Inflation breaches RBI's upper band

- Price pressures intensify across the board; 50 bps rate hike seen in FY27

New Delhi, November 12

INDIA'S RETAIL INFLATION rose above the Reserve Bank of India's (RBI) 2-6% tolerance range for the first time since October 2024, hitting a 2-year high of 6.09% in October, and raising expectations of more interest rate hikes this financial year, data released by the statistics ministry on Thursday showed.

FOOD INFLATION SPIKES TO 8.9% IN OCTOBER

The rise in consumer price index (CPI) inflation from 5.54% in September was led by higher food prices, but price pressures intensified across the board, with inflation rising across 11 of 12 major CPI divisions.

Core inflation continued to rise in October, reflecting the broadening price pressures. An unfavourable base effect also pushed the headline print higher.

CPI inflation was 0.04% in October 2025. "October CPI data show that India's elevated inflation is not merely a transitory, energy-driven supply shock," said Dhiraj Nim, senior economist, ANZ Bank India.

Tata's values, Reliance's speed: Mittal's mantra for Bharti@50

RISHI RAJ & OJASVI GUPTA
New Delhi, November 12

BETWEEN 2016 AND 2019, Sunil Bharti Mittal did something few founders are ever asked to do—he raised $18 billion in 34 months, simply to keep his company standing. "It looked as though the company could collapse," he recalls of the years after Reliance Jio's entry upended Indian telecom. "During those 34 months, I raised $18 billion simply to ensure our survival," he says in an interview with Financial Express.

Airtel survived. Now, as Bharti turns 50, the group that began as a small bicycle-components unit in Ludhiana in 1976 has its sights on AI data centres, sovereign cloud and compute.

The early years were a search for a foothold. Mittal tried manufacturing, trading and imports before a trip to Taiwan in the early 1980s changed his course. There he saw push-button telephones, then a novelty, and brought them home, making electronic phones in India through a technical collaboration with Siemens. Telecom equipment followed, and when mobile telephony opened up, Bharti was ready. Airtel launched mobile services in Delhi in 1995.

Next came a string of calls that look prescient in hindsight: GSM over CDMA, LTE over WiMAX, mobile phones over pagers. Airtel launched 4G in Kolkata years before most rivals took it seriously, and by the time Jio arrived in 2016 it had 4G coverage across the country. "We could foresee what was coming, partly because of developments in technology globally," Mittal says. "Several other operators failed to anticipate the transition." Foresight did not spare Airtel the pain. After nearly 20 years at the top, it slipped to number three as Vodafone Idea emerged and Jio offered free services. Mittal credits the recovery to his people. "Team Airtel was not stressed. They were out there in the marketplace and fought very hard," he says. "They fought their way back."

He is proud of what the industry built through that period. "Without healthy telecom operators, India would have suffered," he says, pointing to France, where stepping outside can mean hunting for a signal. "Here in India, for ₹200, ₹250 or ₹300, consumers expect connectivity even in the second basement of a building."

The battle also cost Bharti its wider ambitions. In 2007, Mittal had outlined a conglomerate spanning retail with Walmart, insurance with AXA and agriculture through Field-Fresh Foods. Little of it played out as planned. "We never had breathing space in telecom," he says. "If the environment in telecom had been more stable, we could have created two or three other companies."

The next frontier

This time, the diversification stays closer to the core. Airtel is building AI data centres for Google, Microsoft and Amazon. It is already a MeitY-certified sovereign cloud provider with 40-50 customers, including major banks, and it will eventually enter compute. "There is no reason why Indian customers' data should have to be processed outside the country," Mittal says. Indian firms cannot take on the global hyperscalers head-on, he concedes, but the two will coexist, with domestic players serving workloads where sovereignty matters most.

Financial services is the other bet. Airtel Money Africa has just listed in London as an FTSE 100 company valued at $7 billion, and Airtel Money has begun lending in India. Mittal expects it to become a strong vertical within two to three years.

NVIDIA CAUGHT IN CHINA'S TECH GAME P8
TRUMP SUGGESTS TIM COOK AS CEO P10

NVIDIA CEO JENSEN Huang is stepping down, leaving the artificial intelligence industry without its biggest champion and clouding the future of the chipmaker he built into an AI powerhouse.

Chief Financial Officer Colette Kress will take over as interim CEO as Nvidia looks for a permanent successor, considering both internal and external candidates, the company said on Thursday.

Huang, who co-founded Nvidia and is its fourth-largest investor with a stake of about 3.61%, will exit the board as well. Nvidia also named former Synopsys CEO and board member Harvey Jones as its first-ever board chair.

It shares dropped 7.6%, putting the company on course to lose about $500 billion in market value and dragging the broader market lower.

Pressure had been mounting on Huang in recent days after reports said the 63-year-old, who is married, had an affair with a Chinese businesswoman whom US authorities suspect of spying for Beijing.

Nvidia's board met on Wednesday to consider his ouster, a person familiar with the matter said, after reports earlier in the day that Huang also had an extramarital affair with a senior company executive who reported to him.

Huang's exit plunges the $4 trillion company into uncertainty and threatens to disrupt an AI ecosystem that he helped bankroll by pouring Nvidia's swelling cash pile back into cloud providers, suppliers and the industry's biggest labs. "The risk is not that Nvidia suddenly loses its technology roadmap ... that roadmap is largely visible for the next several years. The risk is execution. Jensen has been the chief conductor of a complex system," said Michael Feldman, portfolio manager at ClearBridge Investments.

Results focus likely to save ₹37,000 crore on Jal Mission

PRASANTA SAHU
New Delhi, November 12

THE CENTRE'S REVAMPED flagship Jal Jeevan Mission (JJM), aimed at providing tap water connections to rural households, could see savings of more than ₹37,000 crore in FY27 as the revamped scheme gets off to a slow start. States are taking time to meet the new conditions for fund utilisation and plugging leakages, sources told FE.

Against a Budget Estimate (BE) of ₹67,670 crore for the year, expenditure could be around ₹30,000 crore as states adjust to the revised framework. This framework shifts the focus from merely creating water supply infrastructure to ensuring that the systems are functional and water actually reaches households. The scheme seeks to strengthen accountability and make the delivery system more transparent.

Govt weighs RBI proposal to cut MPC minutes delay

KSHIPRA PETKAR & RAJAS KELKAR
Mumbai, November 12

THE GOVERNMENT IS examining a Reserve Bank of India (RBI) proposal to release the minutes of the Monetary Policy Committee (MPC) on the day of the rate decision, instead of after the current two-week gap, people with knowledge of the matter said.

The proposal, which has been under discussion within the central bank for some time, was recently sent to the government for approval, they said.

At present, the MPC minutes are published 14 days after the policy announcement. They provide a detailed account of individual members' voting decisions and the reasoning behind their positions.

Releasing them alongside the policy decision would offer financial markets an immediate insight into the deliberations shaping monetary policy.

The proposed change would, however, require an amendment to the RBI Act, 1934. Section 45ZL of the Act mandates the publication of MPC minutes on the 14th day after every meeting.

The minutes must include the committee's resolution, individual voting decisions and statements explaining members' positions.

Queries sent to the RBI remained unanswered until the time of going to press.

Bankers said that simultaneous disclosure could help avoid mixed signals from the central bank.

Under the existing arrangement, markets have to wait a fortnight to establish whether the views of individual MPC members are entirely in sync with the policy statement and the Governor's commentary.

The need for greater clarity was evident after the August policy review.

MARKET CLARITY

- The RBI has proposed releasing MPC minutes on the same day as the rate decision, replacing the existing 14-day delay

FALLING CRUDE PRICES, STRONGER RUPEE AND EARNINGS RECOVERY BOLSTER INDIA'S APPEAL

FPIs put money behind India's AI-hedge narrative

RAJAS KELKAR
Mumbai, November 12

FOR MONTHS, INDIA was on the wrong side of the global investment trade. Foreign portfolio investors (FPIs) were chasing the artificial intelligence boom in the US and technology-heavy Asian markets, leaving Indian equities out in the cold. But as doubts emerge over the sustainability of the AI rally, India's apparent disadvantage may be turning into an unexpected strength.

Foreign investors are now putting substantial money behind the India-as-an-AI-hedge narrative. Since October 16, net FPI inflows into Indian equities have crossed ₹1 lakh crore. November alone has attracted ₹78,803 crore so far, the highest monthly inflow ever. The previous high was ₹70,896 crore in November 2020 for the full calendar month.

The reversal is particularly striking against the backdrop of a wider retreat from Asian markets. In the second half of October, FPIs withdrew nearly $50 billion from Asian equities, including $14.6 billion from South Korea and $31 billion from Taiwan. India, too, was caught in the sell-off, witnessing outflows of $3.2 billion.

November has brought more of the same for much of Asia, but with one crucial difference: India has emerged as a beneficiary. While foreign investors have withdrawn $8.32 billion from South Korea and $19.72 billion from Taiwan, India has attracted net inflows of $8.5 billion.

The shift away from crowded AI trades is only one part of the story. Falling crude oil prices, a strengthening rupee and signs of an improvement in corporate earnings have added to India's appeal. Valuations, too, have become more reasonable. The Nifty 50 is currently trading at around 18 times its one-year forward earnings, against more than 23 times at its recent peak.

Sanjeev Prasad, managing director and co-head of Kotak Institutional Equities, believes corporate earnings are finally beginning to deliver. "Earnings have been good in the first quarter and better in the second quarter. The next mega returns must come from earnings growth," he said.

Kotak Institutional Equities expects corporate earnings to grow 19% in FY27 and 13% in FY28.

Manishi Raychaudhuri, CEO of Hong Kong-based Emmer Capital Partners, agreed that the earnings picture is improving. "The India story is not looking as bad as it was made out to be. Earlier, the macroeconomic growth in India had an earnings problem," he said.

In 2024-25, earnings initially projected by analysts at 100 would eventually end up at 80, he pointed out. That pattern of persistent earnings downgrades now appears to be reversing.

The decline in crude oil prices could provide another significant tailwind.

As one of the world's largest oil importers, India stands to benefit from a sustained fall in global crude prices. Cheaper oil would ease inflationary pressures, support the rupee, improve corporate margins and strengthen the country's external balances — all factors that could make Indian equities more attractive to overseas investors.

But the scale of the turnaround raises an important question: is this the beginning of a sustained foreign investment cycle, or merely a sharp rebound driven partly by short-covering?

Prasad is firmly in the first camp. "This is proper buying with cash inflows and can be sustainable," he said.

Canada trade talks to finish by Dec

● Modi set to visit Canada next month

FE BUREAU
New Delhi, November 12

INDIA AND CANADA are aiming to conclude negotiations for a comprehensive economic partnership agreement (CEPA) during Prime Minister Narendra Modi's proposed visit to the north American country next month, Canadian International Trade Minister Maninder Sidhu said on Thursday. He pitched Canada as a long-term supplier of liquefied natural gas (LNG), uranium and critical minerals to meet India's growing energy and manufacturing requirements.

Canadian International Trade Minister Maninder Sidhu meets Civil Aviation Minister K Rammohan Naidu on the sidelines of the CII Partnership Summit in Visakhapatnam on Thursday

Speaking at the CII Partnership Summit in Visakhapatnam, Sidhu said the sixth round of negotiations between the chief negotiators of the two countries was underway and expressed hope that the agreement would be finalised before Modi's visit. "We're negotiating right now with India. I'm here for round six between our chief negotiators, and we're going to hopefully get there by the time Prime Minister Modi visits Canada next month," he said.

Sidhu said the two economies were complementary, with Canada's natural resources and technological capabilities offering opportunities to support India's expanding energy requirements, electric vehicle manufacturing and industrial growth.

The minister said Canadian pension funds and institutional investors were also keen to expand their investments in India, particularly in data centres and artificial intelligence infrastructure. Canadian investors, including Fairfax, had already invested more than $100 billion in India, he said. "If you look at it collectively, Canada is the largest investor in India," Sidhu said.

India already sources a range of commodities from Canada, including pulses, potash fertilisers, coal, crude oil, wood pulp and non-ferrous metals. Canada has emerged as an important supplier of heavy crude oil to India over the past five years.

The two countries are now looking to expand this relationship to LNG, nuclear fuel and critical minerals. A memorandum of understanding on critical minerals value chains was signed during Canadian Prime Minister Mark Carney's visit to India in March this year, covering cooperation in exploration, mining, beneficiation, processing and investment. During the visit a $2.5-billion deal was signed for the supply of uranium to India, Sidhu said. The agreement was signed between Canada's Cameco and India's Department of Atomic Energy in March. Cameco will supply nearly 22 million pounds of uranium over nine years, with deliveries beginning in 2027.

We don't steal tech: Goyal weighs in on AI usurpation row

FE BUREAU
New Delhi, November 12

AS REPORTS EMERGE of Chinese entities using clandestine procurement networks to acquire advanced US-made AI chips despite export restrictions, India has sought to distinguish itself as a trusted destination for high-technology investments, with Commerce and Industry Minister Piyush Goyal on Thursday assuring foreign investors that the country neither seeks forced technology transfers nor appropriates their intellectual property.

> PIYUSH GOYAL, COMMERCE AND INDUSTRY MINISTER

> India always respects intellectual property rights... We ensure what is rightfully yours remains with you

"India always respects intellectual property rights. We don't ask you to transfer technology to India. We don't steal anybody's technology. We ensure what is rightfully yours remains with you," Goyal said while addressing the CII Partnership Summit in Visakhapatnam on Thursday.

His remarks assume significance at a time when intellectual property protection, technology security and the integrity of semiconductor supply chains are emerging as critical considerations in global investment decisions.

Without naming China, Goyal sought to underline India's commitment to protecting proprietary technology and ensuring that foreign companies retain ownership of their innovations even as they use the country as a manufacturing, research and development base.

The minister said the government was supporting research and innovation through a dedicated R&D fund, enabling global companies to undertake research, design and development in India at around one-fifth or one-sixth of the cost in Europe, the US or Canada.

"We are supporting intellectual property so that you can own it, run it, manufacture from it with the assurance that your technology, your IPR, your intellectual property rights will be safe and secure," he said.

INDIAN EXPORTERS WILL get the most preferential access to the US market under the proposed bilateral trade agreement, Commerce and Industry Minister Piyush Goyal said on Thursday, adding that India had negotiated a favourable set of outcomes with Washington.

India would secure preferential access over competing countries that export similar products and are at a comparable level of development, Goyal said on the sidelines of the CII Partnership Summit. He, however, declined to disclose the extent of the tariff advantage, saying the details would be revealed only after the pact was announced.

A decision on the timing of the next round of talks would be taken by the negotiating teams, Goyal added. —FE BUREAU

Andhra draws investment proposals worth ₹5.84L cr

● RIL commits ₹2.73 lakh cr, Kia ₹18,878 cr

FE BUREAU
New Delhi, November 12

ANDHRA PRADESH ATTRACTED investment proposals worth ₹5.84 lakh crore on the opening day of the two-day 31st CII Partnership Summit in Visakhapatnam on Thursday, with Reliance Industries, Kia India, ReNew Energy Global and GAIL leading the commitments.

As many as 73 memorandums of understanding (MoUs) and 15 government orders were signed or exchanged, carrying the potential to generate 100,700 jobs, the state government said. Chief Minister N Chandrababu Naidu said that the state will sign 303 MoUs involving investments of ₹9.89 lakh crore during the summit. The investment proposals spanned sectors such as manufacturing, renewable energy, automobiles, chemicals, food processing, and electronics.

Reliance Industries led the general manufacturing segment with a proposed investment of ₹2.73 lakh crore in East Godavari district, followed by Rashmi Metallurgical Industry with ₹18,500 crore in Srikakulam and JSW Group with ₹15,000 crore in Kadapa.

Renewable energy attracted proposals worth ₹1.65 lakh crore. Major investors included Greenko Energies, with a proposed investment of ₹45,000 crore across multiple districts, Clean Max Enviro Energy Solutions (₹41,000 crore) and Megha Engineering & Infrastructures (₹36,000 crore) in Krishna district. The automobile, auto components and electric vehicle segment secured four MoUs worth ₹21,285 crore. Kia India accounted for the largest proposal at ₹18,878 crore, followed by Hero MotoCorp with ₹1,457 crore. The proposed Kia facility will add 200,000 units of annual capacity, taking the automaker's total capacity in the country from 430,000 to 630,000 vehicles. The proposed development will be spread across 465 acres and is expected to generate around 12,000 direct and indirect jobs.

The chemicals and petrochemicals sector attracted six MoUs worth ₹19,995 crore. GAIL India led the segment with a proposed investment of ₹13,500 crore in Srikakulam. Food processing secured investment commitments of ₹4,770 crore, electronics and semiconductors ₹4,300 crore, and aerospace and defence ₹3,406 crore. Investment proposals of ₹8,193 crore came in sectors such as textiles and garments, pharmaceuticals and life sciences.

ReNew Energy Global also announced fresh investments of nearly ₹80,000 crore in Andhra Pradesh, with the bulk of the spending earmarked for a 1 gigawatt (GW) green hyperscale data centre, as the firm expands into digital infrastructure alongside solar and permanent magnet manufacturing. Of the total investment, ₹67,000 crore will go towards the data centre in Anakapalli, ₹11,000 crore towards polysilicon and metallurgical silicon manufacturing facilities in Anakapalli & Nellore, ₹1,500 crore towards a permanent magnet manufacturing plant in Rambilli.

INCENTIVE PAYOUTS JUST 18.5%

PLIs meet 76% of investment target till FY26

FE BUREAU
New Delhi, November 12

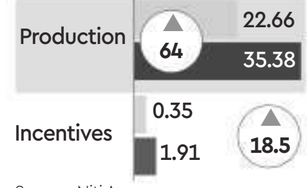

THE PRODUCTION-LINKED INCENTIVE (PLI) schemes, meant for boosting domestic manufacturing and export production, have attracted investments of ₹2.4 lakh crore and generated incremental production and sales of ₹22.66 lakh crore till March 31, 2026. This is when 58% of the schemes' tenure has elapsed.

Investments till the end of FY26 were an impressive 76% of the full-tenure target of ₹3.15 lakh crore, while production stood at ₹22.66 lakh crore, achieving 64% of the target of ₹35.37 lakh crore, according to an impact assessment by Niti Aayog and IIM Ahmedabad. Exports under the schemes crossed ₹15.2 lakh crore, while they supported over 1.42 million direct and indirect jobs across 14 sectors, with 892 applications approved.

The PLI policy was launched in 2021-22 to assist Indian companies to scale up and become large enough to compete globally. There are 14 schemes currently, with the government seeking to offer ₹1.91 lakh crore in incentives by FY30. But only ₹35,354 crore, or 18.5% of the ₹1.91 lakh crore incentives linked to investments, sales/turnover, and value addition, has been disbursed till March 2026. This is seen partly due to red tape and partly due to the long gestation period of some schemes. The payouts are likely to accelerate from next year onward. PLI incentive payout has been the highest in the drones sector, at 77.5% of its allocated outlay, followed by mobile and electronics at 55.8% and pharmaceuticals at 44.4%, as of March 2026.

Reliance, JSW, Exide among 22 bidders for ACC battery PLI

NITIN KUMAR
New Delhi, November 12

RELIANCE INDUSTRIES, JSW Neo Energy, Exide Energy Solutions and Amara Raja Advanced Cell Technologies are among 22 companies that have bid for 10 GWh of advanced chemistry cell (ACC) battery manufacturing capacity under the production-linked incentive (PLI) scheme, signalling growing interest among large industrial players in the country's emerging energy storage market.

The Ministry of Heavy Industries opened technical bids on Wednesday for the capacity, which is earmarked for grid-scale stationary storage applications and forms part of the government's broader target of establishing 50 GWh of domestic ACC manufacturing capacity. The list of bidders includes firms such as ACME Solar Holdings, Avaada Electro, Waaree Energy Storage Solutions and Vikram Solar, alongside power equipment makers Fujiyama Power Systems and Shirdi Sai Electricals.

The tender comes more than five years after the scheme was approved by the Union Cabinet in May 2021, with a budgetary outlay of ₹18,100 crore to incentivise the establishment of 50 GWh of domestic ACC manufacturing capacity. The Centre initially allocated the entire capacity to four companies in March 2022 — Ola Electric (20 GWh), Hyundai Global Motors (20 GWh), Rajesh Exports (5 GWh) and Reliance New Energy Solar (5 GWh). However, Hyundai Global Motors withdrew from the scheme in August 2022 after Hyundai Motor Company publicly clarified that it had no association with the company. The withdrawal left 20 GWh unallocated, prompting the ministry to initiate fresh bidding rather than distribute the capacity among companies in the original waiting list.

Food inflation spikes to 8.94% in Oct, onion prices skyrocket

SANDIP DAS
New Delhi, November 12

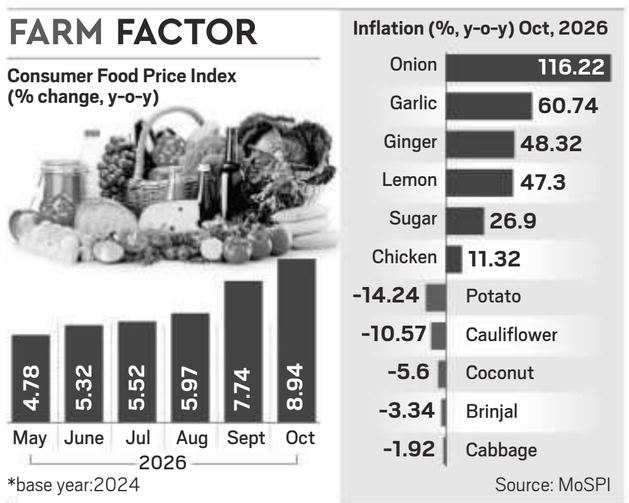

FOOD INFLATION, AS measured by the revised consumer food price index (CFPI), moved sharply upwards to touch 8.94% in October, primarily because onion, ginger, garlic, sugar, chicken, and edible oils became far costlier.

Food inflation was 7.74% in September 2026, and it was in negative territory for seven months through December 2025. Food inflation was 2.13% in January 2026, when the new consumer price index (CPI) series with a base year of 2024 was introduced. The highest food inflation was reported at 9.04% in November 2024.

Inflation in onion (116.22%), garlic (60.74%), ginger (48.32%), lemon (47.3%), sugar (26.94%), chicken (11.32%) and mustard oil (9.82%) reported steep increases, according to the statistics ministry. The retail prices of vegetable oils rose to 11.11% in October year-on-year.

According to rating agency Icra, the inflation in the food and beverage segment might remain elevated above the 8% mark in November 2026, similar to the print seen in October 2026, with upward pressure from prices of items such as milk, sugar and onions.

Sodium-ion batteries gain traction on lower costs

● Cell emerging as most cost-effective alternative to lithium-ion: Report

SAURAV ANAND
New Delhi, November 12

SODIUM-ION BATTERIES ARE emerging as the most cost-effective alternative among developing battery technologies to lithium-ion storage, offering 21% lower lifetime ownership costs despite higher upfront prices, according to Wood Mackenzie. With global supply agreements exceeding 70 gigawatt-hours (GWh), the technology is entering commercial production even as India's battery storage requirement is projected to rise nearly sevenfold by 2031-32.

The development comes as India's battery energy storage system (BESS) requirement is projected to rise from 34.72 GWh in 2026-27 to 236.22 GWh by 2031-32, according to the Central Electricity Authority's national electricity plan. These projections cover the broader battery storage market, not sodium-ion alone.

Wood Mackenzie's report, 'Sodium-ion Batteries: Commercialisation Begins, Economics to Follow', covering China, the US, Germany and India, finds that leading manufacturers could achieve cell-level cost parity with lithium iron phosphate (LFP) batteries by the end of 2026. However, parity at the module and system levels is expected only after 2030.

Currently, sodium-ion batteries have a global average upfront cost of $229 per kilowatt-hour (kWh), compared with $200/kWh for LFP. However, their total cost of ownership over a 20-year project life is estimated to be 21% lower, primarily due to reduced operating expenditure and the elimination of battery capacity augmentation requirements.

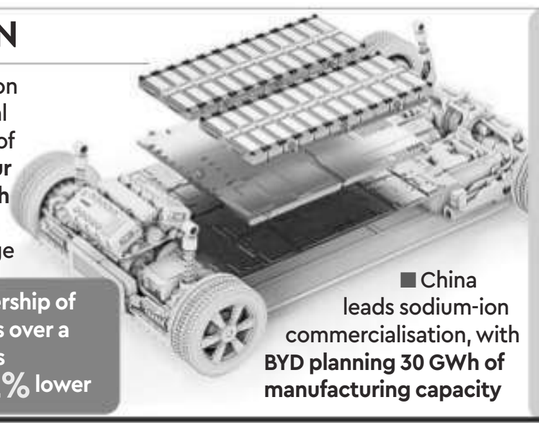

"SIB wins on supply chain security, cycle life and wide thermal threshold," said Ankita Chauhan, director, global supply chain and integrated power & renewables research at Wood Mackenzie. "Geopolitical supply advantages and superior performance of SIB across temperature ranges drive near-term commercialisation," she added.

China leads sodium-ion commercialisation, with BYD planning 30 GWh of manufacturing capacity and CATL targeting shipments of at least 1 GWh by the end of 2026. Wood Mackenzie estimates China's manufacturing learning rate at 18-20% during 2026-2035.

India, however, remains in the early commercial validation stage, compared with China, the US and Europe, where significant supply agreements have been secured. The report identified India's underdeveloped supply chain as a constraint on near-term deployment.

The International Energy Agency noted that global sodium-ion battery production in 2025 was less than 1% of lithium-ion output, underlining the technology' limited commercial scale despite growing investment commitments.

POWER PLAN

- Currently, sodium-ion batteries have a global average upfront cost of $229 per kilowatt-hour (kWh), compared with $200/kWh for lithium iron phosphate storage
- Total cost of ownership of sodium-ion batteries over a 20-year project life is estimated to be 21% lower

CAG begins audit of discoms to help frame better policies

FE BUREAU
New Delhi, November 12

THE COMPTROLLER AND Auditor General (CAG) has begun a nationwide performance audit of state-run power distribution companies (discoms), covering 39 discoms across the country and five states where electricity distribution is still handled by government departments.

The audit on operational and financial performance is aimed at identifying the problems plaguing the distribution sector and helping the Centre and state governments frame policies to address them, particularly as losses in the sector continue to put pressure on state finances, sources said.

Unlike earlier audits, which covered individual discoms in different states at different times, the latest exercise will examine 39 discoms simultaneously across 27 states, along with five departmental undertakings. As many as 28 field audit offices are involved in the exercise, which will assess the financial and operational performance of the utilities using common audit parameters.

The audit will cover five years from FY22 to FY26. The individual state reports would start to flow in from mid-next year. This is the first part of a five-year plan to examine the entire power sector, covering both central and state entities. Transmission will be taken up next year, followed by renewable energy and power generation in subsequent years.

The CAG has prepared the audit plan with the help of IIM Ahmedabad and after consultations with the Ministry of Power, the Central Electricity Authority, electricity regulators, central and state power companies and other stakeholders. Field audit offices across the country were also consulted to ensure that differences in the challenges faced by individual states are taken into account.

The idea is not just to produce separate audit reports but also to identify common problems across states and flag them to policymakers at the Centre. The findings are expected to help the Centre identify gaps that require national-level policy intervention, while giving state governments a clearer picture of the problems specific to their power utilities and the changes needed in their policies.

The CAG believes better and more consistent data will help both the Centre and states make more informed decisions on power sector planning.

Regulator tightens cancer drug price monitoring

- NPPA directs states to ensure compliance

MANU KAUSHIK
New Delhi, November 12

LESS THAN A week after revised prices of anti-cancer drugs came into effect, the National Pharmaceutical Pricing Authority (NPPA) on Thursday asked state drug controllers to step up monitoring of prices of 137 non-scheduled (decontrolled) anti-cancer drugs. The directive brings hospitals, pharmacies and drug distributors under closer scrutiny.

The move comes amid concerns that the government's latest price-control intervention might not translate into meaningful savings for patients unless the revised rates are implemented on the ground.

In an office memorandum, the NPPA directed state drug controllers to ensure that manufacturers, distributors, retailers and hospitals implement the revised maximum retail prices (MRPs), which came into effect on November 9. It has also asked the states to submit action taken reports by November 16.

Further, retailers, dealers, hospitals and medical institutions have been directed to prominently display revised price lists at their premises and on their websites. Hospitals and medical institutions have also been asked to monitor the MRPs of medicines to ensure compliance. The regulator said complaints relating to overcharging, shortages and non-availability of medicines could be reported through its portal, helpline or email.

Anay Shukla, founding partner at Arogya Legal, said the enforcement of the order could be easier than that of other price-control measures because cancer medicines are not sold over the counter. "The relatively narrow list of medicines covered and limited sales channels could also make monitoring and compliance slightly easier," he said.

The monitoring push follows strong criticism from the Supreme Court over the country's drug pricing system. During hearings in October, the court questioned the wide gap between the prices at which retailers purchase medicines and the maximum prices charged to patients. In one instance, it cited a medicine bought by retailers for ₹15 but carrying an MRP of ₹250. The bench also questioned whether the NPPA was doing enough to regulate drug prices and why patients should bear such high costs when they have little bargaining power.

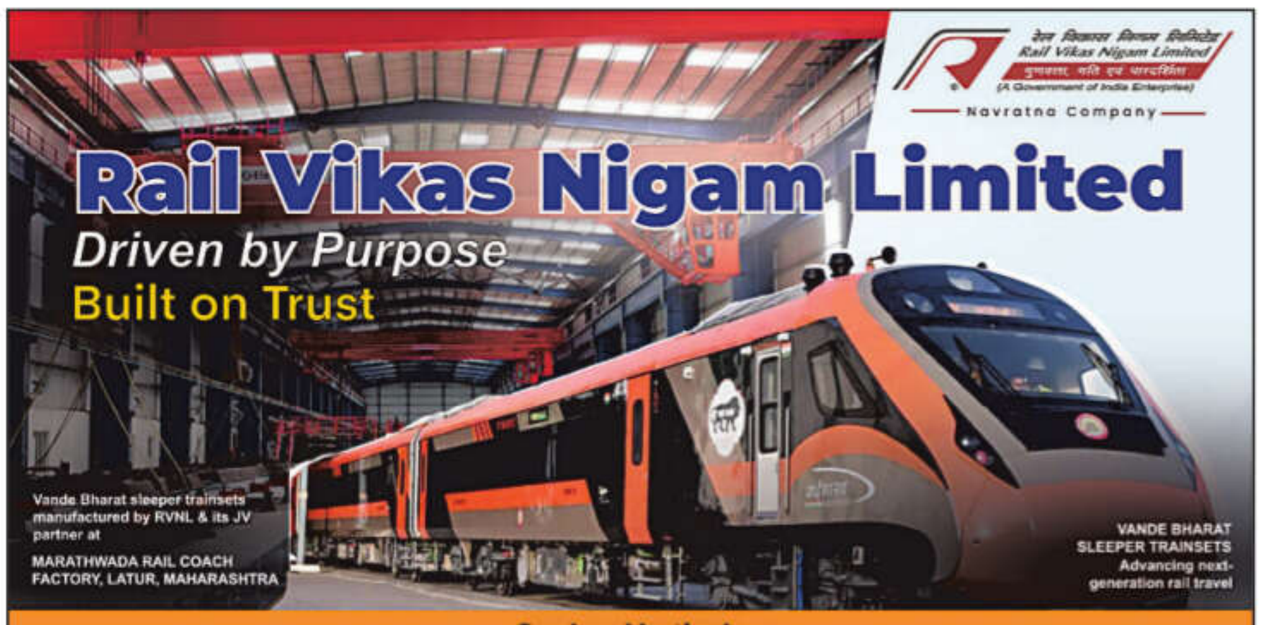

The court has reserved its verdict on petitions concerning drug pricing and access to affordable medicines. It has also asked the central government to examine whether stronger price control measures could be extended to other medicines and medical devices.

GST-LED DEMAND LIFTS INDIA'S SHARE IN SUZUKI'S AUTO REVENUE TO 45%

INDIA HAS EMERGED as the biggest growth engine for Suzuki Motor Corporation, accounting for nearly two-thirds of the Japanese automaker's incremental automobile revenue in the first half of FY27, as the Goods and Services Tax (GST) reduction triggered a sharp recovery in domestic vehicle demand. Revenue from Maruti Suzuki India contributed 45% of Suzuki Motor Corporation's global automobile revenue in April-September, up from 41.7% a year earlier, reflecting the growing weight of the Indian market in the Japanese company's global business. India generated 1,390.7 billion yen (₹82,000 crore) in automobile revenue during the H1FY27, a 28.9% increase from 1,079 billion yen (₹63,600 crore) a year earlier.

'We expect UK biz to move close to break-even by Q4'

Tata Steel is focusing on cost reduction in Europe, reassessing the economics of its Netherlands green steel project and evaluating two locations for domestic electric arc furnaces. The company expects an improvement in Indian steel demand in the second half of FY27. MD and CEO TV Narendran and CFO Koushik Chatterjee speak to Urvi Malvania. Excerpts:

The UK and Netherlands operations have faced headwinds. How confident are you of bringing the UK business to break-even by Q4?

Narendran: The Netherlands has delivered a better Q2 than Q1 and we expect Q3 and Q4 to be better than Q2. It has historically been Ebitda-positive and cash-positive. The UK remains more challenging. We have reduced fixed costs by £500 million and closed blast furnaces, but excess imports have constrained volumes. We need 550,000 tonne per quarter to break even and are currently at 400,000 tonne. We expect inventories to ease by Q4, taking us close to break-even. Annual contract renegotiations should support revenues, although higher energy costs have added £20 million per quarter.

How are you insulating operations from external challenges, particularly in Europe?

Narendran: We focus on what is within our control, including input, conversion and fixed costs. We set annual cost reduction targets across geographies and monitor them closely. We also engage with governments on policy issues. Steel is a geopolitically sensitive industry, affected by trade flows and wars, with governments closely involved because of its employment significance.

Chatterjee: These are largely stagnant markets, with limited headroom and little margin for error. We are focusing on volumes, asset reliability, cost reduction and efficiencies. Higher natural gas and carbon costs make these efforts more important. Regulatory barriers are also supporting prices, and we need to capture the resulting improvement in spreads.

The letter of intent for the Netherlands DRI-EAF project has been extended until March 2027. What alternatives are you considering?

Chatterjee: Two issues have led to the extension. Certain conditions, including policy changes relating to slag and clarity on the coke gas plant closure, remain unresolved. We hope to get greater certainty on these.

Separately, engineering work at the existing plant has indicated significantly higher capital expenditure than initially estimated, affecting the investment case. We are evaluating alternatives with the government and need to optimise capex to make the project viable.

What gives you confidence of achieving the FY27 cost improvement target of ₹7,140 crore?

Chatterjee: H1 volumes were affected by the Netherlands shutdown, slower-than-planned Kalinganagar ramp-up and inventory in the UK. We expect these to improve in H2 and support cost savings. Natural gas price stabilisation should also help. We are taking on additional targets to achieve our original FY27 goal. Cost improvement is a continuous process involving productivity, revenues, volumes and debottlenecking.

Will domestic steel price increases sustain in H2?

Narendran: We expect Q3 prices to be ₹3,500 per tonne higher than Q2, with September's recovery providing a higher base. New auto contracts will also come into effect in H2. We expect demand to improve across sectors. January-June is typically the strongest period, driven by construction, which accounts for 60% of steel consumption, and a seasonal lull in Chinese exports.

Parsi high priest writes to PM over Tata dispute

● Urges stakeholders to choose dialogue over disagreement

URVI MALVANIA
Mumbai, November 12

VADA DASTURJI KHURSHED Dastoor, High Priest of the Iranshah Atash Behram in Udvada, Gujarat, has written to Prime Minister Narendra Modi, appealing for restraint and reconciliation amid the ongoing differences involving Tata Sons, Tata Trusts and the Shapoorji Pallonji (SP) Group.

In his November 11 letter, a copy of which FE has reviewed, Dastoor highlighted the SP Group's philanthropic contributions to the Zoroastrian community over the past three decades.

He said the interests of the community and its philanthropic legacy should not be compromised by prolonged disputes between individuals or institutions.

"What began as a corporate and governance matter has unfortunately evolved into a prolonged public disagreement, with the potential to affect institutions and relationships that have been built over generations.

"I sincerely hope that all concerned parties will exercise restraint, wisdom and maturity, and choose dialogue over disagreement," the high priest said.

The letter details several initiatives undertaken by the SP Group, including the restoration of fire temples across western and northern India. These include the Iranshah Atash Behram in Udvada, Vesu Agiary in Surat, New Delhi Dar-e-Meher and Thoothi Agiary in Mumbai.

The group has also made a substantial endowment to the School of Oriental and African Studies (SOAS) in London to establish the SOAS Shapoorji Pallonji Institute for Zoroastrian Studies.

Other contributions cited in the letter include the establishment and operation of an old-age home on the premises of Parsi General Hospital in Mumbai, financial and managerial support to Masina Hospital, and the running of an institution for elderly widows.

"Towards these and many other initiatives, the SP Group has invested substantial time and resources to benefit the Zoroastrian community in India and globally," Dastoor said.

The letter comes against the backdrop of differences involving Tata Sons and its majority shareholder, Tata Trusts, which spilled into the public domain following the September 17 board meeting of the Tata Group's holding company.

The SP Group, which holds around 18.37% in Tata Sons, has been seeking liquidity for its investment in the company. Tata Trusts chairman and nominee director on the Tata Sons board, Noel Tata, had submitted a proposal that would allow the SP Group to access liquidity of ₹25,000 crore over the next few months. The Tata Sons board has yet to comment on the proposal.

Calling for the matter to be resolved within the framework of law, Dastoor said preserving philanthropic institutions and upholding the rule of law were not competing objectives, but could reinforce each other. He urged all parties to resolve their differences through dialogue.

Vi revenue grows 1.7% in Q2; misses estimates

URVI MALVANIA
Mumbai, November 12

TELECOM OPERATOR VODAFONE Idea on Thursday reported a 59.2% widening of net loss sequentially at ₹5,975 crore in Q2, as compared to a loss of ₹3,754 crore in the June quarter. Net loss was higher than Bloomberg estimates of ₹5,263 crore.

Revenue from operations in Q2 stood at ₹11,884 crore, almost rising 1.7% over ₹11,689 crore in the previous quarter. Vodafone Idea slightly missed Bloomberg estimates of ₹11,906 crore on revenue.

Earnings before interest, tax, depreciation and amortisation (Ebitda) at ₹4,981 crore was 1.1% lower than ₹5,034 crore in the preceding period, behind Bloomberg estimates of ₹5,127 crore. Ebitda margin was down 110 basis points sequentially at 41.9% (Q1: 43.1%).

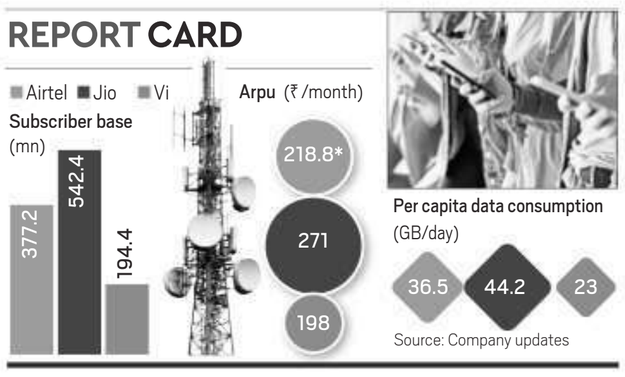

"Our Q2FY27 performance reflects steady progress against our priorities. We are encouraged by the continued improvement in our net subscriber additions, supported by our network expansion and enhanced customer experience," chief executive Abhijit Kishore said.

Blended average revenue per user (Arpu) rose to ₹178 from ₹177 in the previous quarter. However, this remains lower than that of peers. Reliance Jio reported Arpu of ₹218.8 in the period, rising from ₹215.6 sequentially. Vodafone Idea's mobile only Arpu was ₹198 in Q2, compared to ₹195 in Q1. Bharti Airtel saw mobile only ARPU increase to ₹271 in Q2 from ₹264 in Q1.

Vodafone Idea's subscriber base stood at 194.4 million at the end of the quarter, compared with 193.1 million in the preceding three-month period, continuing and accelerating subscriber base expansion from Q1 when it reported net subscriber addition of 300,000.

Pidilite bets on growth brands, sees demand sustaining in H2

VIVEAT SUSAN PINTO
Mumbai, November 12

PIDILITE INDUSTRIES, BEST-KNOWN for its Fevicol, Dr Fixit and Fevikwik brands, expects to sustain double-digit underlying volume growth in the second half of FY27, backed by resilient demand across rural and urban markets, continued traction in its growth brands and a strong repair and renovation business.

The optimism comes amid commodity price volatility, which is putting pressure on margins and prompting the company to undertake calibrated price increases. While Brent crude oil has dipped below $92 to a barrel following hopes of US-Iran and Russia-Ukraine peace talks, experts say the situation remains fluid.

"We are committed to being able to deliver this momentum of the first half, which is double-digit underlying volume growth leading to about 20% revenue growth," managing director Sudhanshu Vats said during a media interaction this week.

The company reported consolidated revenue of ₹4,285 crore, up over 21%, while underlying volume growth stood at 10.7% in the September quarter, taking first-half growth to around 11%. Growth was broad-based, with its consumer and bazaar business performing well, a recovery in B2B volumes and domestic and international subsidiaries reporting growth in the high teens to early twenties.

Pidilite took price increases of around 12% in the first quarter and another 3-5% in October. Further increases of around 2-3% in the fourth quarter remain a possibility, depending on input cost movements.

"Demand is holding. We have seen robust demand in Q1, very robust demand in Q2 and steady demand as we enter Q3," Vats said. He added that the company remained confident of delivering full-year Ebitda margins in the 20-24% range, with an aspiration to be at the higher end of the band.

Commodity inflation, particularly in vinyl acetate monomer (VAM), a key raw material for Fevicol, has been a major challenge. Vats said VAM prices, which were around $800-900 last year, surged to nearly $2,000 following geopolitical tensions in West Asia before cooling and rising again. The company's VAM consumption cost increased to around $1,600 in Q2 from approximately $880 in the preceding quarter.

Despite the volatility, Pidilite reported first-half EBITDA margins of 23.5%, with margins fluctuating from 26.3% in Q1 to 20.5% in Q2.

Q-comm grabs a bigger slice of muted online festive sales

ANEES HUSSAIN
Bengaluru, November 12

QUICK COMMERCE TOOK a bigger share of online festive sales this year as shoppers turned to the channel for smaller-ticket categories such as home decor, festive gifting and essentials, moving away from big-ticket items like smartphones that have traditionally been the mainstay of e-commerce marketplaces.

Its share rose to about 16% during the festive sale period of October 7 to November 9, up from 12% last year, according to Datum Intelligence, even as overall online spending saw its first slowdown in three years. Quick commerce gross merchandise value (GMV) grew about 60% to ₹22,528 crore this festive season, from ₹14,080 crore last year. In comparison, the rest of online retail, including e-commerce marketplaces and brand websites, recorded GMV growth of only about 12%, the data showed.

Grocery and festive gifting saw the biggest gains. Grocery was the fastest-growing online category this festive season, with sales rising about 40% over last year. More than 75% of grocery and festive gifting sales during the season moved to quick commerce, according to industry estimates.

The pull towards faster deliveries also showed in the performance of quick commerce arms of e-commerce companies. Amazon Now's daily orders were up 18 times over last year, while its first-time shoppers increased 23 times. Flipkart Minutes' orders on the first day of Big Billion Days were 3.5 times its normal daily volume. Myntra's M-Now orders were 2.6 times those during its previous Big Fashion Festival. Brand websites, too, increasingly relied on faster deliveries, with hyperlocal shipments accounting for 5% of their orders this festive season, up from 2.6% last year, according to shipping platform ClickPost.

The gains came on a larger network. Quick commerce platforms entered the festive season with 7,153 dark stores, up 34% from last year, according to industry estimates. Amazon Now has expanded its presence to more than 120 cities from over 60 in mid-September, while Flipkart Minutes now operates in more than 130 cities. With Amazon Now and Flipkart Minutes joining Blinkit, Zepto, Swiggy Instamart, BigBasket and JioMart, the market now has seven large players

Order volumes also grew fastest on quick commerce platforms. The channel recorded a 75% rise in orders over last year, against 30% growth for brand websites and 8% for horizontal e-commerce marketplaces, according to Unicommerce.

These order volumes grew faster than quick commerce's overall GMV, which increased about 60%, suggesting that shoppers placed more but smaller orders. Such orders can weigh on platforms' margins, as the cost of each delivery remains broadly the same irrespective of the order value, analysts said.

Much of the increase in orders came from festive and ritual purchases, industry estimates showed. Rather than planning these purchases days in advance on marketplaces, shoppers ordered gold and silver coins, diyas, brooms, steel utensils, decorative lights and gift hampers for Dhanteras and Diwali through quick commerce platforms.

These platforms also saw higher demand for festive clothing and footwear. Much of the buying came in the last few days before Diwali. Searches for quick commerce between Dhanteras and Diwali were 45% higher than in the first five days of the sales, according to Google Trends data compiled by Datum Intelligence.

Platforms' own figures reflected the trend. Instamart's party orders in the week before Diwali rose 162% over last year, while Flipkart Minutes sold four times as many gift envelopes over Diwali as it did a year ago, the companies said.

BUCKING THE ONLINE TREND

- Quick commerce's share of online festive sales rose to 16% in 2026, from 12% last year
- Grocery sales grew 40% y-o-y, the fastest among online categories
- Dark store count rose 34%, with Amazon Now expanding its presence to the most cities among peers
- Orders on quick commerce platforms grew 75% y-o-y, outpacing brand websites (30%) and horizontal e-commerce marketplaces (8%)
- Smartphones, traditionally the largest category in online festive sales, accounted for 25% cent of sales, down from 35.2% last year

INVESTOR SAYS FIRM HAS NOT SOUGHT STAY ON $650-MN ARBITRATION AWARD

Tata Power appeal does not halt enforcement: Kleros

RAGHAVENDRA KAMATH
Mumbai, November 12

KLEROS CAPITAL PARTNERS has said Tata Power's appeal against a Singapore court judgment does not stay enforcement of an arbitration award exceeding $650 million in its favour, adding that the Indian power company has not sought a stay on the enforcement proceedings. The statement comes alongwith Tata Power's Managing Director and CEO Praveer Sinha saying that the company believed it had a strong case to challenge the enforcement and that the sale of shares in its Singapore subsidiaries could be a long-drawn process.

"Tata Power has not sought a stay on the enforcement," Kleros said. The investment firm said the appeal filed by Tata Power before the Singapore Court of Appeal against the Singapore International Commercial Court's (SICC) judgment did not affect enforcement of the Singapore International Arbitration Centre (SIAC) awards. The appeal is scheduled to be heard on January 19, 2027.

The SICC has authorised the seizure and sale of Tata Power's shares in its Singapore subsidiaries, Bhira Investments and Tata Power International, to enforce the award, which exceeds $650 million and includes principal damages, interest and costs. The enforcement orders authorise the Sheriff to take possession of and sell the shares.

Kleros also responded to reports that Tata Power had filed a criminal complaint in Mumbai against the investment firm and others following the commencement of enforcement proceedings in Singapore.

It said it had not been served with any complaint or legal proceedings and had no knowledge of the allegations beyond media reports. Describing the allegations as similar to those circulated during an earlier campaign surrounding the arbitration, Kleros said they were false. It added that Tata Power had not raised allegations of criminal conduct before the SIAC tribunal, the SIAC Court of Arbitration or the SICC.

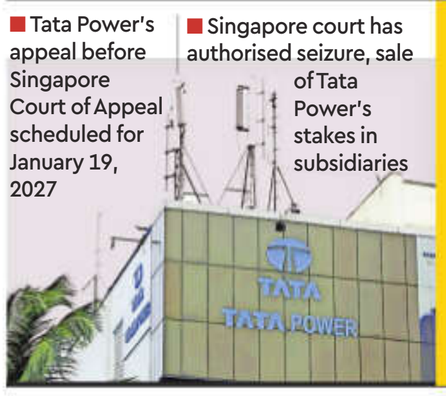

On Wednesday, Sinha had said Tata Power would pursue all available legal remedies to challenge the enforcement order.

He maintained that the company did not need to make any provision in its books against the award at this stage. He also said the shares were already pledged with banks and Kleros would have to approach the lenders.

The process of selling them would involve valuation and resolution of various legal issues, he had said.

Adani firm, Chile's Codelco pact for copper exploration

URVI MALVANIA
Mumbai, November 12

ADANI ENTERPRISES' SUBSIDIARY Kutch Copper Limited (KCL) has signed a memorandum of understanding (MoU) with Chile's state-owned copper producer Corporación Nacional del Cobre de Chile (Codelco) to explore the Kaburkaala copper project in Chile. The Gautam Adani-led group is looking to secure long-term access to critical minerals and build an integrated global copper supply chain.

The agreement outlines the key terms of cooperation for a potential exploration partnership at the Kaburkaala project, located in the Calama copper belt in the Antofagasta region of northern Chile, one of the world's largest copper-producing regions. The MoU was signed during LME Week 2026 in London, in the presence of KCL director Jeet Adani, Adani Natural Resources CEO Vinay Prakash and Codelco chairman Bernardo Fontaine. For Adani, the proposed tie up is aimed at linking upstream copper resources in Chile with its integrated copper smelter complex at Mundra, Gujarat. The company is looking to secure long-term access to copper, a critical mineral for electrification and the global energy transition.

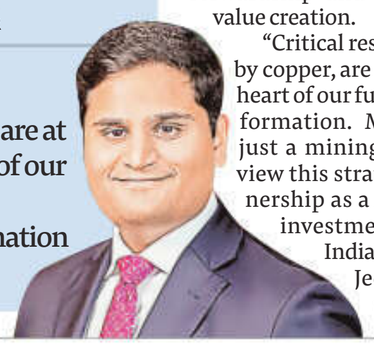

The proposed collaboration will combine Adani's capital, technology-led exploration and large-scale project execution capabilities with Codelco's geological expertise and international experience, the company said. B oth companies will focus on responsible exploration, safety standards, environmental stewardship and long-term value creation.

"Critical resources, led by copper, are at the very heart of our future transformation. More than just a mining asset, we view this strategic partnership as a long-term investment in India's future...," Jeet Adani said.

Ola Electric pares Q2 loss to ₹362 cr on lower costs

FE BUREAU
Chennai, November 12

ELECTRIC TWO-WHEELER maker Ola Electric narrowed its consolidated net loss to ₹362 crore in the second quarter (Q2) of FY27 from ₹418 crore in the year-ago period, aided by lower operating expenses even as revenue from operations declined 39%.

Consolidated revenue from operations of the Bengaluru-based company fell to ₹421 crore in Q2FY27, compared with ₹690 crore in the same period last year and ₹455 crore in the preceding quarter. The figures include revenue from both its automotive and cell manufacturing businesses.

Ola Electric's net loss was lower than Bloomberg's estimate of ₹354 crore, while revenue fell short of the estimated ₹489 crore.

Operating expenses fell 22% to ₹369 crore as the company transitioned to a dealer-led model and scaled back its capital-intensive direct-to-consumer (D2C) store network.

Ola Electric stopped accepting orders through its D2C stores from November 1, with most of these outlets expected to close by December. Fresh vehicle production is now being routed entirely through dealer partners.

The company had appointed 255 dealer partners operating 319 stores as of November 8, barely two months after the first outlets became operational on September 4. It aims to expand the network to around 450 stores by December and 700 by March 2027.

"As we shut down our company's store network, operating expenses will further reduce meaningfully going forward," Ola Electric CFO Deepak Rastogi said during the earnings call. Chairman and Managing Director Bhavish Aggarwal said demand was no longer a constraint.

Air India eyes cargo revenue boost

NITIN KUMAR
New Delhi, November 12

AIR INDIA PLANS to convert passenger aircraft into dedicated freighters as part of a broader revenue-growth strategy under its new chief executive, Tewolde Gebremariam. The airline also plans to increase overseas sales, strengthen commercial partnerships and restructure its network to improve profitability.

The initiatives, outlined by Singapore Airlines in an investor presentation on Wednesday, mark a renewed push to improve Air India's commercial performance. The airline reported a consolidated net loss of more than ?22,000 crore in FY26.

Tewolde, who took charge in September, has identified cargo as a key growth opportunity. Other priorities include diversifying the airline's traffic profile and increasing sales contributions from international markets to reduce its exposure to rupee depreciation.

VIVEAT SUSAN PINTO
Mumbai, November 12

SHARES OF PAGE Industries, which makes and retails innerwear, loungewear and socks, declined 12.19% on Thursday, as slower profit growth in Q2, margin pressures and a regulatory disclosure weighed on investor sentiment. The firm is the exclusive licensee of the Jockey and Speedo brands in India.

The company disclosed a FEMA violation saying it had carried out retail trading of Jockey and Speedo branded products, including imported products, through e-commerce without establishing physical retail stores. The financial impact was not likely to be material, the firm said, and it had not made any adjustments towards it in its financial results. The stock touched ₹32,059.50 apiece on the BSE at the end of trade following the disclosure.

INTERVIEW

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 13, 2026

'AI, cloud and compute will drive Airtel's next phase'

Bharti Enterprises has completed 50 years. Founder and Chairman Sunil Bharti Mittal, in an interview with Rishi Raj & Ojasvi Gupta, reflects on the transformation of India's telecom sector, the group's ambitions beyond telecom, the opportunities in AI and digital infrastructure, and why professional management will remain central to its future. Excerpts:

SUNIL BHARTI MITTAL, FOUNDER AND CHAIRMAN, BHARTI ENTERPRISES

Cybersecurity, maps, search engines and AI-based algorithms are also products. I believe the country is finally moving towards becoming a product nation

Bharti completes 50 years at a time when India's digital economy has undergone a remarkable transformation. How do you look at the evolution of the telecom sector and its contribution to the country?

We now have strong digital players. We would not have been able to serve the country without them. Look at the number of daily transactions taking place on UPI alone, and add to that net banking, health records, DBT transfers and everyday payments. You begin to understand the scale of digital activity taking place on mobile phones.

The growth of video services and connectivity for enterprise businesses has also been remarkable. Without healthy telecom operators, India would have suffered. There are several highly advanced European countries that are struggling because of this. Look at France, for instance. You step outside and often struggle to find network coverage. Here in India, for ₹200, ₹250 or ₹300, consumers expect connectivity even in the second basement of a building. That is quite remarkable.

The industry has witnessed several disruptions over the past two decades, particularly the shift from voice to data and the entry of Jio. What were the defining lessons from these phases?

The lesson lies in why we were able to stay the course while many other large foreign and Indian companies could not. If I had to identify one reason, it would be that I had the right people. Team Airtel was not stressed. They were out there in the marketplace and fought very hard.

There was a period when we were number one for nearly 20 years, only to suddenly find ourselves relegated to number three as Vodafone Idea emerged and Jio introduced free services. But the team did not lose its determination. They fought their way back.

Jio created considerable momentum and accelerated investments by other players. But we had launched 4G in Kolkata many years earlier and were gradually building our network. By the time Jio launched in 2016, we had 4G coverage across the country. We could foresee what was coming, partly because of developments in technology globally. Several other operators failed to anticipate the transition. So, Jio acted as a catalyst, but I would not place Airtel behind anyone in terms of its contribution to the transition from voice to data.

The telecom industry has consolidated into a three-private-player market. The major competition is between Airtel and Jio. The latter has higher subscribers but you are ahead on several other parameters. How do you see the competitive dynamics evolving?

If you analyse the numbers more closely, in my view, Jio's mobile Arpu and ours are almost at the same level. If you look at the packages they offer and calculate the total value, the numbers become quite comparable. We have a higher proportion of postpaid customers and more high-end users. Our brand is much more attractive to premium customers. Airtel appeals to higher-end customers, and our service levels and technology offerings are highly appreciated by consumers.

What is your vision for Airtel over the next 50 years? You have spoken about making it a much larger global company.

There are clearly two parts to this vision. The first is Airtel. It should become a very strong global company, which it already is, and expand into more markets. We should aspire to reach a billion customers. We currently have 600 million customers. Over the next 10-15 years, we should aim to add as many customers as possible.

Africa presents a significant opportunity. India is also still growing and has considerable room for expansion. We should be able to add a couple of hundred million more customers in India, and a similar number in Africa, if not more. We will also look at other markets. We continue to evaluate opportunities from time to time.

Beyond that, there are opportunities in home broadband and enterprise businesses, first in India and subsequently in Africa. These businesses have already expanded into Africa and begun rolling out services. Then, of course, we have our large tower business. Indus Towers has also expanded into Africa.

Our model has been more inspired by the Western approach. Founders, founder families and shareholders combine their strengths with professional management

AI, data centres and sovereign cloud are emerging as major investment opportunities. Where does Bharti see its next big growth engine?

Every country is now talking about data sovereignty. India, in particular, is bound to focus heavily on this. There is no reason why Indian customers' data should have to be processed outside the country. Everything should be hosted locally, whether it involves banking, manufacturing, government infrastructure or the country's critical and secure infrastructure.

Airtel will play a significant role in this space. We are preparing ourselves for it. We are building AI data centres for Google, Microsoft and Amazon. We will be among the major players in the AI data centre space. We will eventually enter the compute business as well. This is the second major vertical, where billions of dollars will be invested.

You cannot compete directly with global hyperscalers. They have unlimited financial resources and advanced technology systems. But I am not sure whether the sovereignty requirements of Indian customers can be fully met by foreign players. There will be global hyperscalers as well as a few Indian players. Both models will coexist.

Airtel is already a MeitY-certified sovereign cloud provider. We have 40-50 customers on board, including some major banks. Our focus is on the domestic sovereign business. India needs a major domestic player operating in this space.

Financial services is another area you are betting on. What makes this an attractive opportunity, particularly after Bharti's earlier experience in insurance?

Financial services is another area we are very excited about. We just listed Airtel Money Africa in London. It is a FTSE 100 company with a valuation of $7 billion. Business is very strong in Africa. Airtel Payments Bank is already doing very well here. Now, Airtel Money, which we have added, will be the new vertical where lending will start. We have started lending already. The work is under way. In two to three years, this should become a very strong business vertical as well.

In 2007, you had articulated an ambitious vision of building a diversified conglomerate spanning telecom, retail, food, insurance and financial services. That vision did not quite materialise as planned. What held it back?

It did not happen as planned. The reasons are quite obvious. We never had breathing space in telecom. Our focus and investments were concentrated here. There were major challenges most of the time. We could not risk taking our attention away from telecom and focusing on other businesses.

We tried our hand at insurance with AXA and eventually sold our general insurance business to Walmart. We did reasonably well. Now, in life insurance, we are bringing in Prudential, and they will drive the business. So, you are right, we could have built a large insurance company or a major retail business with Walmart. But we had our own challenges and had to focus on protecting and strengthening our position. If the environment in telecom had been more stable, we could have created two or three other companies. Real estate, however, has emerged as a strong vertical within the group. It may not be very big, but it is a strong one.

So, is the diversification strategy now more focused on businesses that are aligned with Airtel's core capabilities, rather than building an unrelated conglomerate?

Airtel is, if you call it one company or multiple companies, within Airtel. That is all aligned with Airtel. But we also have businesses outside. We have real estate and hospitality internationally. My daughter and son-in-law run hundreds of hotels. We have our investment in BT. We have just invested in Haier and taken a strategic step there. Some more investments could be coming.

Some of the next generation are building their own businesses. The food business is being run by one of my nephews. One technology fund is being run by my son. So there are other things happening. But Airtel takes the main attention. This is the centrepiece.

Satellite communications is emerging as another dimension of connectivity. Could it eventually challenge terrestrial telecom networks?

For now, it is a complementary service. If you do not have terrestrial radio coverage, say, in the Himalayas or a forest, you can connect to a satellite if you have a compatible phone. In Africa, we have already launched these services in Uganda and Zambia. The technology works, but we are seeing very limited usage because people will use it primarily when they are outside terrestrial network coverage.

Otherwise, if you already have an excellent 5G network, why would you need it? The cost of satellite connectivity is also considerably higher.

The economics are very different. In some markets, Arpu is $50-60, which makes the economics somewhat viable. Here, where Arpu is just $2.5-3, the economics are very different. That is why Starlink has started working with us to distribute its products.

India is making a major push towards semiconductors, AI and indigenous technology capabilities. What will it take for the country to emerge as a significant technology producer rather than just a services hub?

The nature of warfare and security is changing. Future conflicts will increasingly involve space technologies, drones, artificial intelligence, intelligence capabilities and cybersecurity. Technology will play a central role.

The US and China are the two major players in these areas. India has no choice but to emerge as a significant player as well. That is why the government's push towards domestic manufacturing, electronics, semiconductors and passive and active components is important.

It will take time. China began building its capabilities in these areas around 2006-07, and India will also need sustained investment over the next 10-15 years. This has to remain a focus area and receive support from all sides.

Shareholders need a very strong, committed management team. Management, in turn, needs a good steward. In moments of crisis, professionals need an anchored shareholder

India has done very well on the services side. But the environment for developing products here was not as supportive 20-25 years ago. That is changing. There is government support through production-linked incentives, grants and greater engagement with the technology industry. We will see more people and new ideas emerging. Products do not necessarily mean hardware. Cybersecurity, maps, search engines and AI-based algorithms are also products. I believe the country is finally moving towards becoming a product nation.

How do you assess the broader entrepreneurial and investment environment in India today?

It is fantastic. Today's environment is very different. An entrepreneur can now dream of building something and secure funding for it. You have an idea, you get the money, and you have an opportunity to execute it. The government is very supportive of start-ups. They receive special attention and tax exemptions. Foreign capital is also readily available.

India's entrepreneurial energy is being channelled through the start-up ecosystem. It is not limited to technology. We have start-ups emerging in pharmaceuticals, delivery services and several other sectors. Look at the remarkable work Blinkit and others have done. They have created a real business around delivering millions of orders. This culture is extremely important for the country and must be encouraged and nurtured.

The Tata Group is currently facing questions around succession, ownership and the relationship between professional management and its controlling shareholders. How do you view this debate?

It is a group that inspires everyone in the country. It has inspired me as well. It is an organisation that has served the nation. Its ancestors and forefathers built Tata in a very distinctive way. It is a trusteeship model. That is what I believe in. You are here to do good for the country, and your canvas is business. Through business, you contribute to the country. That is also what I believe Bharti Enterprises stands for.

Even when I had major disagreements with Ratan Tata, I would tell him that I model myself on Tata. I have always believed that Bharti should combine the values and character of Tata with the speed of Reliance.

Tata was traditionally not known for moving quickly. It used to move slowly, although that has changed now. Tata is a very good model. As for how the current impasse, there has been a change on one side, and therefore it is natural that there will be some time required for adjustment and realignment. My own view is that things will settle down.

How do you see the next generation taking forward the businesses you have built? How do you ensure that Bharti remains professionally managed?

I think we have a different model from others in India. Our model has been more inspired by the Western approach. Founders, founder families and shareholders combine their strengths with professional management. In most of these organisations, professionals take precedence. They are empowered and given considerable freedom to do what they need to do.

The family, founder or shareholders, along with the board, act as custodians, trustees and stewards. That is how I see the model evolving. The next generation is building its own businesses. In those businesses, they are the founders and drive the operations themselves. In the legacy businesses that they will inherit from me or the first generation, they must act as responsible custodians.

I think they are well-educated and well-trained. They have experienced their own highs and lows, failures and successes.

You have already stepped back from some responsibilities in Africa, with your son Shravan taking on a larger role. Will this transition change the character of Airtel?

In Africa, for example, Gopal Vittal is the professional chairman, while Shravan is the deputy chairman. In a few years, Shravan will chair the board. But that responsibility is about being the chairman of the board and acting as a steward. Professionals will always take precedence.

Airtel will always retain the character it has today. That is not going to change. I will eventually be replaced by a shareholder or a group of shareholders. I do not know exactly how that will work out, but the underlying structure will remain the same. Professionalism will not be compromised.

Shareholders need a very strong, committed management team. Management, in turn, needs a good steward. In moments of crisis, professionals need an anchored shareholder. That is when the shareholder's role becomes particularly important.

I raised $18 billion when the entire organisation was under tremendous pressure. It looked as though the company could collapse between 2016 and 2019. During those 34 months, I raised $18 billion simply to ensure our survival. The credibility I enjoyed in global markets helped us secure the funding. That is why I believe the professional structure and the entire Airtel ecosystem should never be compromised. And it will not be compromised.

What is the one lesson from your 50-year entrepreneurial journey that you would want the next generation of entrepreneurs to take away?

India offers enormous opportunities. If you are entrepreneurial and bold, this is an excellent time to build a business. The political leadership is committed to supporting entrepreneurship and the start-up ecosystem. Ideas are getting funded, and there is an environment in which entrepreneurs can build and grow.

My advice would be simple: go out and build something for the country. When you create something for a country of India's size and serve such a large market, you will surely create something successful for yourself.

NBFCs turn to warrants to fund next phase of growth

KSHIPRA PETKAR
Mumbai, November 12

LEADING NON-BANKING FINANCIAL companies (NBFCs) are strengthening their capital buffers through preferential warrant issuances and strategic investments to fund their next phase of loan-book expansion.

Bajaj Finance recently allotted 50.74 million warrants worth approximately ₹5,800 crore to promoter Bajaj Finserv. The transaction forms part of its broader fundraising plan of up to ₹17,500 crore, including a proposed qualified institutional placement (QIP) of up to ₹11,700 crore.

IIFL Finance announced a ₹6,414-crore capital-raising exercise, comprising a ₹5,000-crore investment by Blackstone through compulsorily convertible preference shares and around ₹1,264 crore through warrants subscribed by promoter entities. The infusion is expected to strengthen the company's capital adequacy ratio from around 17% to approximately 30% on a pro forma basis.

"Stronger capital and lower leverage should support rating upgrades and access to a wider pool of lenders and bond investors. We expect a reduction of 50 bps over the next 12 to 18 months, as existing borrowings reprice gradually," Nirmal Jain, founder and managing director of IIFL Finance, said.

Piramal Finance also allotted warrants aggregating around ₹1,750 crore to promoter entity Nithyam Realty, with a portion of the consideration received upfront. Jairam Sridharan, MD & CEO, said around 25% of the warrant consideration had already been received, while the remaining 75% is expected by March 2028. The additional capital will be deployed towards organic business growth, he said.

Motilal Oswal in its report said the strengthened capital position could support an improvement in credit ratings and lower borrowing costs over time, thereby aiding funding-cost efficiency and profitability. "We raise our FY27/FY28 EPS estimates by 7%/11% to factor in this equity infusion into the company," the brokerage said. "We model a consolidated AUM/PAT CAGR of 24%/60%% over FY26-FY28E for an estimated RoA/RoE of 3.6%/17% in FY28," it added.

Unlike conventional equity issuances, warrants allow investors to infuse capital in stages, with the remaining consideration payable upon conversion into equity shares. This provides companies with a potential source of future equity capital while spreading out the funding commitment.

Deep Inder Singh, co-group head and vice president at ICRA, said the NBFC sector remains adequately capitalised to support expected portfolio growth. "We do not envisage a broad-based requirement for fresh equity capital across the industry at this stage," Singh said, adding that individual entities may raise equity depending on their growth aspirations, existing capital buffers and targeted leverage levels.

According to Singh, large NBFCs have progressively diversified their funding sources, although their borrowing mix will continue to depend on relative pricing, tenor requirements and asset-liability management considerations.

A sizeable equity infusion is generally credit positive as it strengthens capitalisation and provides additional headroom for growth.

However, Singh cautioned that such issuances may not necessarily result in rating upgrades or an immediate reduction in borrowing costs. The impact would depend on sustained improvements in leverage, asset quality, profitability, liquidity and the overall funding profile, he said.

IN PURSUIT OF EXPANSION

- Strengthened capital position could support improvement in credit ratings, lower borrowing costs over time
- Warrants allow investors to infuse capital in stages, with the remaining payable on conversion into equity shares
- This provides companies with a potential source of future equity capital while spreading out the funding commitment

NIRMAL JAIN, FOUNDER, IIFL FINANCE

Reputation and reinvention

FOR NIRMAL JAIN, BLACKSTONE'S INVESTMENT MARKS ANOTHER TURNING POINT IN A CAREER SHAPED BY ENTREPRENEURIAL INSTINCT, SETBACKS AND HARD-EARNED LESSONS

SHYAM KUMAR PRASAD

KSHIPTA PETKAR

NIRMAL JAIN HAS carried a piece of advice with him from his days at Hindustan Lever. Keki Dadiseth, the former chairman of the consumer goods giant, once told him that reputation matters more than anything else. For a man who has spent three decades building a financial services empire, that counsel has particular resonance.

Jain has known the exhilaration of spotting an opportunity before others, the satisfaction of building businesses from scratch and the discomfort of seeing a regulator question the practices of a company he founded. His journey has been as much about recovering from setbacks as about getting his bets right.

The latest endorsement of that journey comes from Blackstone. The global investment firm's proposed ₹5,000-crore investment for a stake of around 16% in IIFL Finance is significant not merely for the capital it brings but also for its timing. Barely two years ago, the Reserve Bank of India barred the company from sanctioning fresh gold loans over serious supervisory deficiencies. The restrictions, lifted six months later, struck at the heart of one of its most important businesses.

For Jain, who called that period one of the most challenging in the company's history, Blackstone's decision is a powerful vote of confidence. It comes as IIFL Finance has regained momentum, with its loan book expanding and profitability recovering.

Yet Jain's story is hardly that of a conventional financial services entrepreneur. Born into a family with trading roots in Rajasthan, he grew up in Mumbai, absorbing the value of honesty, hard work and financial prudence from his father. A rank-holding chartered accountant and IIM Ahmedabad graduate, he joined Hindustan Lever in 1989, where his work in commodities gave him an early understanding of markets and risk. A stint at Motilal Oswal followed before he struck out on his own in 1995, with savings of barely ₹5-10 lakh and no grand blueprint. His venture, Probity Research and Services, began by selling research to institutional clients. As he would later acknowledge, the business evolved one day at a time rather than according to a master plan.

Indeed, some of Jain's most consequential decisions were born of adversity rather than foresight. When the internet boom arrived, he saw an opportunity to democratise financial information through India Infoline. The idea drew investors, but the model proved less rewarding. Readers wanted research free; advertisers were reluctant to pay for it. When the dot-com bubble burst, the company found itself running dangerously short of cash. Jain changed course.

If people would not pay for information, perhaps they would pay to transact. That insight transformed India Infoline into a brokerage business, with 5paisa challenging established players through sharply lower commissions. It was an early demonstration of a quality central to Jain's style: the willingness to abandon an idea when the economics no longer made sense.

That instinct would surface repeatedly as he moved into lending, wealth management and other financial services. Equally important was his ability to attract partners and sophisticated investors. R Venkataraman, who joined him in the early years, has remained his closest business associate, their partnership rests on complementary strengths and mutual trust.

Investors such as Fairfax, General Atlantic and CDC came on board. Jain also showed little hesitation in dismantling structures he had built. Separating IIFL's lending, wealth management and securities businesses into independently listed entities reflected his belief that businesses with different needs were better off pursuing their own paths.

Success, however, has not insulated him from regulatory scrutiny. The 2024 RBI action was particularly bruising, exposing weaknesses in gold valuation, loan-to-value compliance and other processes. Jain later described the episode as a wake-up call, acknowledging that growth could not come at the expense of compliance. The recovery since has been impressive, but the experience has raised the stakes for the next phase of expansion.

NEWS POINT

For all the scale of the businesses he built, Jain has maintained a low profile, preferring to let the numbers speak. His career is a reminder that entrepreneurship is rarely a straight-line journey, and that the ability to change direction can be as valuable as spotting an opportunity. Blackstone's investment is another milestone, but the more important test lies ahead.

Jain has shown he can build businesses, reinvent them and recover from reversals. He must now show that IIFL Finance can sustain its growth while meeting the exacting governance standards a large financial institution demands. That brings him back to Dadiseth's advice: in finance, reputation remains the most valuable asset of all.

RBI may ban PE firms from controlling multiple NBFCs

GOPIKA GOPAKUMAR & JAYSHREE P UPADHYAY
Mumbai, November 12

THE RESERVE BANK of India (RBI) is working on proposals that would prevent private equity firms from holding a controlling stake in more than one non-bank lender (NBFC), two people with knowledge of the matter said.

The RBI is concerned that financial stress at a global private equity firm or its affiliates could have a contagion effect across several NBFCs in which it has significant investments, they said.

However, smaller financial investments that will be ?subject to lesser scrutiny may be encouraged, the sources said.

According to law, control is defined as a large stake - 25% in the case of listed firms - though ownership can be smaller and still be considered a controlling stake if the investor has the right to appoint a majority of the directors or can control a firm's management or policy decisions.

Holdings of 15% or less will be ?considered a financial investment and attract less scrutiny, according to one of the people. A draft of the rules will be finalised after public consultation and they could be formally issued early next year.

Indian banks and non-bank lenders have seen a rush of foreign investor interest as demand for credit in the economy remains strong and loan delinquencies remain low.

About $5.4 billion in private equity investments flowed into India's financial sector last year, up 6% from 2024 and 17% higher than levels for 2023, according to data from Grant Thornton. Another $3.6 billion has come in ?this year through to end-September.

The RBI has at times moved to prevent controlling investments in multiple non-bank lenders.

US private equity firm Bain Capital's purchase of 41.7% of Manappuram Finance last ?year was approved on condition that it divest its 93% ownership in another non-bank lender Tyger Capital, formerly Adani Capital.

The principle has also applied to non-private equity firms.

Japan's Mizuho Financial Group has majority stakes in two non-bank lenders, Mizuho Capsave and Credit Saison India, and has said it plans to acquire KKR-backed financial services firm Avendus. The central bank has asked Mizuho to submit a comprehensive plan to integrate or consolidate its existing Indian non-bank financial firms, media have reported.

Star Health unveils product to boost youth coverage

FE BUREAU
Chennai, November 12

MORE THAN SIX out of the 10 new customers seeking health insurance are aged 35 and above, while a large section of the younger population remains uninsured, according to Anand Roy, managing director and CEO of Star Health and Allied Insurance Company.

"Less than 40% of our customers were below 35 years of age last year..." Roy said on Thursday, adding that this does not reflect the country's actual demographic profile.

The company on Thursday launched Young Star NEO, a health insurance policy aimed at encouraging young adults to secure coverage. The product offers long-term premium benefits, everyday healthcare support and wellness rewards. It is available for individuals aged between 18 and 40 years with sum insured options from ₹10 lakh to ₹1 crore, including an unlimited sum insured option, and policy terms of one, two or three years.

Anand Roy, managing director and CEO, Star Health

Roy said the country has a significantly higher proportion of people below 30 years of age, but younger consumers remain underrepresented in health insurance coverage. "We felt that you know the reason behind younger people not buying insurance. That's why we have launched this product."

The policy introduces a 'time travel' feature, which allows customers to retain the premium advantage of buying insurance at a younger age even after their first eligible claim.

SBI Research cuts Dec rate hike forecast to 25 bps

KSHIPRA PETKAR & ABHIJIT LELE
Mumbai, November 12

SBI RESEARCH ON Thursday revised its December monetary policy forecast, expecting a 25-basis-point (bps) hike in repo rate instead of its earlier projection of 50 bps, citing improving external conditions and easing pressure on the rupee. The report said the terminal repo rate could settle at 6%, with a 50% probability of it being lower at 5.75%.

The revision comes despite retail inflation rising to 6.09% in October. It expects inflation to peak at 6.3% in November before moderating.

"We do not consider a further rate hike in February advisable, particularly given the proximity to the Union Budget," the report said.

"We had estimated a 100-bps hike, of which 25 bps already happened in October, 25 bps expected in December and the remaining will spill over into the next fiscal," said Madhavankutty G, chief economist, Canara Bank.

Tanay Dalal, SVP — business economic research, Axis Bank, expects inflation to remain above 6% until June 2027, raising the risk of policy rates exceeding the estimated neutral of 6%.

YES Bank's Ecologue report maintained its forecast of a 25-bps rate hike each in December and February, taking the terminal repo rate to 6%. It also flagged a probability of an additional hike in April under an adverse scenario.

FPIs begin buying G-Secs after selling streak of three months

CHRISTINA TITUS
Mumbai, November 12

AFTER THREE MONTHS of net selling, foreign portfolio investors have begun buying government securities, supported by lower oil prices, a stable rupee, and expectations of easing tensions in West Asia. FPIs invested ₹9,799 crore through the fully accessible route (FAR) so far in November, according to data from the Clearing Corporation of India.

They sold a cumulative ₹17,054 crore over the past three months, as elevated US Treasury yields, rising oil prices, and geopolitical uncertainty weakened investor appetite.

FPI holdings in government securities stood at ₹3.66 lakh crore as of November 12.

"Globally, falling crude oil prices and expectations of easing Middle East tensions are positive for India. The initial decline in crude has reduced inflationary pressure and changed expectations around future interest-rate hikes, making Indian assets more attractive at current levels," said a treasury official at a foreign bank.

The Democrats' sweep in the US midterm elections raised hopes of a de-escalation in the West Asian conflict. Following this, oil prices declined by 22% to $92 per barrel in November. With oil prices declining, foreign flows reversing, and the RBI's intervention, the rupee also stabilised. The domestic currency gained nearly 1% to 94.04 against the dollar so far November.

"Given the current spread between US and Indian yields, sustained foreign inflows may be unlikely. Concrete and tangible action on the Middle East front will also be crucial," said Anitha Rangan, chief economist at RBL Bank.

The US 10-year Treasury yield is hovering around 5%. India's benchmark 10-year government bond yield, meanwhile, closed at 7.25% on Thursday, offering a yield differential between the two at 225 basis points compared to 248 bps in October-end.

ARC recovery from stressed mortgage loans may rise 10%, says Crisil

FE BUREAU
Mumbai, November 12

ASSET RECONSTRUCTION COMPANIES (ARCs) are expected to show an over 10% improvement in recoveries from stressed mortgage loans (110-120% from 93-100%), Crisil Ratings said on Thursday.

The improvement will be driven by a higher share of small-ticket accounts acquired from NBFCs, where ARCs benefit from stronger enforcement rights; improved collateral coverage; and a growing proportion of acquisitions from regions where they have stronger servicing and recovery capabilities.

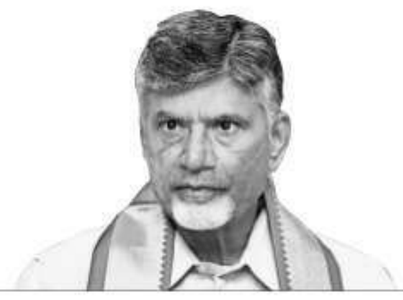

This assessment is based on its rated, mortgage-backed retail security receipts (SR) portfolio, comprising ~₹1,100 crore of SRs issued both in FY26 and FY25, and ~₹800 crore in FY24, the agency said.

Hari Hara Mishra, chief executive, Association of ARCs in India, told FE that there has been an overall improvement in the recovery climate in the real estate sector across the housing, commercial and logistics segments. The year-on-year growth in recovery in retail portfolios of ARCs was higher at 25% against 18% for the corporate book in FY26. The retail recovery was ₹8,000 crore, of which ₹6,000 crore was from secured credit.

INVESTOR SHIELD

Andhra Pradesh Chief Minister N Chandrababu Naidu

The proposed legislation would protect investments from regime changes and ensure that incentives, land allotments, and approvals granted to investors by the state government cannot be reversed by future administrations

Respecting capital

A law to help protect investments is a good idea but must be carefully drafted

REGULATORY CERTAINTY HAS never been the strong suit of Indian governments, whether at the Centre or in the states. Multinational firms have suffered arbitrary policy changes; domestic businesses too have seen the ground shift beneath their feet without warning. The latest casualty is the real-money gaming industry, which saw the rug pulled out from under it almost overnight. Earlier, power projects became unviable when newly elected state governments reneged on power purchase agreements signed by their predecessors, claiming tariffs were too high. Larsen & Toubro's Hyderabad Metro project also faced disruption following Andhra Pradesh's bifurcation and demands to overhaul the venture. India may have climbed the Ease of Doing Business rankings, but the reality remains troubling. Such reversals damage not just individual projects but also the credibility of the investment destination, making companies wary of committing capital for the long term.

Protecting capital is essential. With a more predictable investment climate, India might have attracted considerably more foreign direct investment. Against this backdrop, Andhra Pradesh Chief Minister Chandrababu Naidu's plan to make investments "politics-proof" against changes in government is welcome. Naidu proposes an Investment Promotion Act offering what he calls a sovereign guarantee: incentives, land allotments, and approvals granted by one administration would have to be honoured by its successors. The objective is to reassure investors that political transitions will not jeopardise their projects. Under the proposed framework, the amount and location of land allotted, incentives promised, and clearances granted would remain unchanged. Subsequent policy changes, even those more favourable to investors, would not apply retrospectively. A project would thus be completed under the terms prevailing when it was approved, without gaining access to fresh concessions introduced later.

That sounds fair. But casting such commitments in stone may be unwise. Promoters undoubtedly deserve certainty; projects cannot be derailed by arbitrary regulatory reversals. Equally, one elected government cannot completely bind its successors or prevent them from exercising their constitutional powers. A future administration has its own democratic mandate and legal responsibilities. Legislation that appears to restrict those powers could face challenges in court, potentially creating precisely the uncertainty it seeks to eliminate. Nor should investors enjoy blanket immunity from legitimate regulatory change. New rules may affect project economics, but public interest cannot always be subordinated to commercial expectations. Land, for example, might originally have been allotted under questionable rules, or environmental and other safeguards might subsequently need strengthening. A guarantee that freezes every approval regardless of circumstances could protect flawed decisions as readily as sound investments. The legislation will therefore need carefully defined exceptions, transparent procedures, and credible safeguards against arbitrary action.

Even skilful drafting may not prevent litigation. That is particularly important for foreign investors, who already face procedural hurdles and lengthy disputes. Arbitration, for instance, can remain tied up in India for years, adding to costs and uncertainty. The state should therefore focus not merely on promises of permanence but also on enforceable contracts, timely dispute resolution, and consistent administration. Investors need confidence that commitments will be respected, while governments must retain the ability to correct genuine wrongdoing and respond to changing circumstances. Naidu's initiative deserves encouragement because policy unpredictability carries a heavy economic cost. Its success, however, will depend on striking the right balance: protecting legitimate investments from political whim without stripping future governments of their legitimate authority to regulate in the broader public interest.

Skydance can't afford DC's cinematic universe

THE HIERARCHY OF power in the DC Universe is about to change…again. DC Studios co-CEOs James Gunn and Peter Safran will step down on December 1 and be replaced by former Marvel Studios executive Jeremy Latcham. It's a surprising move, especially when you consider that Gunn and Safran were recently named to Skydance's executive leadership team post-merger.

How exactly Latcham plans to guide DC remains to be seen, but given his track record as a producer of Marvel films like The Avengers and Spider-Man: Homecoming, his appointment suggests Skydance is comfortable continuing to draw on the cinematic universe playbook. That could be shortsighted.

For an entertainment giant that has to assuage investors it can manage about $80 billion in net debt, Skydance's best path forward with DC Studios may be to abandon the shared-universe model altogether. The upside of a successful cinematic universe is enormous in Hollywood: The Marvel Cinematic Universe alone has seen 12 films cross the billion-dollar threshold at the global box office. However, a cinematic universe is a volume commitment that requires a studio to deliver a steady supply of interconnected films (and shows) that advance a larger narrative and maintain continuity.

That kind of undertaking means even one false step can create a ripple effect across an entire slate, hurting a studio's bottom line.

MILES SURREY
Bloomberg

In 2022, Gunn and Safran were hired by Warner Bros to lead DC Studios after Zack Snyder's original vision for the DC Extended Universe petered out. As the filmmaker behind Marvel's well-liked Guardians of the Galaxy trilogy, which turned relatively obscure comic book characters into a commercial juggernaut, Gunn seemed a sensible hire from a creative standpoint.

The problem was that he and Safran had to sell audiences on a new vision for DC while Warner Bros was still releasing four films in 2023 from the old slate. While Gunn and stars like Tom Cruise did their best to hype up The Flash, the most high-profile DCEU release still on the ledger, the film flopped at the box office. It's hard to blame moviegoers: If installing a new brain trust means releases from the old regime were essentially irrelevant to DC's future, why bother paying for a ticket?

Now, Latcham faces another version of the same challenge. The strong domestic box office performance of Gunn's Superman showed early signs of promise, but it was followed by Supergirl, a box office bomb, and Clayface, a more modest hit. Gunn's Superman sequel, Man of Tomorrow, is already set for release next year. Other projects are at various stages of development. Latcham will have to determine how much of that vision to preserve and how much to retool, a tricky balance for a company trying to chip away at a massive debt load.

The irony is that, amid all this cinematic universe reshuffling, some of DC's greatest successes of late have come from franchises allowed to exist on their own. Those films prove that superhero movies don't require a shared universe to thrive. Sam Raimi's Spider-Man trilogy, Christopher Nolan's Dark Knight trilogy, and Guillermo del Toro's Hellboy movies all delivered sequels without having to accommodate a larger narrative. These films are fondly remembered as auteur-driven blockbusters with a distinct point of view.

This is what DC under Latcham ought to focus on. A self-contained superhero movie might not have the same potential for universe-building, but it also limits the financial fallout of an underperforming film and allows crossovers when the story warrants them. DC's characters have endured precisely because they can be reinterpreted. Embracing that flexibility isn't just creatively freeing, but commercially savvy: Every new take on a character is another opportunity to connect with audiences.

TERMS OF SETTLEMENT

SEBI REGULATIONS MARK A SHIFT FROM DISCRETION TO ARITHMETIC, BUT DO NOT GUARANTEE PREDICTABILITY

The price of peace

SANDEEP PAREKH
Managing Partner, Finsec Law Advisors

A SETTLEMENT MECHANISM in which more applications fall away than are settled has a problem. Sebi's mechanism was introduced administratively through a circular in April 2007 and gained statutory backing in 2014 through amendments to the Sebi Act, the Securities Contracts (Regulation) Act, and the Depositories Act. The Sebi (Settlement of Administrative and Civil Proceedings) Regulations, 2014, were later replaced by the Sebi (Settlement Proceedings) Regulations, 2018.

The case for reform is evident from Sebi's own numbers. In 2025-26, it received 439 settlement applications. It passed settlement orders in 170, while 199 were rejected, withdrawn, or returned. The backlog grew from 429 to 499. Against this backdrop, the regulator has notified the Sebi (Settlement of Administrative and Civil Proceedings) Regulations, 2026, which replaced the 2018 regulations from November 7.

The biggest change is in how the settlement amount is calculated. Under the 2018 regulations, where there was wrongful gain or investor loss the base amount was generally the higher of the tabulated amount and that gain or loss. This tied the amount closely to the economic harm of the alleged conduct.

The 2026 regulations take a different route. The base amount is now the minimum statutory penalty, scaled by a multiplier for the type of applicant. This is then multiplied by the sum of factors for the stage of proceedings, past regulatory action, gravity, and aggravation, less a factor for mitigation. The structure is simpler. Whether it is fairer will depend on how these factors are applied.

The difficulty lies in the starting point. A minimum penalty bears no relation to the scale of wrongful gain, investor loss, or market impact. Disgorgement remains a separate settlement term, but it merely recovers the gain; it does not penalise the conduct. In a serious case, a low starting figure leaves the factors to do most of the work. A ₹500-crore manipulation and a ₹5-crore one may begin from the same number.

Since the base amount is computed for each count of default, counting matters as much as the formula. Regulation 11(8) lists nine situations to be treated as a single default. These include front running the trades of a particular big client, disclosure defaults in a statement for a calendar or financial year, and trades to manipulate the price or volume of a scrip. The panel of whole-time members may treat other defaults as one and, under regulation 11(9), increase or reduce the count.

The test of the new regime is not whether its sums add up. It is whether the same conduct ends up costing the same price

The final text drops some categories proposed in Sebi's consultation paper of August 14. These include misleading statements in a single advertisement, disclosure, or corporate announcement, and disclosure defaults arising from a single event. The panel's discretion may cover such cases. Without an express provision, however, one misleading announcement carried in three places could be one default or three.

The scope of settlement has also widened. Sebi may still decline to settle defaults with a market-wide impact, losses to a large number of investors, or harm to the integrity of the market. However, regulation 18(2) now allows such cases to be settled if monetary terms and remedial and regulatory terms, including a higher settlement amount, can adequately address the harm. Under regulation 17(2), diversion or siphoning of funds is no bar to settlement if all such money is brought back with interest. The door has not opened for everyone, though. Wilful defaulters, fraudulent borrowers, and fugitive economic offenders are now expressly barred from settling.

Another new feature is the notice of settlement, to be issued before a show cause notice. It sets out the substance of the probable charges and enforcement action, with brief extracts of the findings. The recipient then has 60 days to file a settlement application. Comparisons with the Wells Notice used by the US Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) are tempting but misleading. A Wells Notice allows a prospective respondent to argue against proposed action before SEC decides whether to proceed. Sebi's notice is an invitation to settle, not to contest.

This limits its value as a procedural safeguard. The recipient must decide within 60 days, a period that cannot be extended, on the strength of brief extracts and with no express right to argue the merits. Sebi may also modify the probable charges later. The applicant is asked to price a case it has only partly seen.

Pending applications are governed by regulation 44. Where the high-powered advisory committee has not yet made its recommendation, the application restarts under the 2026 regulations with a fresh internal committee meeting. Where the committee has made a recommendation but the panel has not approved it, the applicant may choose between fresh processing and the amount the committee recommended under the 2018 regulations. This choice must be made within 30 days of receiving Sebi's notice. Where the panel has already approved the settlement terms, the 2018 regulations will continue to apply.

Regulations 4(3) and 4(4) also open a 90-day window for proceedings pending on commencement where no settlement application was filed earlier, or where one was rejected, returned, or withdrawn. Such entities may apply under the new regime, but will pay 20% more than the settlement amount calculated under regulation 10. A second chance, in other words, comes at a premium. Those eligible should decide quickly; the window closes in early February.

The 2026 regulations mark a genuine shift from discretion towards arithmetic. Yet a formula does not, by itself, guarantee predictability. Discretion survives in counting defaults, applying the factors, and deciding what can be settled at all. The test of the new regime is not whether its sums add up. It is whether the same conduct ends up costing the same price.

Nvidia caught in China's tech game

rishi.raj@expressindia.com

The episode underlines how US technology helped China succeed where the Soviets failed

THE ALLEGATIONS SURROUNDING former Nvidia CEO Jensen Huang and Chinese businesswoman Alice Huang have an uncanny resonance with the history of China's technological rise. US authorities are reportedly examining whether Alice Huang, suspected of being a Chinese intelligence asset, used her relationship with the Nvidia chief and a network of companies to facilitate access to restricted AI chips. According to a report, the network may have helped move at least $7.5 billion worth of Nvidia processors to Chinese companies. Nvidia's board has initiated an investigation, while the FBI is examining whether Huang was targeted. The investigations would go on and other details may come out, but the episode brings into focus a larger contest that has been unfolding for decades: China's determined effort to acquire, absorb, and eventually master Western technology. It also raises an uncomfortable question for the US: Whether US companies, in their pursuit of the Chinese market, help build the technological rival they are now trying to contain.

Books, like The Huawei Story, Tech Titans of China, Apple in China, Chip War and The Chip Age, provide this recurring theme. China's technological ascent has not been a linear story of indigenous innovation. It has involved a combination of technology transfers, joint ventures, reverse engineering, talent acquisition, industrial espionage allegations, state-backed investment, and, most importantly, access to global markets.

The opening-up initiated by Deng Xiaoping in 1978 gave China something the Soviet Union never really had: an opportunity to learn from the West while becoming a part of its economic system. Western companies arrived for cheap manufacturing, access to a vast market, and lower costs. They brought technology, production processes, engineering expertise, and supplier relationships. Apple offers perhaps the most striking example. As Patrick McGee has explained in Apple in China, the company's relentless pursuit of manufacturing excellence helped create an industrial ecosystem in China that could eventually serve many other technology companies. What began as an outsourcing relationship became a massive transfer of manufacturing knowledge and capabilities. China did not merely assemble products; it learnt how to manufacture them at scale, improve them, and build increasingly sophisticated domestic supply chains.

The controversy captures the new front in a technology contest in which access to computing power is becoming as strategically important as access to oil once was

The comparison with the Soviet Union is interesting. Moscow too had made technology acquisition a strategic priority during the Cold War period. Its intelligence agencies acquired Western designs, machinery, and scientific knowledge, and Soviet engineers were adept at reverse engineering. In semiconductors, however, the limitations became painfully evident. The Soviet Union could reproduce older generations of Western chips, but struggled to keep pace with the rapid innovation cycle of the American industry. The problem was not a lack of scientific talent or espionage capability. It was the inability to recreate the ecosystem around the technology. Semiconductor manufacturing depends on thousands of specialised suppliers, constant process innovation, precision equipment, commercial demand, and the reinvestment of profits into research. A copied design or acquired machine cannot substitute for this entire chain. The Soviet system could mobilise resources for military and strategic priorities, but it struggled to turn technological acquisitions into a commercially competitive industry.

China perhaps understood this distinction, even if its own semiconductor journey has been far from smooth. It used the global economic system as a learning platform, while retaining the state machinery to direct capital and resources towards strategic sectors. Huawei's evolution from a domestic telecom equipment maker into a global technology company best illustrates this ambition. So does China's rise in electric vehicles, batteries, solar manufacturing, and consumer electronics. The strategy was not simply to copy Western products, but to acquire the capabilities to compete with the companies that had created them. The enormous domestic market provided scale, while state support helped companies survive the long and expensive process of moving up the value chain.

This is not to suggest that every Chinese success can be attributed to technology transfer or espionage. Its achievements in research, engineering, and product development are real. But the ability to combine foreign knowledge with domestic manufacturing scale and long-term industrial policy has been a defining advantage.

Semiconductors, however, remain the unfinished part of this story. Despite more than a decade of massive investment, China has not achieved self-sufficiency in advanced chipmaking equipment, lithography, and critical design tools. The export controls imposed by the US and its allies have disrupted access to some of these technologies, even as they have accelerated China's localisation efforts.

The Nvidia episode is therefore more than a corporate controversy. It captures the new front in a technology contest in which access to computing power is becoming as strategically important as access to oil once was. The irony is that the US helped China develop the manufacturing and commercial capabilities that now underpin its technological ambitions. The Soviet Union tried to steal its way into the Western technology club but remained largely outside it. China entered the club, learnt its rules, became indispensable to its members, and then began building competitors of its own.

The US is now trying to restrict access to the very technologies and supply chains through which China learnt to catch up. The question is whether those gates can be closed after the knowledge, capabilities, and industrial relationships have already spread. China's biggest advantage may not be that it has mastered every technology. It is that it learnt how to turn globalisation itself into an instrument of technological power.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Consumer weakness

Apropos of "Festive demand warning" (FE, November 12), a glittering festive season that leaves ordinary wallets empty is not an economic triumph; it is a warning sign of a deeply fractured market. The slowdown in online sales exposes an uncomfortable truth that we often prefer to ignore. Our economy is increasingly relying on the lavish spending of the rich while the middle class struggles to afford basic upgrades. Borrowing through easy EMIs might create a temporary illusion of prosperity, but it cannot replace real income growth. To build a resilient consumer economy, the government must shift its focus away from flashy discounts towards creating better jobs, strengthening rural incomes, and keeping inflation under control. A thriving economy is one where everyday households can spend without drowning in debt.
—K Chidanand Kumar, Bengaluru

Huang controversy

Apropos of "The personal is geopolitical" (FE, November 12), technological self-reliance can't mean simply replacing foreign suppliers with domestic products. It requires trustworthy institutions, independent research, skilled people, and clear safeguards for sensitive information. The Huang controversy shows how personal relationships and commercial interests can intersect with national security; suspicion, however, must not substitute for credible evidence. India needs stronger indigenous capabilities, but isolation would deprive its firms and researchers of global knowledge and markets. The sensible course is selective openness: transparent rules, rigorous security audits, accountable procurement, and sustained investment in universities and innovation.

SIX MONTHS INTO the launch of the VF MPV7, VinFast India has slashed its price to ₹20.39 lakh (ex-showroom). That's a cool ₹4.1 lakh lower than the 7-seater's launch price of ₹24.49 lakh. The price cut pits the brand head-to-head against top-spec trims of competitors Kia Carens Clavis EV, Mahindra XEV 9S, and the recently launched MG Hector Tomahawk EV.

"For any original equipment manufacturer (OEM), taking a price cut, that too within just six months of launch, is a hard call," says Rakesh Srivastava, auto expert & former MD, Nissan Motor India. "In this case, after the initial response from the customer and insights gleaned from users, the company would have realised the brand is not in a position to command a premium at the moment," he points out. This also indicates that the brand could not achieve the desired traction even during the festive season, says an observer.

"VinFast is facing the typical newcomer challenge and the price cut essentially means the company is trying to make its offering more competitive," he adds.

The Vietnam-based EV maker launched the VF MPV 7 in April this year, but as per industry reports, sales have been sluggish. A report by Autocar Professional quoting the Society of Indian Automobile Manufacturers (Siam) says VinFast was able to sell only 530 units of the VF MPV 7 model in the first half of FY27. This makes up only a 4% share of VinFast's total sales of 13,307 EVs in H1 FY27.

The company positioned the MPV 7 as a practical and safe vehicle designed for long-distance utility and Indian road conditions. But consumers evaluating a primarily family car hesitated to spend on a new badge with an under-construction service network at a time when other brands offered either better on-road visibility or lower entry price points.

VinFast has not released an official statement on the price cut but has updated the product details on its corporate website. Queries sent to the company by Financial Express did not elicit any response till press time.

Closing the gap

The company currently sells four electric vehicles in India—two 5-seater SUVs and two 7-seater MPVs. All the vehicles sold in the country are assembled at its Thoothukudi, Tamil Nadu, manufacturing facility.

The family-focused three-row electric mover was launched to rival mainstream Indian MPVs. But brand experts point at a dichotomy between the MPV 7's pricing and its market positioning when it was launched. Think of its this way: A 7-seater is hardly an impulse purchase — it is likely the household's primary vehicle, used for office commute by elders, school drop-offs and family trips. That means consumers in this segment are not only looking for brochure highlights; they are also appraising after-sales network and resale value, besides everything in between.

"The Indian EV market is at an inflection point, and people are weighing many aspects of a product when buying a brand — such as the battery life, range and comfort," says Som Kapoor, partner & leader, future of mobility, EY-Parthenon India. That said, a price cut alone will not be enough.

As a relatively unfamiliar brand in India, VinFast needs to build trust to stand up against entrenched players like Kia, Mahindra and MG Motors. "VinFast will really need to tell the Indian buyers what the brand story is and what it really stands for," says Naresh Gupta, chief strategy officer & managing partner, Bang In The Middle. "If the brand thinks that people will see their models running on the roads and that would be enough, it will have to rethink the strategy," Gupta adds.

Experts say offering a competitive price is just one aspect for a new brand to make a mark in any market. Among other things, the company needs to work on expanding its dealership network and build a compelling positioning to stand up to competition.

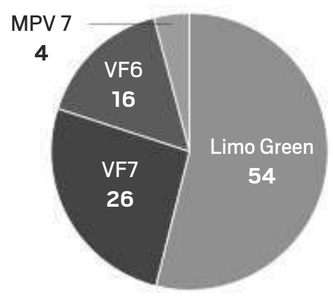

The reduction in the price signals that VinFast has a sharp eye on India's growing EV market, which stood at $3.71 billion in 2025. While the category is nascent, competition is intensifying.

Launched in October 2024, BYD's eMax 7 was one of the early entrants in the 7-seater MPV category. The EV currently commands ex-showroom price of ₹28.3 lakh and offers a range of 485 km for its base variant in the category. Kia's Carens Clavis EV retails at an affordable ex-showroom price of ₹18 lakh but offers a slightly lower range of 404 km on full charge. In November 2025, Mahindra unveiled its XEV 9S at an ex-showroom price of ₹20.7 lakh with a battery capacity of 59 kWh and a claimed range of 521 km on full charge.

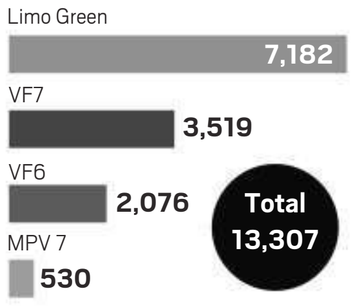

In this scenario, VinFast needs to market its advantages aggressively to overcome buyer hesitation. Currently sold in a single configuration, offering more variants and battery options would allow buyers the option to choose between value and luxury.

Why should electricity storage infrastructure be upgraded?

INDIA HAS ADDED sizeable renewable energy capacity over the last few years with installed capacity including large hydro touching 300 GW as on September 2026. Its share in the overall installed capacity is now more than 53%. The major capacity is in the form of plain-vanilla solar and wind, which is intermittent in nature, and hence it becomes important to add storage capacity in order to ensure grid stability and store excess power generated during off-peak hours.

Rapid renewable capacity additions and that too in specific states such as Rajasthan and Gujarat have created congested zones and have exerted pressure on the evacuation infrastructure leading to instances of grid curtailment. Thus, storage capacity addition can help absorb surplus generation during peak renewable hours, and shift energy to non-solar periods. Therefore, storage has become a policy priority. It will be critical for delivering a reliable round-the-clock supply, while supporting India's 500 GW non-fossil fuel capacity target.

RENEWABLE ENERGY

Why grid-level storage is crucial for self-reliance in electricity

The Union Cabinet recently approved a ₹14,500-crore Viability Gap Funding (VGF) scheme for development of grid-scale energy storage systems. Even as VGF schemes help build a healthy pipeline of storage projects, investment in domestic cell manufacturing will be crucial for reducing import dependence, writes Ankit Jain

SHARE OF RENEWABLE ENERGY IN TOTAL INSTALLED CAPACITY

THE PIPELINE FOR BESS CAPACITY REMAINS ROBUST WITH 78.9 GWH UNDER CONSTRUCTION, 28.9 GWH AWARDED & 76 GWH UNDER TENDERING

What are the types of storage infrastructure viable for India?

CURRENTLY FOR STORAGE, two main technologies are being talked about in India – Battery Energy Storage System (BESS) and Pumped Storage Projects (PSP). Under BESS, electricity is stored in battery cells such as Lithium Ferro Phosphate (LFP), while for a PSP project, there are two reservoirs at different heights.

In a PSP, electricity is used to pump water to an upper reservoir, where it is stored and the same is subsequently released through turbines to generate electricity when discharge is needed.

BESS projects are quicker to implement, while PSP projects are more complicated to build, and have long gestation periods.

The lifespan of a BESS project is 12-15 years (depends on the cycles of charging and discharging with the typical life of batteries being 7000-8000 cycles) and offers 2-4 hours of discharge. PSP projects, on the other hand, offer longer discharge hours with a lifespan of around 35-40 years.

Schemes to make storage biz viable

THE POWER MINISTRY had announced two viability gap funding (VGF) schemes in 2023 and 2025 with a total of 43.8 GWh of BESS with a combined support of ~₹9,160 crore. Under the VGF scheme of September 2023, ₹3,760 crore was allocated for 4 GWh of BESS capacity, which was later increased to 13.2 GWh, as battery costs witnessed a decline. The VGF support, which was ₹27 lakh per MW in October 2024, was slashed to ₹18 lakh per MWh in June 2025, after the cut in battery costs and thus storage capex. This month, the government approved a VGF scheme of ₹14,500 crore for supporting 60 GWh of PSP, 30 GWh of BESS and 2 GWh of capacity through alternative energy storage technologies. The total capex is likely to be ₹97,600 crore. Under this, the BESS projects will require a minimum of 40% domestic content, which can help in reducing import dependence. It had earlier announced a product linked incentive scheme with a total outlay of ₹18,100 crore for 50 GWh of domestic cell manufacturing. It has mandated two-hour storage (~10% of capacity) in solar tenders along with energy storage obligations (ESO) trajectory that rises to 4% by FY2030 for discoms and large consumers. In addition, Green Energy Corridor Phase III (GEC-III) has also been announced, which envisages 50 GWh of BESS with a total capex of ₹50,000 crore.

Can these schemes attract investments?

THE VGF SCHEMES have helped built a healthy pipeline of storage projects over the last one to two years. However, the pace of commissioning of the capacity remained slow until recently when rapid capacity buildout happened. However, around 24 GWh of BESS tenders have been cancelled so far. This can be attributed to the aggressive bidding based on the expectation that battery pack prices will continue to fall, while in fact these remained volatile in 2026 and even saw a rise, which coupled with a sharp rupee depreciation may have rendered some of these projects unviable. To address this, the ESO needs to be enforced effectively so that discoms contract for storage capacities. Faster approvals for pumped storage projects will support capacity addition. Continued investment in domestic cell manufacturing will be important to reduce import dependence for the BESS segment.

Projections on storage needs

ICRA EXPECTS THE energy storage capacity to reach 50-55 GW by 2030 and 65-70 GW by 2032 with 4-5 hours of storage, which will be met through a mix of BESS and PSP. The sharp decline in BESS tariffs over the past months, driven by the sharp decline in battery prices over the years, is anticipated to improve the adoption of storage projects. This is also reflected in rapid increase in BESS capacity addition from 0.5 GWh in March 2025 to 5.9 GWh in March 2026, and further to 14.5 GWh by September 2026. The pipeline for BESS capacity remains robust with 78.9 GWh under construction (with signed power purchase agreement (PPA)/ battery energy storage purchase agreement (BESPA)), 28.9 GWh awarded and 76 GWh under tendering.

Trump rules out any deal with Iran

Says US has secured Iranian funds, Hormuz

KATE SULLIVAN

US Vice President JD Vance

US PRESIDENT DONALD Trump said the US doesn't need a deal with Iran and instructed Vice President JD Vance to focus on domestic issues rather than negotiations with Tehran.

The directive, posted on social media on Thursday, threw cold water on ongoing back channel talks and dampened prospects for a diplomatic breakthrough to end the war. It also appeared to undercut one of Trump's main war objectives: to prevent Iran from obtaining a nuclear weapon.

"We don't need a deal with Iran. Those days have long since passed. We've got their money, Hundreds of Billions of Dollars, and we've got their Strait!," Trump posted on social media, referring to the Strait of Hormuz, a key oil shipping corridor.

Trump directs Vice President Vance to focus on domestic corruption

Oil prices reversed losses after Trump's comments, with Brent crude up 0.5% to around $93.25 a barrel.

The declaration comes just over a week after Trump's Republican Party suffered a wipeout in midterm elections. Voter frustration over the war, and the surge in fuel prices it caused, was a major factor in the GOP's heavy losses.

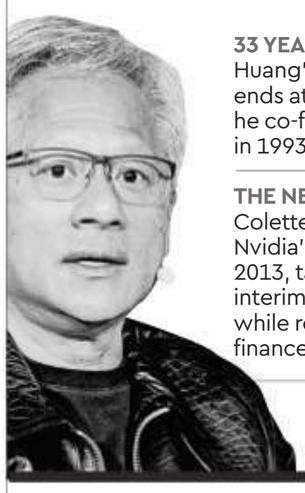

Vance publicly blamed the defeat on the conflict and the US's relationship with Israel, which launched the war alongside Trump in late February.

Trump said Vance should focus on what he called "Massive Corruption and Crime taking place in Democrat run Cities and States throughout the US."

After meeting Monday with the prime minister of Qatar, a main mediator in talks between Washington and Tehran, Trump said he did not think further strikes were needed for now but warned the US was ready to restart armed hostilities if the "status quo" was disrupted.

The Wall Street Journal reported Wednesday that Trump told aides he was open to Vance resuming direct discussions with Iran on ending the war, now in its ninth month, and that the vice president was weighing talks with Mohsen Rezaei, the head of Iran's Supreme National Security Council. —BLOOMBERG

Lutnick faces heat over Nvidia chip exports

A GROWING NUMBER of lawmakers are criticising Commerce Secretary Howard Lutnick over the administration's refusal to add dozens of Chinese companies to a key US trade blacklist, and over whether the government was properly overseeing Nvidia's exports to China.

Criticism of Lutnick's actions predates Thursday's resignation of Nvidia's Jensen Huang, who announced he would step down as CEO of the leading AI chipmaker after revelations of an affair with Alice Huang, who US authorities suspect of spying for Beijing.

But the charge that Lutnick has not done enough to restrict AI chip shipments to China has bubbled up as the fallout of Huang's actions grows.

In June, Reuters reported that the Trump administration had held off from adding China's AI startup DeepSeek, memory chipmaker CXMT and more than 100 other companies flagged as national security risks to a trade blacklist. The US has not posted any additions to that list since October 2025, the longest stretch between new postings in more than a decade.

Govt weighs RBI proposal to cut MPC minutes delay

AT ITS AUGUST 5 meeting, the MPC unanimously decided to keep the repo rate unchanged at 5.25% and retain its neutral stance. Governor Sanjay Malhotra played down inflationary pressures, describing them largely as temporary supply-side shocks.

However, the minutes, released on August 19, revealed a more hawkish tone. Several members voiced concerns over inflation and discussed the possibility of future rate increases, warning that higher food and fuel prices could spill over into broader inflation.

The divergence in tone caught the attention of the bond markets. The yield on the benchmark 10-year government security subsequently rose to 6.82%. Two months later, the MPC raised the repo rate by 25 bps. A simultaneous release of the minutes and the policy decision could help investors assess differences in the committee's thinking immediately, rather than having to recalibrate their expectations two weeks later.

There is no uniform global practice on the timing of monetary policy minutes. The Bank of England publishes its MPC minutes alongside its interest rate decision, providing investors with an immediate account of the debate within the committee. The US Federal Reserve, releases the minutes of its Federal Open Market Committee meetings about three weeks after the rate decision. The ECB publishes its monetary policy accounts four weeks later.

If approved, the RBI proposal would bring India's monetary policy communication closer to the British model. It would also represent a significant shift towards greater transparency and faster disclosure of the deliberations behind interest rate decisions.

UNDER THE NEW framework, states are required to put in place operations and maintenance (O&M) policies, geo-tag water sources and infrastructure assets, and create digital identities for individual water supply schemes. The entire network, including the pipelines connecting water sources to households, must also be digitally mapped.

The revamped scheme launched in March 2026, aims to address weaknesses in the initial scheme's implementation. These weaknesses include corruption, inflated contracting practices and a system that rewarded pipeline construction rather than assured water supply.

A key requirement is involving Gram Panchayats in assessing the functionality of water supply schemes and certifying whether water is actually reaching households. The objective is to move beyond reporting the number of connections provided to establishing whether the infrastructure is delivering a reliable service.

While all 34 states and Union Territories have signed a memorandum of understanding (MoU) with the Centre, only 25 have formulated the required O&M policies, leaving nine yet to fulfil this condition. States are also working towards meeting the digital mapping and asset geo-tagging requirements.

Karnataka, Uttar Pradesh, Madhya Pradesh, Odisha and Assam have emerged as relatively strong performers under the revamped framework, according to officials aware of the matter. Fund releases have begun, although the pace remains gradual as states work towards meeting the stipulated conditions, sources said.

The new approach also envisages a greater role for village communities in monitoring water supply services. Under the proposed Jal Seva self-assessment mechanism, consumers, Gram Sabhas and Gram Panchayats will assess their schemes on parameters such as water availability, source sustainability, quality, household connections, etc.

Launched in 2019 to provide functional household tap connections to all rural homes, the Jal Jeevan Mission has expanded coverage from about 17% of rural households to more than 80%. However, the revamped scheme launched in March 2026 aims to address weaknesses in implementation, including corruption, inflated contracting practices and a system that rewarded pipeline construction rather than assured water supply.

In FY26, the budget allocation was cut to ₹17,000 crore as against an initial outlay of ₹67,000 crore amid concerns over corruption and poor service delivery.

Inflation breaches RBI's ...

"ACUTE PIPELINE PRICE pressures are also likely feeding through to consumer prices more visibly, beyond energy-sensitive CPI. With WPI and PPI inflation still in double digits, further passthrough to consumer prices is highly likely," Nim said.

October marked the 12th straight month of rising retail inflation. Inflation has also stayed above the RBI's medium-term target of 4% for five consecutive months now.

Retail inflation is expected to stay around 6% over the next few months, with the RBI projecting price increases to average 6% in the October-December quarter, and then ease slightly to 5.7% in January-March.

"The current projected trajectory indicates headline inflation staying above the 6% upper tolerance level until June 2027," Axis Bank economists said in a note. "While projections now imply headline inflation of around 5.4% in FY27, reduction to around 5% in FY28 will require core inflation to come back below 4% - an eventuality that is not at all certain," they said.

With inflation projected to remain high in the near future, the RBI's Monetary Policy Committee (MPC) last month raised interest rates for the first time in nearly four years, hiking the repo rate by 25 basis points to 5.50%. Economists expect the RBI's rate-setting panel to raise interest rates by another 50 basis points in FY27, and potentially more if price pressures persist.

Rural inflation was higher than urban inflation in October because of the higher weight of food items in the rural basket. Rural inflation rose to 6.63% in October from 6.08% in September, with food inflation of 9.09%. Urban inflation increased to 5.41% last month from 4.88% in September, and urban food inflation was 8.68%.

The October inflation print, despite being at a two-year high, was along expected lines. Economists polled by FE estimated October CPI inflation at 6.1%, up from 5.54% in September.

Food inflation rose to a series high of 8.94% in October from 7.74% in September, reflecting the impact of weak monsoon and El Nino-related weather disruptions.

Onion saw the highest inflation in October at 116.22%, up from 108.13% in the previous month. Food items such as garlic, ginger, lemon, and sugar saw an inflation rate of around 50% in October. Cereals, other vegetables, pulses, oils and fats also saw higher inflation in October.

Core inflation, which strips out food and fuel items, rose to a series high of 4.5% in October from 4.3% in September. The RBI projects core inflation to average 4.4% in the current financial year.

"Core inflation is expected to inch up further in November 2026, partly owing to the unfavourable base effect arising from GST rationalisation, which would keep the headline CPI inflation elevated at around 6.1% in the month," said Aditi Nayar, chief economist at ICRA.

Sequentially, retail food prices rose 0.9% in October, which led to a 0.5% month-on-month rise in the headline index from September. This was the slowest month-on-month rise in the headline consumer price index in six months.

Eating out continued to become more expensive, with food and beverage serving services inflation rising to 10.09% in October from 9.39% in September.

Fuel price inflation remained high in October. Inflation in the fuels and lubricants for personal use was 7.60% in October compared with 7.59% a month ago.

Transport services for goods fell sharply to 7.34% in October from 14.73% in September. Transport services for goods mainly track price changes in postage, couriers, and money orders. Personal care, social protection and miscellaneous goods and services was the only CPI division where inflation moderated in October. The category's inflation eased to 10.14% last month from 13.75% in September due to lower jewellery inflation.

Gold, diamond, platinum jewellery inflation fell to 19.83% in October from 30.92% in September. Silver jewellery inflation fell sharply to 52.39% last month from 87.82% in September. Inflation increased in the information and communication equipment category, driven by a surge in mobile, computers, and memory storage devices.

Mobile inflation rose to 8.65% in October from 5.83% in September, while computers, laptops and tablets inflation increased to 8.61% from 6.46% in September. Inflation in the pen-drive and external hard disk category was 22.03% in October, up from 19.26% in September, reflecting the surge in global memory and chip prices due to demand from artificial intelligence companies.

October also marked the first clean comparison with the full-month impact of the GST rate reductions implemented in late September 2025, which were fully reflected in the October 2025 data.

FPIs put money behind India's AI-hedge...

SAMIR ARORA OF Singapore-based Helios Capital is less convinced. "Since the reversal of FPI flows happened so fast, a major part must be short-covering," he said. Arora has long argued that India needs to do more to compete for global capital. Among his proposals is the abolition of long-term capital gains tax for foreign investors, which he believes would make Indian equities more attractive. Prasad, too, believes policy stability will be critical to sustaining the momentum. He wants the government to press ahead with administrative reforms while avoiding regulatory overreach in sectors such as healthcare and insurance, where policy uncertainty has unsettled investors.

"Any clarity of stable regulations and benign taxation could help the market," he said.

U R Bhat, founder of Alphaniti Fintech, said FPIs typically seek returns of 15-16% in US dollar terms. Stronger earnings, cheaper crude and a stable or appreciating rupee could make those expectations more achievable.

VK Vijayakumar, chief investment strategist at Geojit Investments, believes India Inc could emerge from a prolonged period of low-single-digit compounded earnings growth and return to mid-teen growth by March 2027. The India trade, however, is hardly risk-free. A renewed surge in crude prices, disappointing earnings or a reversal in global risk appetite could quickly test the strength of the FPI comeback.

Tata's values, Reliance's speed: Mittal's mantra for Bharti@50

THE TELECOM AMBITION has not shrunk either. From around 600 million customers today, he wants Airtel to reach a billion in 10-15 years, adding a couple of hundred million each in India and Africa. Satellite, he says, is a complement rather than a threat, which is why Starlink is now working with Airtel to distribute its products.

The bigger transition is generational. Mittal's son Shravan is deputy chairman in Africa, where Gopal Vittal is the professional chairman, and he will chair that board in a few years. But Mittal insists professionals will always take precedence, with the family acting as custodians. "In moments of crisis, professionals need an anchored shareholder," he says. That was the role he played when he went out and raised those $18 billion.

His template has long been Tata's trusteeship model. "You are here to do good for the country, and your canvas is business," he says. Even during major disagreements with Ratan Tata, he would tell him that he modelled himself on Tata. "I have always believed that Bharti should combine the values and character of Tata with the speed of Reliance."

Fifty years after the bicycle parts, his advice to young entrepreneurs is just as plain: "Go out and build something for the country."

Quantitative factors

Certain information presented below relating to us is based on the Restated Consolidated Financial Information. For details, see "Summary Financial Information" on page 99 of the RHP.

Some of the quantitative factors which may form the basis for calculating the Offer Price are as follows:

A. Basic and Diluted Earnings Per Equity Share:

Financial Year/Period Ended	Basic EPS (in ₹)	Diluted EPS (in ₹)	Weight
March 31, 2026	11.43	11.06	3
March 31, 2025	9.37	9.37	2

Weighted Average	10.01	9.82	-
Three months ended June 30, 2026*	10.66	9.72	-

Not annualised.*

Notes:

i. The face value of each Equity Share is ₹10.

ii. EPS has been calculated in accordance with the Indian Accounting Standard 33 – "Earnings per share notified under the Companies (Indian Accounting Standards) Rules of 2015 (as amended)".

iii. Basic EPS = Profit for the year/period attributable to equity shareholders of our Company divided by weighted average number of equity shares outstanding during the year/period (excluding treasury shares).

iv. Diluted EPS = Profit for the year/period attributable to equity shareholders of our Company divided by weighted average number of equity shares outstanding during the year/period adjusted for the effects of all dilutive potential equity shares, if any (excluding treasury shares). The compulsory convertible debenture issued in the beginning of October 2022 has been considered as potential equity shares and accordingly considered for calculation of Diluted EPS. Potential shares are anti dilutive for the Financial Years ended March 31, 2025 and March 31, 2024, therefore diluted earnings per equity share is same as basic earnings per equity share.

v. Weighted average is aggregate of year-wise Basic EPS and Diluted EPS divided by the aggregate of weights i.e. {Basic EPS/ Diluted EPS x weight for each year/period }/ {Total of weights}

B. Price/Earning ("P/E") Ratio in relation to the Price Band of ₹259 to ₹272 per Equity Share:

DURATION OF PARLIAMENT SESSION NOT DISCLOSED

Govt plans special session to amend women's quota law

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA
New Delhi, November 12

THE GOVERNMENT IS planning to convene a "special session" of Parliament to secure the passage of a Constitution amendment Bill linked to the implementation of women's reservation, with sources expressing confidence that it would win by a margin of 15 to 18 votes.

The sources said the government is confident of having the required numbers but did not disclose the dates or duration of the proposed session.

The government needs 361 votes to secure a two-thirds majority for the passage of the Constitution amendment bill. The House of 543 has three vacancies as of now.

The proposed amendment seeks to increase the strength of the Lok Sabha from the present 543 seats to a maximum of 850 through delimitation, paving the way for the implementation of 33 per cent reservation for women in Parliament and state legislative assemblies.

The move comes after a similar Constitution amendment bill failed to secure the required numbers in the Lok Sabha during a special sitting of the Budget Session on April 17.

The monsoon session remains unprorogued for 91 days now, breaking the earlier record of 87 days set in 2008 FILE

The possibility of convening Parliament at short notice has remained alive as the Monsoon Session, during which both Houses were adjourned sine die (for an indefinite period) on August 13, has not yet been prorogued. The session has remained unprorogued for 91 days now, breaking the previous record of 87 days set in 2008.

An extended sitting within the existing session requires a minimum notice of two days, while convening a fresh session requires at least 14 days' notice.

The government's decision to keep the Monsoon Session unprorogued had fuelled speculation about an extended or a special sitting to consider the proposed amendment. The government proposes to increase Lok Sabha seats for all states by 50% to assuage concerns of southern states as it seeks to operationalise the women's reservation law before the 2029 parliamentary polls.

Building on the earlier Bill, the fresh draft is learnt to have proposed keeping the existing inter-state seat ratios intact based on the 1971 Census.

But this is one of the formulations the government is working on and no finality has been achieved, government sources have said.

Centre makes safety norms tighter for rental cabs

ANEES HUSSAIN
Bengaluru, November 12

THE MINISTRY OF Road Transport and Highways (MoRTH) has proposed cutting the minimum fleet a cab rental operator must hold to five vehicles from 50. It has also proposed dropping the requirement to run branches in five tourist cities to make the business easier to start and run.

The draft Rent-a-Cab Scheme, 2026, would replace the Rent-a-Cab Scheme, 1989, which governs car rental businesses. That scheme has been amended only once, in 2021. The limited amendment extended it to battery-operated cabs and those running on methanol and ethanol, which are exempt from permit requirements. The ministry has invited comments on the draft until December 5.

Under the existing scheme, operators must keep at least 50 cabs, half of them air-conditioned. They must also have branch or sub-licensee offices in at least five cities of tourist importance, with facilities to house, maintain and repair vehicles. Under the draft, an operator would need a total fleet of just five vehicles, and at least two cabs at every location it operates from.

The draft also proposes a single electronic licence, valid across a state or Union territory for a uniform fee. It would replace the separate main and branch licences operators hold today.

World leaders give negotiators tough task to draft COP31 deal

WILLIAM JAMES & SIMON JESSOP
Antalya (Turkey), November 12

WORLD LEADERS HAVE set out competing positions and made clashing demands in two days of intense speech-making at the COP31 climate change talks in Turkey, leaving negotiators with a tough task to draft a meaningful deal that all can agree.

Small island states, among the most vulnerable in the world as global warming makes sea levels rise, pleaded for urgent cuts to greenhouse gas emissions.

European leaders, meanwhile, lined up behind a proposal to expand global electrification, developing countries asked for more finance from rich ones, and fossil fuel producers said oil, gas, and coal should continue to be used. "We reaffirm our sovereign right to strengthen our energy and oil industry as a driver of our national development," Venezuela's acting President Delcy Rodriguez told the conference, after UN leaders had made the case for bringing to an end the age of fossil fuel.

Apart from trying to accommodate incompatible national positions aired on Wednesday and Thursday, conference host Turkey and negotiations lead Australia also have the challenge of trying to make progress when wars and inflation have pushed climate concerns down the political agenda.

British Prime Minister Andy Burnham (left) with Mayor of London Sadiq Khan before delivering his speech to the Cop31 summit in Turkey's Antalya on Thursday REUTERS

"It's my job to steer consensus, not to bang tables and demand any particular action, but to steer consensus to the strongest, most ambitious possible outcome within the constraints of that consensus-driven process," Chris Bowen, Australia's COP31 president of negotiations, told Reuters.

Asked what a good deal might look like, he said: "I have many more hours of consultations with partners to do." Climate activists say short-term political concerns should not get in the way of addressing an issue that will get more pressing if ignored. A UN report last month found the world was already on course to break through the 1.5 degrees Celsius (2.7 degrees Fahrenheit) warming limit that countries had agreed to pursue under the 2015 Paris Agreement to prevent the worst effects of climate change.

"The situation could not be less under control. The planet is not dying. It is being killed," Swedish climate activist Greta Thunberg said on the sidelines of the conference. "It is being killed by the very same people often thought to come to our rescue. No one is coming to our rescue."

Earlier on Thursday, the leaders of small island states including the Bahamas, Tuvalu, the Solomon Islands and Saint Lucia called for swift action. "Major emitters must move beyond the usual promises. They must reduce emissions that the climate crisis demands," said Saint Lucia's Prime Minister Philip J. Pierre.

British PM Andy Burnham backed a proposal by Turkey to increase electricity's share of world energy consumption to 35% by 2035, from a little over a fifth now, to help advance that goal. Turkey has not specified whether the extra energy used would be renewable. Burnham told the conference that energy supply disruptions from the US-Israeli war with Iran and Russia's war with Ukraine showed clean energy was the wise choice.

Fresh cloud-seeding trial in Delhi likely

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA
New Delhi, November 12

A FRESH ROUND of cloud-seeding trials is likely to be conducted over the national capital in the next few days, with the team from IIT Kanpur ready to carry out the operation, officials associated with the exercise said on Thursday.

However, the timing of the trial will depend on meteorological conditions, particularly the moisture content in the clouds, they said.

"We are ready to go. Everything is set up. However, we can only do the trial when the moisture content is high in the clouds. If meteorological conditions suit, then we will immediately draw out a flight path and

The timing of the seeding trial will depend on meteorological conditions, particularly the moisture content in the clouds leave," an official associated with the operation told PTI.

The proposed exercise is aimed at exploring the potential of cloud-seeding as a measure to induce rainfall and help tackle the national capital's pollution crisis.

This will not be Delhi's first experience with the weather-modification technique. On October 28, 2025, the Delhi government conducted two back-to-back cloud-seeding trials, during which a small aircraft was flown over parts of the city and released silver iodide and sodium chloride particles through chemical flares.

Cloud-seeding is a weather-modification technique that involves introducing substances such as silver iodide into suitable clouds to trigger micro-physical processes that encourage the formation of ice crystals or water droplets, potentially enhancing rainfall.

However, the previous experiment yielded little to no rainfall over Delhi and neighbouring areas, with experts questioning its effectiveness.

In recent days, Delhi Environment Minister Manjinder Singh Sirsa has said that IIT Kanpur has been conducting studies and trials in preparation for the proposed cloud-seeding exercise.

Meanwhile, the air quality index at Delhi Cantonment remained in the 'moderate' category even as the rest of the national capital gasped for breath amid very high pollution levels, leading experts to suspect a data gap at the monitoring station.

A thick, sepia-coloured haze shrouded the city on Thursday, blurring its skyline, with residents complaining of coughs, burning eyes and breathing issues as Delhi's air quality worsened. The city's 24-hour average Air Quality Index (AQI) climbed to 350, in the 'very poor' category, from 313 recorded on Wednesday.

6. The Company does not have any subsidiary/ associate/ joint venture entity (ies) for the aforesaid periods/ year.
