, showed he has the technical ability and temperament to succeed at the highest level

BUTTERFLY UTT

K. Keerthivasan

It was the grand inaugural match of Ultimate Table Tennis Season 7 in Panaji. The flashlights were bright sweeping across the indoor arena, and the official UTT anthem blared through the speakers.

Upending the status quo

Amidst the maddening noise, the lights and the spectacle emerged two paddlers. There was, however, nothing particularly spectacular about the match-up on paper. One was ranked in the 200s, the other inside the world's top 50.

But what unfolded over the next few minutes was spectacular. P.B. Abhinandh, 18, representing Dempo Goa Challengers, was the challenger with everything to prove. Across the table stood defending champion U Mumba's Lilian Bardet – a 25-year-old with deep runs in several WTT Pro Tour events and a silver at the 2024 World championships with the French men's team.

More than that, Bardet, the then World No. 42, is an uber-aggressive player on both wings, with the game and the experience to trouble anyone. Yet, the manner in which Abhinandh, then ranked 210, drubbed him in three straight games underlined the teenager's growing prowess.

The Chennai-based paddler served smartly,

I'm no longer afraid to go for my shots and back myself. I play without fear. Playing with seniors in UTT has certainly been beneficial even if there weren't too many variations. More often than not, he rushed Bardet with quick serves directed either to the extreme backhand or into the body, denying the Frenchman the time to settle into his attacking rhythm.

The defining feature of the victory, however, was Abhinandh's powerful forehand topspin. Time and again, he overpowered Bardet with ferocious forehand winners from behind the table. Whenever Bardet dropped the ball short or kept his serve short, Abhinandh was quick to pounce, either setting up the point with a deep push that forced Bardet out of position or finishing it outright with a clean winner, all without losing his balance over the table.

The manner of victory thrust the spotlight firmly on the youngster. Under such unforgiving lights, many would have crumbled. Abhinandh didn't. He continued to string together wins with the same fearless aggression and sharp tactical awareness, including one over Ankur Bhattacharjee – widely regarded as one of India's brightest prospects. His unbeaten run ended against Egypt's Omar Assar, UTT's highest-ranked player at World No. 35. Yet even in defeat, Abhinandh left a lasting impression.

The teenager starred in his team's march to the final, where he again defeated Bardet in the opening match. U Mumba came back to win the title, but Abhinandh had done enough over the course of the tournament to be named Season 7's Player of the League.

Clearly, he is no ordinary talent.

Ranked World No. 13 in the youth (u-19) category, Abhinandh is slowly beginning his transition to the senior circuit. In fact, he has competed in just three senior WTT tournaments this year and is expected to play a few more.

What explains the transformation witnessed during UTT?

Abhinandh says it is the result of a conscious change in approach after several discussions with his coach, Subin Kumar, at the Chennai Achievers TT Academy.

"Compared to the standards at which I played in the WTT Youth and WTT Feeder events, there has definitely been a major difference in my game. Beating players like Bardet, Payas [Jain], Ankur and Youssef [Abdelaziz] doesn't happen every day. WTT is a different atmosphere, while UTT, played at home, is played over the best-of-three format where anything can happen.

"More importantly, there has been a shift in my mentality. I'm no longer afraid to go for my shots and back myself. I play without fear. Playing with seniors in UTT has certainly been beneficial," Abhinandh says.

One of the common criticisms of many Indian

I always knew he was a big-stage player who loves competition, so what he has done in UTT hasn't come as a surprise to me

SUBIN KUMAR

juniors is that, under the guidance of their coaches, they continue to focus heavily on junior and youth events instead of making an early switch to the senior circuit. This, critics argue, often hinders their development.

Abhinandh, however, disagrees with the notion that youngsters should abandon the junior circuit altogether. According to him, becoming a top-five junior in the world is an achievement of immense value and should not be dismissed. What matters, he believes, is ensuring that the transition to the senior ranks is well-planned.

He cites examples to buttress his arguments. "Take Harimoto Tomokazu for example. He gradually quit playing in juniors after he won the ITTF World juniors at 13. China's Ma Long was 16 when he won the ITTF World juniors in 2004. Ryusei Kawakami, who won the World youth u-19 title last year, hasn't played much in juniors. The shift should be gradual and if it is done abruptly it will affect the confidence of young players."

Immediate focus

The teenager says his aim is to reach the top-4 in the youth section over the next year before shifting his attention to the seniors completely.

Subin Kumar, an ITTF-certified coach who has worked with Abhinandh since the youngster was five years old, says the breakthrough did not come overnight.

"I started preparing him for a proper transition to the senior level, and there were plenty of ups and downs. We began working on his transition two years ago, focusing not just on his game but also on the mental and physical aspects. I always knew he was a big-stage player who loves competition, so what he has done in UTT hasn't come as a surprise to me," Subin says.

The coach believes the next phase of Abhinandh's development involves regular exposure to the senior international circuit.

"He hasn't played many senior WTT tournaments so far, but this year and next year he will compete in more senior events. The idea is that by the time he graduates from the youth circuit, the transition to the senior level will be much smoother. We are still working on his fitness and the mental side of the game," he adds.

Dempo Goa Challengers coaches Elena Timina and Parag Agrawal, who have watched Abhinandh closely, echo Subin's assessment. They believe the teenager has the maturity to take responsibility for his own development.

"He has his feet firmly on the ground, listens well and is a very clever boy. He has a clear idea of what he wants to do on the table. The main area he needs to improve is his physical fitness," Timina says. Parag believes Abhinandh has struck the right balance between junior and senior competition. "He has planned his junior and senior careers well. He's playing an adequate number of tournaments in both categories and is very disciplined," he says.

The next two to three years will be decisive. He possesses the technical ability, tactical awareness and temperament to succeed at the highest level.

Ready for the next step

A self-confessed admirer of former World No. 1 Fan Zhendong, Abhinandh appears ready to challenge the likes of G. Sathiyan, Harmeet Desai, Manav Thakkar and Manush Shah on the domestic and international circuits, besides testing himself against the world's best paddlers.

If his UTT performance is any indication, he will leave no stone unturned to prime himself for bigger battles, bigger stages and bigger medals.

Claire Taylor was one of the protagonists of an era of English women's cricket when they 'talked world domination' and realised the ambition. She talks with modesty and humour about her history-making career, explaining why she left a lucrative job for a sport that had little money in it, how she developed into a big-match player and whom she looked to for batting inspiration

I don't have a job and I live at home with my mum and dad and I definitely don't have a Porsche, right? But I wanted to be a brilliant cricketer don't have a Porsche, right? So it was hard that I dropped off that career ladder. But it was easy as well because if I had wanted to stay on the career ladder, I would have had to go to Geneva or Cincinnati and they don't play much cricket there, do they? But I wanted to be a brilliant cricketer. And I was part of teams that won World Cups. That is what it is all about, isn't it?

How do you look back at those World Cup wins in 2009?

Australia was a wonderful tour. Ahead of the ODI World Cup, we had some good warm-up fixtures and then beat Sri Lanka, had a good run, lost to Australia, but beat New Zealand in the final, which was just amazing. To watch Nicky Shaw come in late, take four wickets, and then Holly Colvin hit the winning runs through – shall we call it forward square or mid-wicket? – it was all great.

That whole period, we talked world domination. We were focused on winning the T20I World Cup at home, which we did, beating New Zealand again in the final, here at Lord's.

One of the really interesting things is for me to have that innings [76 not out off 53 balls] at the Oval, in the semifinal against Australia, which brought together everything that I had been working towards in terms of how to dominate another team and how to work with my batting partner and so on.

Because the bowlers felt so pressured by what had happened against Australia, who got 160-odd runs, and it made us look foolish. The bowlers came out here, we won the toss [against New Zealand], we put them in and Katherine Sciver-Brunt got three for six in four overs. It was a great spell of bowling from the Nursery End, got their captain out and we were only chasing 86 to win a World Cup final at Lord's.

You had another memorable outing here back in 2006. Your 156 not out against India remains the highest ODI score at Lord's.

I remember Jhulan Goswami was absolutely unplayable. It rained earlier that day. The pitch was a little bit green. I couldn't get bat on ball. She was too good. If she had been worse, I might have got an edge on it. She was so tall. She was moving it a mile. She was metronomic. If there is a female bowler that you would compare to Glenn McGrath, it is Jhulan.

In 2009, you made history by becoming the first-ever woman to be named by Wisden as one of its cricketers of the year, breaking a century-old tradition.

It wasn't something I ever expected. When Scyld Berry, the Wisden editor, said, 'Come, can I meet you for lunch?' I just thought he wanted to talk about the upcoming World Cup, which he did. Then he said, 'Okay, the reason I asked you for lunch today is that I want to name you as a Wisden Cricketer of the Year. What do you think?' And I was like, 'Sorry, you what? I didn't really understand it, because you don't think about that. That is not ever on your radar. It is not something you want to achieve.'

It is a credit to him as well?

Indeed. It was incredible. To be named a Wisden Cricketer in 2009, you have to have had influence in 2008. I was basically never out. Every game we chased, we won. We were on our journey to world domination at that point.

The batters that have influenced you?

I think you can divide my career into maybe three chunks. You can divide it into that first, trying to figure out what was going on and getting a bit of coaching and everything. Then maybe a period between 2001 and 2005 when I was trying to be one of the best players in the world.

Rather than trying to emulate players like Belinda Clark, Charlotte Edwards or Jan Britting, I decided I didn't need to be them. I was never going to be as good as them, only a second-rate version of them. I wanted to be the best version of me. There are different ways of being brilliant. That is the amazing thing about cricket though, isn't it? There is so much space in the game for all sorts of people.

I was influenced by two batters, one of which wasn't a woman. I liked the way Debbie Hockley hit the ball to all parts of the ground. I also liked Ricky Ponting, who was just a little bit unorthodox. His bat didn't come through perfectly straight in the same way that some other batters did. But he was incredibly effective. Because he would take the ball and he would hit it in slightly unorthodox areas. And never gave his wicket away. He minimised his weaknesses and he maximised his ability to score from elsewhere.

What is it with Taylor and England women's cricket? Clare Taylor, the one who also played at the football World Cup, was telling me the other day, 'We used to say if your name is not Taylor, you are not going to be selected'. And Sarah Taylor, the wicketkeeping great, was your teammate.

And there were Taylors in the team before Clare. Maybe someone in this England team should change their name and be a Taylor, so we could be World champions again.

BASE jumping is one of the most dangerous extreme sports invented, an activity that has most rational beings wondering whether the reward is worth the risk. It involves jumping from fixed objects and using a parachute to descend to the ground. What's BASE, you ask. It's an acronym for the four categories of objects that athletes can jump off: buildings, antennas (radio masts), spans (bridges) and earth (cliffs).

What differentiates BASE jumping from other forms of parachuting, such as skydiving, is the lower altitudes, which makes it all the more hazardous. Skydivers deploy their parachutes above 2000 feet whereas BASE jumpers open theirs from lower than 500 feet.

BASE jumpers also carry only one parachute, which is larger and mechanically simpler than the standard skydiving parachute. The simplicity helps with reliability; there is no time during a BASE jump to troubleshoot more complicated equipment.

Competitions have been held since the 1980s. The criteria for judging jumps is the accuracy of the landing or the acrobatics performed during free fall.

Yamini finishes with silver medal in 57kg after a gruelling title clash

Indian judoka Yamini Mourya missed a gold medal narrowly, losing to England's Acelya Toprak in the women's 57kg final that stretched into Golden Score at the Commonwealth Games on Friday. Toprak, who eventually won on ippon, looked to score heavily by forcing the Indian on to the mat, but Yamini exhibited resilience.

Indian judokas added to the country's celebrations by clinching two historic gold medals at the Commonwealth Games at the Scottish Event Campus here on Friday.

Asmita Dey defeated Heidi Quach of Canada 2-1 in the 48kg women's final while Harsh Singh stunned Joshua Katz of Australia, who was the reigning bronze medallist, 10-0 in the men's 60kg summit clash.

Trailing 0-1, Asmita was under pressure as she had received a penalty. Unfazed, the 23-year-old from Belonia, South Tripura, pinned her opponent to level the scores.

After the four-minute regulation time, the contest went into the Golden Score period.

Asmita executed her plans with a decisive attack to score a famous 2-1 win.

Later, Harsh largely controlled the pace of the contest as both judokas went after each other, but the Indian's strategy was better equipped to handle the pressure.

The breakthrough eventually came when Harsh executed a well-timed attack to take a 10-0 lead and he jumped high in the air to celebrate the huge win.

Holding a 10kg lead in snatch and yet losing the gold medal by a narrow margin is enough to leave any weightlifter shattered.

That was Lovepreet Singh's fate in the men's +110kg super heavyweight competition of the Commonwealth Games at the Scottish Event Campus here on Thursday.

Lovepreet won silver with a total of 388kg behind New Zealand's David Liti (389).

The 29-year-old Indian, a bronze medallist (109kg) at the 2022 Birmingham Games, refused to surrender even as the battle swung dramatically in clean and jerk.

Lovepreet was ultimately denied gold by an athlete with greater experience and pedigree – Liti is a two-time Olympian.

"I should have finished it off in the clean and jerk. It was a costly miss," Lovepreet kept repeating to the mediapersons.

For someone who has had a difficult upbringing in Amritsar, where his father worked as a tailor, Lovepreet has come a long way.

Indian pugilists on the charge

The Indian boxers are on a bull run in the Commonwealth Games at the Scottish Event Campus here, and the national coaches are hoping for a golden harvest.

With 10 pugilists – four men and six women – through to the semifinals and an unprecedented 10 medals already assured, the coaches are hoping the team will surpass its medal haul from the 2022 Birmingham Games by converting as many of those assured podium finishes into gold.

Preeti Pawar set India on its way with a unanimous 5-0 victory over Zambia's Catherine Mwape in the women's 54kg semifinals on Friday. Ankush Panghal then kept the momentum going, producing a masterclass in controlled aggression and crisp mid-range combinations to outclass Canada's Joshua Ofori 5-0 in the men's 80kg bout.

Ofori, who was put on the count twice, had no answer to those Ankush's quick left-right combinations, timed to perfection, despite arriving in the city with a reputation as a hard puncher.

Reigning World champion Jaismine Lamboria is in a league of her own. As India's head coach Santiago Nieva put it, she is a "clean boxer who doesn't get into a mess easily."

The 24-year-old used her height and reach advantage against Rapelang Maselela of Lesotho to produce a commanding performance in the women's 57kg bout. The referee had to stop the contest in the second round after Maselela struggled to find her range and repeatedly missed.

The women's 70kg clash between Arundhati Choudhary and Wales' Rosie Eccles, however, was a totally different affair. It was a fiercely contested battle from the opening bell, with both refusing to take a step backward.

Jadumani Singh did what was expected of him with a 5-0 win over Philip Pumulo Haoseb of Namibia in the 55kg semifinal. Sakshi Chaudhary beat Canada's Amber-Jane Wall 5-0 to assure herself of at least a silver in 51kg.

Seema hogs the limelight

When discussions turn to Indian women's discus throw, they almost invariably begin with Seema Punia, the country's most celebrated thrower and a four-time Commonwealth Games medallist.

But on Thursday, another Seema – bespectacled, unassuming and far less known – stepped into the spotlight.

Seema Kaliramna – a 27-year-old PhD scholar, mother, and an athlete coached by her husband Ravinder Kaliramna – announced herself on the Commonwealth Games stage by winning the bronze medal at the Scotstoun Stadium.

Competing in her maiden Games, Seema produced a best throw of 58.65m to finish third behind Jamaica's Samantha Hall (61.66m) and Canada's Julia Tunks (60.67m), who claimed the gold and silver medals, respectively.

Seema started with a foul, threw 57.32, then came with an effort of 58.65m before again fouling her next three attempts.

'This is not permanent, decision on jersey could be changed after review'

HOCKEY

Uthra Ganesan
NEW DELHI

Amidst the controversy surrounding the change of Indian hockey teams' jersey, Hockey India (HI) president Dilip Tirkey has made it clear that the decision could well be reversed or changed after review.

"Changes were made earlier too, and this is not something permanent. We will get feedback from players and staff after the World Cup, discuss the pros and cons and make an informed decision.

"Whatever helps the teams to perform better will be done. But any changes – going back to the old uniform or something different – will only be done unanimously and with the full approval of everyone in the Executive Board (EB) and the team," Tirkey told The Hindu late

Tirkey. PTI

Friday. The new saffron-coloured jerseys have triggered a backlash from former players and fans alike and threaten to turn it into a political slugfest even as it brought the internal divisions within HI to the fore. Earlier in the day, Tirkey had dissociated himself from the decision and wrote to the Executive Board claiming that he had no knowledge of the same.

"This decision appears to have been taken and implemented without being placed before the EB for discussion and without my prior knowledge... I have also been asked by the Government of Odisha to provide clarification regarding this matter. I therefore request the concerned HI officials to provide me with a written clarification, outlining the basis of the decision, the process followed and the circumstances under which the change was approved and implemented," he wrote.

Tirkey also wrote to HI Director General Cdr. R.K. Srivastava seeking a detailed response on the same. He, however, admitted in his mail that he had publicly clarified that the change was purely a sporting decision only to ensure the teams' focus remained on preparing for the upcoming World Cup.

In response, Srivastava defended the move while the key argument indicates that the EB was not consulted or informed. "In the past, the format of jersey, including pattern/colour, has been changed only on the basis of feedback and decision of the players & coaches. Earlier also, there has been no committee or any approval taken from the Executive Board.

"One such recent change was done in November/ December 2022," Srivastava wrote.

Detailing the process of change, he said, "The process involved: Feedback from the national coaching staff, leadership group of players; technical review of visibility and contrast issues; design development with the kit partner; internal clearance through the appropriate officers responsible for high-performance operations and kit management. Extensive consultation took place with the current head coaches, support staff and playing group (including captains and senior athletes of both the teams)".

India's Yashaswini Ghorpade overcame a spirited challenge from Singapore teenager Chong Sian Zi to enter the women's singles pre-quarterfinals at the 22nd Commonwealth Table Tennis Championships at the Thyagaraj Stadium on Friday.

Fresh from playing a key role in India's team gold medal triumph, the third seed prevailed 4-1, but the scoreline scarcely reflected the quality of resistance offered by the 15-year-old Singaporean.

Chong countered Yashaswini's long-pimpled backhand with impressive composure, refusing to be drawn into errors and matching the Indian in extended rallies. The only one-sided game came in the third, when Yashaswini unleashed a series of forehand winners that left the teenager with few answers. Undeterred, Chong conti-

With the host nation allowed to field 16 paddlers each in the men's and women's singles, the Indians dominated the day's action and secured a majority of berths in the pre-quarterfinals.

Sayali Wani kept India's campaign on track with a hard-fought victory over Malaysia's Ying Ho, while Yashini Sivashankar exited after an encouraging display against Australia's Constantina Psihogios. The young Indian repeatedly tested the Australian before going down in a closely fought contest.

In men's singles, Payas Jain proved too strong for Malaysia's Choong Javen to move into the last 16. Defensive specialist H.
