Further, one of our trademarks "Milky Mist" has been hypothecated as security for financing arrangements availed from certain lenders. Demand for these product categories depends primarily on consumer-related factors such as regional preferences, demographics, consumer confidence in our products as well as evolving consumer tastes and preferences and any decrease in demand for these products could have an adverse effect on our business, results of operations, financial condition and cash flows.

Ready for discussion on protests, says govt.

Sandeep Phukan
Sreeparna Chakrabarty
NEW DELHI

The Centre on Monday offered a full-fledged discussion in the Lok Sabha on the protests by students and the police action against them, with Union Home Minister Amit Shah set to reply to the debate.

However, the Opposition refused to relent, insisting that Mr. Shah clarify who ordered the use of pellet guns on the students in Delhi.

The Opposition also insisted that the Centre agree to a discussion and issue a statement on the alleged theft of donations at the Ram Temple in Ayodhya.

The Centre’s offer to break the deadlock in the Lok Sabha came at a meeting of the Business Advisory Committee (BAC) in the afternoon, after which Parliamentary Affairs Minister Kiren Rijiju said the government was ready for a debate on the agitations

Over 100 killed as powerful earthquake strikes Colombia

Associated Press
BOGOTA

At least 111 people were killed and 87 injured in Colombia on Monday when a 7.4 magnitude earthquake struck the Latin American country, leaving several cities ravaged and trapping residents under debris of hundreds of collapsed buildings while their loved ones and rescue workers searched through the rubble.

The “highest magnitude earthquake in Colombia in the last decade” was followed by two aftershocks of magnitudes 2.8 and 4.8, the Colombian Geological Service said. The U.S. Geological Survey reported the State song must be sung first, states T.N. House resolution

The Hindu Bureau
CHENNAI

The Tamil Nadu Assembly on Monday unanimously adopted a resolution to make it mandatory to render the State Song, ‘Tamil Thai Vazhthu’ (Invocation to mother Tamil), first before the commencement of programmes at all educational institutions, universities, government offices, public sector undertakings, and other public institutions in the State.

The resolution, moved by Chief Minister C. Joseph Vijay, stated that Tamil Thai Vazhthu was an expression of respect for the Tamil language and culture. The resolution stated that the decision was in accordance with the linguistic and cultural rights guaranteed by the Constitution and aimed at preserving the cultural identity of Tamil Nadu.

CM Vijay termed the resolution ‘historic’; the DMK demanded a special law to give it legal status

Tamil is “one of the world’s ancient classical languages” and Tamil civilisation represents one of the oldest cultural traditions in the world, it added. Recalling the history of Tamil Thai Vazhthu, taken from Manonmaniam written by Manonmaniam Sundaranar in 1891, the resolution stated that the government order stipulating that it be sung first at government functions came into effect on November 23, 1970. The DMK government issued an order on December 12, 2021, according recognition to it as the State song. The resolution added that the Home Ministry, in a letter dated July 9, 2026, “made certain observations regarding the singing of the State song”. (It did not explain what these observations were.)

Later, in a social media post, Mr. Vijay termed the resolution “historic” and thanked all political parties for supporting it. The DMK, however, demanded a special law to give legal status to the resolution.

‘Series of technical failures’ preceded 300-ft plunge by Air India flight; probe continues

Jagriti Chandra
NEW DELHI

The “momentary loss in altitude” of the Air India flight from Phuket in Thailand to Delhi on August 4, which injured 17 people aboard, was preceded by a cascade of failures involving the aircraft’s hydraulic and flight-control systems, said multiple sources familiar with the matter, contradicting the airline’s initial attribution of the incident to turbulence.

Flight AI 2379, undertaken in an Airbus A320neo aircraft, experienced technical failures at cruising altitude nearly two-and-a-half hours after take-off. The sequence involved low-pressure indications and failures affecting hydraulic systems, according to a source who has reviewed the automated post-flight maintenance report. This was followed by an autopilot disconnect and simultaneous fault indications affecting both the left and right elevators, which are the control surfaces that move the aircraft’s nose up or down.

The A320neo has three independent hydraulic systems that power critical functions. The maintenance report records failures and warning indications in the systems, occurring either individually or in combinations, but affecting all three of them, according to the source. The report recorded nine such messages within one minute. Several pilots described the near-simultaneous failure of three of the hydraulic systems as extremely rare.

The Aircraft Accident Investigation Bureau (AAIB) is probing the incident and has classified it as ‘serious’. An Airbus team is expected to arrive on Tuesday to assist with the AAIB probe, while France’s aviation safety investigation authority, the Bureau of Enquiry and Analysis for Civil Aviation Safety, will also join the investigation.

“Such an assessment is simply not possible through what amounts to a token tour of nine districts in just four days,” read a statement issued by the rights groups.

The committee has conducted public hearings in places such as Alwar and Ajmer. The People’s Union for Civil Liberties (PUC) and other groups said the mining lobby dominated the hearings and the administration did not make any meaningful effort to inform or involve locals.

PUCL-Rajasthan president Anant Bhatnagar said if the panel fails to make its process genuinely participatory and inclusive, people’s groups will organise their own public hearings at different locations across the Aravali region.

Meanwhile, Akhil Bharatiya Vanavasi Kalyan Ashram, a Rashtriya Swayamsevak Sangh-affiliated social welfare organisation, has written to the committee raising several issues over its public consultation notification, including not providing enough time to submit comments and failing to reach rural communities.

Day after JNU nixed discussion on Khalid’s book, students’ union holds event outdoors

Ashna Butani
NEW DELHI

A day after Jawaharlal Nehru University (JNU) cancelled permission to hold an auditorium discussion on a book by former student Umar Khalid, the students’ union went ahead with the plan and held the talk outdoors on Monday.

Despite the rain, students turned out in large numbers for the event held from 3 p.m. to 5 p.m. outside the School of Social Sciences 2 to discuss Fractured Communities: Adivasi Histories and the Politics of Power.

The book discussion was held amid protests by the RSS-linked Akhil Bharatiya Vidyarthi Parishad (ABVP), whose members chanted slogans calling Mr. Khalid a “terrorist”.

The former JNU student is lodged in Tihar jail in the 2020 north-east Delhi riots ‘larger conspiracy’ case and has been awaiting trial for nearly six years. Some students raised objections to the absence of tribal community members from the panel to discuss a book on Adivasis.

‘Hypocritical stance’
Students from other colleges also attended the discussion. Delhi University student Aryan Singh said while he was at first sceptical about travelling all the way due to reports about the last-minute cancellation, he decided to travel anyway. “I had to turn up because he [Mr. Khalid] has been waiting six years for a trial. It is hypocritical that the same JNU where he completed his research is trying to erase his thesis,” he said.

ABVP member Rajeshwar Kant Dubey said, “We have clarified our stance. If the government thinks that Umar Khalid is a terrorist, then who is the JNUSU to give him a clean chit?”

On Sunday, the administration announced the cancellation of the talk at the School of Social Sciences 1 auditorium, citing “non-disclosure of full facts about the programme”.

The move invited criticism from the JNUSU.

First round of Manipur govt’s talks with UNC ‘fruitful, an icebreaker’

Both sides agree to continue discussions to find solutions to the issues raised by the Naga apex body, including abrogation of SoO pact; won’t lift blockade until demands are met, says UNC chief

The first round of talks between the Manipur government and the United Naga Council (UNC) was “fruitful and cordial”, with both sides agreeing to continue discussions to find solutions to the issues raised by the Naga apex body, a government spokesperson said on Monday.

A delegation of Ministers and nine MLAs, led by Deputy Chief Minister L. Dikho and Home Minister Govindas Konthoujam, held talks with the UNC representatives at the Senapati district headquarters.

The UNC has been demanding abrogation of the Suspension of Operations (SoO) pact with Kuki militant groups, declaration of the Kuki National Front-President (KNF-P) as a terrorist organisation, removal of the Deputy CM, and arrest of KNF-P cadres allegedly involved in the killing of six Naga civilians.

Government spokesperson Thokchom Radheshyam described the meeting as an “icebreaker” and said further rounds of talks would be held. “Today, the United Naga Council and is the policy of the government of India. Manipur is part of India and we have to go by the policy and decision of the Centre.”

UNC chief Ng Lorho, however, said the group would not lift its blockade of national highways until its four-point charter of demands is fulfilled.

‘Bringing peace’
“We discussed with the Ministers and the legislators the way forward on how to bring peace. We discussed our four-point charter of demands and we stick to it,” Mr. Lorho said after the meeting.

The UNC chief warned that the organisation could take “more stringent actions” if its demands are not met. He said further talks should be held in Senapati and not Imphal.

NRC ID: SC seeks reply from Centre, Assam

The Hindu Bureau
NEW DELHI

The Supreme Court on Monday sought responses from the Union government and the State of Assam to petitions for issuance of identity cards to persons included in the National Register of Citizens (NRC) of August 2019.

The Bench comprising

Justices P.S. Narasimha and Alok Aradhe sought the replies on petitions filed by the Jamiat Ulema-i-Hind, the Assam Sankhyalaghu Sangram Parishad, and others. Senior Advocate Kapil Sibal, for the Jamiat, said the Centre and the State were yet to respond despite issuance of notice by the Supreme Court.

Senior advocate Manish

Goswami, for former NRC coordinator Hitesh Dev Sarma, sought re-verification of the NRC list. He contended there were several inaccuracies in the list.

The petition stated that the appeal process had not commenced for those who were excluded from the NRC. Over 3.11 crore people on the NRC list have not received their national identity cards while about 19 lakh were excluded from the register.

“The exercise is virtually at a standstill as the follow-up steps – issuance of National Identity Cards to included persons – have not been undertaken,” a petition by the Assam State Jamiat Ulama, represented by senior advocate M.R. Shamshad, stated.

SC to hear plea against Ram Rahim’s acquittal in 2002 case

The Supreme Court on Monday agreed to hear a plea against the Punjab and Haryana High Court order acquitting Dera Sacha Sauda chief Gurmeet Ram Rahim Singh in the 2002 murder case of a journalist. “This matter requires consideration,” a Bench comprising Chief Justice Surya Kant and Justices Joymalya Bagchi and V. Mohana said. The apex court posted the plea filed by Aridaman, son of the slain journalist, for final hearing in the week commencing November 16. The counsel appearing for Mr. Ram Rahim told the Bench that the State has not preferred any appeal challenging the High Court’s order. PTI

The Joint Action Rehabilitation Committee and Joint Action Committee representing a group of surrendered militants, on August 6, had called for a protest demanding proper rehabilitation. “We have decided to postpone the protest following a request from the government to address our grievances,” Jibanjoy Reang, convener of both organisations, said in Agartala. Punjab passes nine Bills in a day; Oppn. calls it a ‘display of majoritarian arrogance’

The Hindu Bureau
CHANDIGARH

Opposition parties in Punjab lashed out at the Aam Aadmi Party (AAP) government after nine Bills were passed in the House on Monday, describing the exercise as a “display of majoritarian arrogance”.

The State Assembly passed nine Bills pertaining to various sectors, including education, infrastructure, taxation, and employment.

The Bill included the Punjab Common Infrastructure (Regulation and Maintenance) Amendment Bill, 2026, the Punjab Regulation of Fee of Un-aided Educational Institutions (Amendment) Bill, 2026, the Punjab Goods and Services Tax (Amendment) Bill, 2026, the Punjab State Outsourced Personnel (Transition to Contractual Engagement) Bill, 2026, the Punjab Panchayati Raj (Amendment) Bill, 2026 and the Punjab Protection of Trees Bill, 2026.

The House also passed three Bills pertaining to universities, including the Cloud University, Hoshiarpur Bill, 2026, the MS Digital University, Patiala Bill, 2026 and the Physicswallah Digital University, Patiala Bill, 2026.

Bharatiya Janata Party’s Punjab president Kewal Singh Dhillon called it “a gross insult to Punjab’s legislative system and democracy”. He said passing Bills that could have far-reaching consequences for the lives of the people of Punjab without giving legislators adequate time to read, understand, and scrutinise is not law-making. “Rather, it is a display of the arrogance of the majority,” he said.

Punjab Congress president Amarinder Singh Raja Warring in a post on X said: “On the very last day of the Assembly session, Congress MLAs were handed nine Bills this morning. This is nothing short of a joke with democracy.”

SP fears BSP the most, says Akash Anand, asks voters to be wary

Mayank Kumar

Bahujan Samaj Party (BSP) national coordinator Akash Anand on Monday claimed the Samajwadi Party (SP) fears his party the most.

“Samajwadi Party fears BSP the most. It was [party chief] Mayawati who worked the most for the uplift of Dalits. That’s why SP members keep shouting ‘PDA, PDA,’ he said at a party workers’ conference in Hathras, referring to the SP’s Pichchda, Dalit, Alpsankhyank or Backwards, Dalits and minorities plank. “Mayawati always cautions people from all walks of life to be wary of the deceptive SP and its narrow casteist politics,” added Mr. Anand.

The BSP leader also accused the Bharatiya Janata

BSP leader Akash Anand

Party-led Uttar Pradesh government of failing on employment, education and law and order, and alleged that more than ₹7,000 crore had been spent on advertisements over the past decade to “hide its shortcomings”. “More than four lakh government posts are lying vacant in the State while several competitive examinations witnessed paper leaks,” he said.

Protectors turn predators: how son preference fuels female foeticide rackets in Maharashtra

Radheshyam Jadhav
KOLHAPUR

A man once tasked with saving Maharashtra’s daughters has now been unmasked as one of their most prolific predators.

For decades, Dr. Chandrakant Gunda Gaikwad sat comfortably within the upper echelons of the State health establishment, serving as a district civil surgeon and assistant director. He was also part of the government’s ‘Save the Girls’ campaign for years.

Retirement did not signal an end to his medical career, but marked the expansion of a dark underground enterprise. Dr. Gaikwad was arrested by the Kolhapur police on July 31 for allegedly orchestrating a sophisticated female foeticide ring. During interrogation, he allegedly admitted to performing around 200 to 250 illegal abortions, the police said.

The racket operated out of Kolhapur in western Maharashtra, the home district of State Health Minister Prakash Abitkar. The Minister called it a “serious matter” that a former health official was involved in such a crime. He announced that the State will soon introduce a new law to invoke the stringent Maharashtra Control of Organised Crime Act against female foeticide, ensuring that doctors, family members, pharmacists, and anyone else supporting the crime face prosecution.

However, when media persons pressed the Minister about how implicated doctors and individuals routinely escape punishment and continue running their rackets after securing bail, he had no concrete answer. It underscored a grim reality: culprits easily slip through the cracks and accountability remains elusive.

According to Sunanda Patil, an octogenarian and resident of Kolhapur, female foeticide “is nothing new”. She said women face two choices: empty their wombs if it is a girl, or keep giving birth until a son is born. She chose the second option, delivering three daughters before finally having a son. She considers herself lucky that her husband stopped there.

Quiet tragedies

For daily wage worker Maloji Kharat and his agricultural worker wife Lankabai, the reality was starkly different. By 38, Ms. Lankabai had 21 pregnancies and struggled to recall the names of all her children. Of her 11 surviving children, nine are girls. The other 10 died either shortly after birth or during delivery. When their story was reported a few years ago, the couple vanished from public view.

Beed district in the Marathwada region has long carried a dark reputation for illegal abortion rings. The most notorious was run by Dr. Sudam Munde and Dr. Saraswati Munde from Parali who operated a sex determination racket for years.

In one of the most chilling revelations, investigators found that the Mundes fed aborted female foetuses to a pack of dogs to hide the evidence, reportedly aborting up to 20 female foetuses a day for decades.

Beed-based activist Manisha Tokale noted that it has been over a decade since the Munde case, yet illegal abortion networks continue to operate in secret. The issue makes headlines briefly when a case is uncovered, she said, before things slip right back to normal.

This generational pressure drives quiet tragedies across the State. After delivering two sons, Renu (name changed) became pregnant a third time. Her husband, a daily wage worker, expected another boy. Fearing that her family history of having only daughters meant she would carry the same genes, he routinely took her for ultrasound tests.

“We went, had a sonography, and the family suggested abortion,” Ms. Renu said, without needing to specify that the third child was a girl. Phrases like “khali karun ye (empty it and come back)” or “tapasun baghu (let us check)” echo across both rural and urban Maharashtra. When she went to a private clinic in Beed for the abortion, the doctor botched the procedure. She said the clean-up was not done properly, leaving her with lasting physical pain and nowhere to turn for justice.

Centre did not say T.N.’s State song must be sung last: ASG

Mohamed Imranullah S.
CHENNAI

The Union Ministry of Home Affairs (MHA) has not insisted that the State song Tamil Thai Vazhthu should be sung last, after the rendition of the national song Vande Mataram and the national anthem during official events, Additional Solicitor General (ASG) AR.L. Sundaresan told the Madras High Court on Monday.

Appearing before the first Division Bench of Chief Justice Sushrut Arvind Dharmadhikari and Justice G. Arul Murugan during the hearing of a public interest litigation petition, the ASG said the case had become infructuous since it had challenged a January 28, 2026 notification of the MHA, which had been replaced by a new notification on July 9.

Seeking a week’s time to place the latest notification before the Bench, the ASG said: “The petitioner wants the Tamil Thai Vazhthu to be sung before the national song and the national anthem. But there is no issue at all. We are not saying that the State song must be sung at the last. We only say that if the national song and the national anthem had to be sung together, then in which order should they be sung.”

When the Chief Justice felt nothing would survive to be decided in the case in view of the submission, the ASG replied: “Yes, we have just said the national song must be sung first, followed by the national anthem when they both have to be sung together. There is no directive issued by the Union with respect to the order in which the State song should be sung”

After hearing him, the judges directed the HC Registry to list the PIL petition after a week to enable the ASG to place the July 9, 2026 notification before the Bench. The case had been filed by Ananya Radhakrishnan of Chennai, who identified herself as a public-spirited individual.

Meghalaya’s district council okays amendments to bar non-tribals from poll process

Press Trust of India
TURA (MEGHALAYA)

The Garo Hills Autonomous District Council in western Meghalaya on Monday approved amendments to its election rules that will bar non-tribals from voting or contesting council elections, while paving the way for a separate electoral roll for the Sixth Schedule body, officials said.

The amendments to Rules 128 and 129 were approved by the council to establish a separate electoral roll specifically for GHADC elections, replacing the practice of using the electoral roll prepared for Assembly election.

The amendments followed violent incidents in the Garo Hills region earlier this year after the authorities issued a notification seeking to bar non-tribals from contesting the GHADC election.

The Meghalaya High Court later cancelled the notification, while the State government postponed the elections, scheduled for April 10, in view of the violence that claimed two lives.

Under the amended rules, only persons belonging to Scheduled Tribes recognised by the Meghalaya government and fulfilling other prescribed conditions will be eligible to be included in the GHADC electoral roll.

“The amendment marks a significant step in protecting the rights and interests of the tribal people of Garo Hills,” said Chief Executive Member of the council, M. Dhormonath Ch Sangma.

The amendment also follows a change approved by the council in March this year, which introduced Scheduled Tribe status as an eligibility criterion for contesting GHADC elections. The move also comes in line with the commitment made by Meghalaya CM Conrad K. Sangma to address the issue of a separate electoral roll for the GHADC.

A 40-year-old man, a senior manager at a cab company, allegedly strangled his two minor daughters before attempting to end his life at a hotel near the Kempegowda International Airport at Bengaluru, Karnataka, on Monday, the police said. He was found in a critical condition and shifted to hospital by the hotel's staff. The police recovered a note in which he allegedly referred to marital disputes. (If you are in distress, call TeleMANAS at 1-8008914416)

Garhmukteshwar Station House Officer Devendra Singh said another FIR was registered on August 3 based on the complaint by Mr. Farman's father. "His father told us that Azeem turned his vehicle 'into a weapon', ramming his vehicle into the auto twice. He has alleged that Azeem rammed the vehicle over Farman's abdomen and chest before fleeing. Farman is also admitted to a hospital. But now that Azeem is dead, we are initiating the process of filing a closure report in the FIR against him," Mr. Singh said, adding that the probe into the first FIR will continue.

Even as leaders from both parties remained tight-lipped about the deliberations, speculation is rife that the former alliance partners could join hands again. The SAD and BJP were allies since the late 1990s; however, amid the controversy over the Centre's three farm laws that were later repealed, the Akalis - one of the BJP's oldest alliance partners - decided to break away from the NDA coalition in 2020.

The police have urged the public to report about such gangs immediately to the police.

“It is a prosecution of an independent statutory offence [under PMLA], in which the petitioners have to come out clean in a full blown proceeding before the special court, as the prohibition under Section 300 of the Criminal Procedure Code extends only to a second trial for the same offence and not to a prosecution for a distinct offence under another enactment,” the High Court said while dismissing their petition.

Meanwhile, experts attribute Karnataka's success in EV infrastructure to the State's early and proactive policy decisions, particularly its 2017 EV policy. "The extensive network of charging stations in Bengaluru demonstrates how infrastructure can help build consumer confidence. However, the focus must now shift towards improving interoperability, standardising charging tariffs and providing real-time information on charger availability to enhance the overall user experience," said transport expert M.N. Srihari.

The impact of the forthcoming delimitation is going to be far-reaching; it must be preceded by as wide a consensus as possible. The country's representative system is on the cusp of a revision, but the government that is anxious to modify its timeline and terms also wants to be extremely secretive about it. Passing legislation with very little prior deliberation or parliamentary debate has become routine in recent years. Delimitation is a topic about which there is a great deal of misunderstanding and serious concern. A large segment of even the political class may be oblivious to its scope and implications. Rather than trying to change the laws regarding delimitation and the size of the Lok Sabha by somehow aggregating the required number of votes behind it, the government should circulate its proposals and receive feedback from all stakeholders. An all-party meeting, as demanded by the Opposition, can be a good start to the deliberations that should take place in the polity at large and inside Parliament. Anything that is technically legitimised through subterfuge will be seen by the public as such. It must be recalled that in 1976 and in 2001, under a Congress government and a BJP government, respectively, decisions with regard to delimitation were taken unanimously. The government and the BJP should once again take the initiative to build a consensus on delimitation for the sake of the nation's unity and progress.

A fully updated live nurses portal will be of immense benefit to the nation

Poor nurse registration – irrespective of whether it is caused by incomplete digital tracking systems, outdated State registries, delayed licensing, or regional autonomy – has widespread consequences across health-care systems, apart from personally affecting nurses. For nurses, there will be delays in sanctioning their requests for inter-State transfer and credential verification for overseas employment. For the nation, without a centralised live registry that can provide a true measure of how many nurses (with specialisations) are available where, there might be artificial surpluses or deficits on paper, leading to less-than-ideal deployment of resources, and implementation of policy decisions. Fragmented registries also make it easy for unverified individuals, impersonators, or personnel with revoked licences to practise using fraudulent credentials, thus compromising patient safety. A live tracker would be of utmost use during public health emergencies – including disease outbreaks and natural disasters. Else, it could be impossible for state agencies to track, mobilise or deploy specialised nursing personnel to high-alert zones. Given the crucial complementary role, and in some areas, even the primary role that nurses play in the health-care system, efforts must be made to ensure that all nurses are brought into the portal.

After Independence, India indeed found a place for English. The Constituent Assembly debates on the language question adopted a

English is no longer colonial and has evolved into a language, shaped by how Indians speak, think, and imagine themselves

India has also recognised English as a language of Indian creativity. The Sahitya Akademi has treated English as one of the languages of Indian literature, conferring annual awards. Indian Writing in English has developed into one of the richest literary traditions in the postcolonial world. From R.K. Narayan, Mulk Raj Anand to Amitav Ghosh and Vikram Seth, Indian writers have demonstrated that English can express Indian experiences with authenticity, subtlety, and artistic distinction.

As an aspirational people, Indians invest considerable effort and money in education. Nearly 31,000 schools affiliated to the Central Board of Secondary Education (CBSE) impart education primarily through English. So do the 3,000 schools which are affiliated to comparable boards such as the Council for the Indian School Certificate Examinations. Let us not forget that English is also the principal medium of education in all premier higher educational institutions of India.

It also needs to be pointed out that India has Indianised English. Raja Rao spoke about it in the Monolingualism has never been the historical reality of Indian society. India has always deeply cherished languages that Indians speak in their homes and among kin and kin. At the same time, they have spoken in other languages with considerable facility and comfort. English is not in competition with Hindi or Tamil. Rather it is a language that provides Indians with an already historically familiar bridge to connect with other language-speaking communities both within and beyond India.

It is not an important question, therefore, whether English is an indigenous language. It is not. More important is the realisation that through history and literature, constitutional practice and governance, and through everyday usage, English has earned the right to be regarded as one of modern India's own languages. It is useful to remember that English has long ceased to be the language of colonial rulers. It has evolved into one of the several languages in which Indians imagine themselves. Indian English belongs to India.

International law scholars Abram Chayes and Antonia Handler Chayes argued that states often comply with international law not because they are threatened with sanctions, but because they are influenced by the dynamics created within the treaty regimes to which they belong. It is a pertinent observation even today. The significance of international law cannot be determined only by instances of violation; it also lies in providing a framework through which state conduct is assessed, disputes are addressed and cooperation is sustained. The difficulty is that compliance goes unnoticed whereas violations dominate headlines.

The continued relevance of international law is perhaps most evident in the way states seek peace, which is built through negotiations, commitments and legal arrangements. Whether these are described as peace agreements, ceasefire arrangements, diplomatic understandings or negotiated settlements, even adversarial states recognise the need for legal commitments that establish expectations and obligations for the future. India provides a good example in this respect. India's experience with the Indus Waters Treaty demonstrates that even during periods of political discord, legal frameworks continue to provide a basis for engagement between states. That is precisely why international law remains indispensable for India and the wider Global South. The problems of climate change, pandemics, cyber-attacks, and economic instability cannot be addressed unilaterally by any state. They require cooperation, which in turn depends on agreed rules of conduct. A rules-based international order provides an opportunity to developing states to protect and advance their interests through negotiations rather than power alone.

International law is under pressure, but it is far from dead. The greater danger is the growing belief that its violations prove its irrelevance, a conclusion that serves only those who prefer a world in which might makes right. As long as states continue to invoke, interpret and rely on international law, its obituary is being written far too soon.

UPI and the cost of policy reversal

The government's proposal to allow an MDR of 0.25–0.5% on UPI transactions above ₹2,000 reverses a decade-long policy; taxing the payment rail could weaken incentives for banks and fintechs to invest in UPI while undermining its role in financial inclusion, formalisation and wider digital adoption

ECONOMIC NOTES

Parag Wanknis

The government has just given itself the legal room to tax the very payment habit it spent a decade building. Tucked into the Taxation and Other Laws (Amendment) Bill, 2026, is an amendment to Section 10A of the Payment and Settlement Systems Act, 2007, which would allow the government to notify charges on specified electronic payment modes. The number being proposed is a Merchant Discount Rate (MDR) of 0.25–0.5% on UPI transactions above ₹2,000. The official stand is that this threshold would touch only about five per cent of transactions by volume, sparing the milk-and-vegetable payments that make up the bulk of UPI's use. But it would cover roughly 65% of transaction value, which is precisely why it matters. This is not a small, technical fix. It runs counter to a decade-long policy commitment and deserves more scrutiny than it has received.

The policy reversal Consider the arc. Demonetisation in November 2016 was justified, among other things, as a push towards a less-cash economy. UPI, launched earlier that year, became the vehicle for that push, and its zero-MDR regime was a deliberate subsidy to get merchants and consumers off cash. It worked spectacularly. UPI now processes more transactions each month than most of the world's card networks combined. Having successfully weaned the country away from cash and towards electronic payments, the government now wants to undercut the very success it engineered.

There seems to be a continued pattern of privileging one payment mode over others via policy. India has long taxed even credit cards. Credit card interest and fees attract 18% GST, making the use of credit cards unnecessarily costly. Taxing interest on revolving credit is unusual by international standards; most jurisdictions treat consumer credit interest as a private financial cost, not a taxable service. India taxes it as if using a credit card itself is a luxury. Now UPI, the payment rail the government spent political capital promoting, is in line for similar treatment. The pattern suggests a need for a more coherent payments policy than giving in to the temptation to tax every transaction that can be observed. There are at least two problems with this specific move beyond the optics.

Who really pays? First, basic economic theory tells us that the person on whom a tax is levied and the person who actually bears its cost are not always the same. Moreover, UPI or any payments interface is a two-sided market, and taxing two-sided markets is genuinely tricky. The MDR would nominally fall on merchants, as argued by the government, collected via banks and the National Payments Corporation of India's ecosystem. But whether that cost gets passed through to merchants, on to consumers, or absorbed by banks and payment service providers depends on competitive intensity on each side of the market. Banks and fintechs compete for merchant relationships and cannot easily raise prices without losing volume to a rival offering free UPI acceptance. The more likely outcome is that intermediaries – the banks and PSPs that build and maintain the plumbing – absorb the cost, which erodes their incentive to invest in reliability, fraud prevention and expansion into underserved segments. A tax that cannot be reliably passed through does not disappear; it most likely shows up later as degraded service or slower innovation. This is completely counterintuitive if government is proposing this tax as necessary to fund the next stage of UPI growth.

Cost to inclusion Second, UPI has done real work on financial inclusion at the margin. It has pulled informal transactions into a recorded, traceable digital trail – the very outcome that formalisation and tax-compliance advocates have wanted for years. There have also been attempts to provide credit based on the digital trail created by electronic payments. Every rupee that moves through UPI instead of cash is a rupee the financial institutions can eventually see and use to build a spending profile. Charging the rail directly could undercut the incentive to use it, cutting against long-standing financial inclusion goals. The government does not need to raise revenue from every rupee that moves electronically; it needs those rupees to keep moving electronically, because that is what delivers the inclusion and compliance dividends it has been chasing since 2016.

Ideally, which payment mode to adopt should be an economic decision for participating actors. Factors such as the size of the business, consumer preferences, and relative cost of using alternative payment systems should determine their usage. Deliberate policy intervention and the current government's war on cash tilted the scales in favour of UPI. Taxing it now – however nominal or small – could change its usage patterns, and policymakers should not be surprised if one outcome is reduced UPI usage.

The proposal is being dressed up as a modest, targeted measure affecting only large-value transactions. But modest measures on payment rails have a way of expanding once the legal architecture exists. Section 10A, once amended, does not expire when this particular MDR proposal is shelved. The better outcome is for the government to leave the payments system alone, let UPI's network effects keep compounding, and find its revenue elsewhere. (Parag Wanknis, Professor & Head, Economics Department, SRM University AP)

THE GIST

▼ The proposed framework could allow payment charges to expand beyond the current MDR plan, creating a broader revenue lever once the legal architecture is in place. ▼ UPI's network effects depend on keeping digital payments cheaper and more convenient than cash, making any new cost a potential distortion in how businesses and consumers choose payment modes.

Why does handloom remain a key part of India's economy?

The sector supports millions of livelihoods, but declining returns and fragmented markets threaten its future

Priyambada Jayakumar

The story so far: From the Swadeshi Movement's boycott of British textiles to Mahatma Gandhi's adoption of the spinning wheel as a symbol of self-reliance, weaving became an instrument of economic resistance and national identity. National Handloom Day, marked on August 7, commemorates the launch of the Swadeshi Movement in 1905 and honours generations of Indian weavers.

A legacy beyond craft Today's handloom sector is often viewed as a small artisanal activity – important culturally but peripheral economically. Long before the Industrial Revolution transformed manufacturing in Europe, India's handlooms were among the world's greatest industrial enterprises. Indian textiles travelled across continents, powered global trade and established India's reputation as one of history's foremost manufacturing economies.

Handloom was the backbone of India's manufacturing strength and one of the foundations of its global influence. The sector remains far more significant than it is generally acknowledged. It provides livelihoods to more than 35 lakh weavers and allied workers across over 31 lakh households, with women constituting nearly 70% of the workforce. It remains one of rural India's largest sources of non-farm employment while producing nearly 15% of the country's cloth despite relying largely on manual technology. Few manufacturing sectors create as many jobs with such modest capital investment. While celebrated traditions continue to enjoy strong recognition, hundreds of lesser-known weaving traditions face gradual extinction. Younger generations are leaving the profession as returns diminish, markets remain fragmented and traditional skills are no longer transferred within families. Every disappearing weave represents not merely the loss of a product but the disappearance of centuries of accumulated knowledge, distinctive design vocabulary, and cultural identity. Therefore, protecting handloom heritage is not only an economic necessity but also our civilisational duty. The government's recent policy and programme support seems to be making a difference. The National Handloom Development Programme has focused on skill development, design innovation, technology adoption, branding, and improved market access. Greater integration with e-commerce platforms and expanding export opportunities have enabled many artisan clusters to reach consumers who were previously inaccessible. Several success stories illustrate what targeted intervention can achieve. The revival of Tangaliya weaving in Gujarat, the transformation of Badturang village in Odisha's Sambalpur district and the growing popularity of Siddipet Gollabham sarees demonstrate that traditional crafts can thrive when design, market access and institutional support converge. It was more than just a fashion statement when Brad Pitt wore a handcrafted shirt in the traditional Tangaliya weave in the F1 film. The Office of the Development Commissioner for Handlooms, in collaboration with UNESCO, has initiated the identification and documentation of India's languishing and endangered weaves. This should be extended to every nook and corner of the country. This aligns with Textiles Secretary Neelam Shami Rao's focus on promoting India's rich, Geographical Indication (GI)-tagged handloom and handicraft products and strengthening their presence in domestic and international markets.

Making handloom aspirational The next phase of policy must shift from preservation to aspiration. For younger consumers, especially Gen Z, handloom must become contemporary, fashionable, and aspirational rather than merely traditional. Celebrity ambassadors, collaborations with leading designers, limited-edition collections, digital storytelling, and partnerships with influencers can reposition India's weaves as premium lifestyle products. The objective should not be to celebrate handloom because it is old, but because it represents craftsmanship, sustainability, and exclusivity. Limited production should become a premium feature. India must also think beyond domestic markets. The world increasingly values authenticity, sustainability, and handcrafted luxury – all areas where Indian handlooms enjoy a natural competitive advantage. Expanding exports, however, will require consistent quality standards, stronger branding, better GI protection, and vigilant action against cultural misappropriation.

Measuring the contribution India should leverage its traditional weaves, which for some global markets are ancient imports, to build its soft power. Unlike most manufacturing sectors, India's handloom economy is inadequately measured. Policymakers need reliable data on its contribution to GDP, exports, tax revenues, employment and household incomes. Better measurement will enable better policy and allow the sector to be recognised for the economic value it already creates. Similarly, establishing a national platform through which States, producer organisations and cooperatives can exchange successful practices would accelerate innovation across the sector. Handloom is not a relic of India's past; it is a strategic asset for its future. Few sectors simultaneously generate rural employment, empower women, preserve cultural heritage, promote sustainability, and strengthen India's global brand. As the country pursues the vision of Viksit Bharat, handloom deserves to be viewed as a serious economic sector. The measure of success will be how many looms remain active, profitable, and capable of attracting the next generation of weavers. Tribunals Reforms Bill passed amid din in LS

Bill to set up a panel to oversee appointments to various national tribunals was cleared without a debate; Law Minister says it will bring uniformity to selection process and improve transparency

The Hindu Bureau
NEW DELHI

The Lok Sabha on Monday passed a Bill to establish a National Tribunals Commission to oversee the appointment of chairpersons and members of various tribunals, without a debate amid persistent Opposition protests demanding the presence of Union Home Minister Amit Shah.

The Opposition has been demanding that Mr. Shah make a statement on the police crackdown on students during the July 20 protest in New Delhi against paper leaks.

The Tribunals Reforms Bill, 2026, introduced by Union Law Minister Arjun Ram Meghwal, was passed by voice vote after Opposition members, who had given notices opposing its introduction, chose not to speak amid the din.

Once passed by both Houses, the new law will repeal the Tribunals Reforms Act, 2021.

The proposed commission, to be headquartered in New Delhi, will comprise a chairperson and four members – two judicial and two technical members. A retired Supreme Court judge or a retired Chief Justice of a High Court will be eligible to head the commission.

Speaking on the Bill, Mr. Meghwal said it sought to bring uniformity to the process of selection and

The court had struck down provisions of the Tribunals Reforms Act, 2021, holding that some of them were contrary to the principles of separation of powers and judicial independence and inconsistent with earlier judgments laying down standards for the appointment, tenure and functioning of tribunal members.

SC's direction

The court had also directed the establishment of an independent National Tribunals Commission with professional expertise, transparent selection procedures and an oversight mechanism for appointments.

The proposed legislation provides for the qualifications, selection and appointment of tribunal chairpersons and members, besides prescribing their salaries, allowances, tenure, resignation, removal and other service conditions.

Rajya Sabha clears two Bills; Minister says consumers will not pay UPI charges

The Hindu Bureau
NEW DELHI

Amid the Opposition walkout, the Rajya Sabha passed the Bankers' Books Evidence Bill and returned the Taxation and Other Laws (Amendment) Bill on Monday.

Countering the Opposition's charge that the Taxation Bill proposed further burden on small traders and consumers by imposing a tax on Unified Payments Interface (UPI) transactions, Union Finance Minister Nirmala Sitharaman said they would remain free for consumers.

She added that once the Bill was passed, the National Payments Corporation of India could finalise the Merchant Discount Rate (MDR), which would be applied to certain categories of merchant transactions. The Upper House had witnessed disruptions and adjournments in the morning too.

CPI(M) member John Brittas moved a statutory motion to disapprove an ordinance brought by the Finance Ministry in June. The statutory motion and the Bill were discussed together. He accused the government of being subservient to the United States and said the charges of UPI transactions were based on the U.S. diktats. "The Prime Minister promised that UPI will be free for everyone," he reminded the government.

During the debate, AAP member Sanjay Singh said the new Bill would create problems for the public as digital transactions had become a part of trade and commerce.

Countering all these arguments, Ms. Sitharaman said UPI had remained free for consumers since its launch, and every Indian would continue to make instant digital payments without paying a transaction charge. "Will consumers pay any UPI charge? No, consumers will not have to pay any charges on UPI transactions," she said. Adding that vast majority of merchant transactions, including low-value transactions to roadside vendors, would continue to remain free.

When Mr. Brittas walked out soon after his reply, Ms. Sitharaman said Communists in this country were total cowards and they could not face facts, but "they will go on filibustering, making noise."

Earlier, the Rajya Sabha proceedings were interrupted twice in the morning session with continued protests from the Opposition demanding a statement from Union Home Minister Amit Shah on the police action on July 20 on protesters in Delhi.

Bihar students subjected to brutality by police: Cong.

The Hindu Bureau
NEW DELHI

The Congress on Monday alleged that the Bihar Police had subjected students protesting in solidarity with the agitation at Jantar Mantar to "extreme brutality", including the use of AK-47s, and questioned the role of Chief Minister Samrat Choudhary and Union Minister Amit Shah.

The allegations were made at a press conference after fact-finding teams of the Congress submitted reports on police action against students in different parts of Bihar to the party leadership.

Congress in-charge of Bihar Krishna Allavaru alleged that the police had conducted midnight raids, arrested students and unleashed a "reign of terror" in an attempt to break their morale. In Siwan, AK-47s were used against protesting youth, injuring three students, he claimed.

Mr. Allavaru questioned the use of such weapons against civilians, saying they were meant to be used against terrorists.

NCP(SP) MPs meet Modi, discuss 'issues related to Maharashtra'

The Hindu Bureau
NEW DELHI

The meeting between Prime Minister Narendra Modi and MPs of the Nationalist Congress Party (Sharadchandra Pawar) on Monday triggered fresh speculation about a possible shift in the party's position on delimitation.

The party's working president, Supriya Sule, however, claimed the delegation had discussed issues concerning Maharashtra.

All eight NCP(SP) Lok Sabha MPs, led by Ms. Sule, met Mr. Modi at the Prime Minister's Office.

The meeting came amid uncertainty over the proposed delimitation exercise, and speculation that the NCP may change its position and support the Bill.

Party spokesperson Mahesh Tapase sought to dispel speculation that the meet had any political significance, or was linked to delimitation. The delegation had raised constituency-specific issues, including drought, onion prices, and pollution in the Chandrabhaga river, he said.

The party's position on delimitation would be decided only after the government introduced a Bill in Parliament, he said. "There is no proposal or discussion on delimitation in Parliament today. First, the Bill should come," he said, adding that the issue would then be discussed within the INDIA bloc.

Congress slams new rural jobs law amid fall in employment generation

The Hindu Bureau
NEW DELHI

The Congress on Monday criticised the Centre over a sharp decline in employment generation under the Viksit Bharat Guarantee for Rozgar and Ajeevika Mission (Gramin), which replaced the United Progressive Alliance (UPA)-era Mahatma Gandhi National Rural Employment Guarantee Act (MGNREGA), and said the new law should be renamed "rozgar chori" (employment theft).

Data from the Union Rural Development Ministry show that the number of person-days generated under the scheme during its first implementing month of July 2026 was 49.94% lower than the number generated under the MGNREGA in the corresponding month of the previous year.

A person-day is a unit that measures the amount of work done by one person in a working day.

Congress president Mallikarjun Kharge, in a post on social media platform X, said the Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP) had wielded the "lathi" not only against the youth but also against the country's labourers.

"Under the Modi government, the MGNREGA was scrapped, stripping millions of families of their 'right to work', and in its place, VB-G RAM G was imposed, which wiped out the employment of 50% of labourers. Has the Central government taken any steps regarding the funding pattern of VB-G RAM G, on which BJP-ruled States had demanded a review? When the country's poor labourers are suffering the most, the Modi government is snatching away their minimum economic and social security and mocking them," he said.

Congress general secretary (communications) and former Rural Development Minister Jairam Ramesh said the data from the first month of implementation of VB-G RAM G exposed "the cost of destroying the MGNREGA". He argued that the MGNREGA had empowered gram panchayats and freed workers from dependence on "the political whims of the government of the day".

"The Modi government has instead centralised the scheme, imposed a heavy financial burden on State governments, made access increasingly dependent on technology and biometric authentication, removed the guarantee of employment, and made it harder for workers to claim their rights. The VB-G RAM G is simply 'rozgar chori'," Mr. Ramesh said.

Rahul is changing goalposts and disrupting functioning of Parliament, says Nadda

The Hindu Bureau
NEW DELHI

The Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP) on Monday accused the Leader of the Opposition in the Lok Sabha, Rahul Gandhi, and the Congress party of changing goalposts, preventing the House from functioning, and attempting to "create chaos by spreading confusion".

At a press briefing, Union Health Minister J.P. Nadda challenged Mr. Gandhi to debate any issue in the Lok Sabha, saying he would be given a "befitting reply".

"Essentially, their intention is to prevent the House from functioning, and that is why they have been disrupting the proceedings for the past 15 days," Mr. Nadda said, calling the Congress an "irresponsible" Opposition.

"Their objective is not to engage in dialogue but claiming that shots were fired at Jantar Mantar. In reality, no shots were fired there, and no such order was issued," he said.

'Spreading confusion'

"Today, they have shifted the goalposts and are trying to spread confusion. When the Home Minister has said that he is ready to answer every question raised by the Opposition, why are they running away from the discussion," Mr. Nadda said.

The government had never shied away from taking up any issue, Mr. Nadda said. "You wanted to discuss SIR (special intensive revision of electoral rolls). We held the discussion, but you walked out. You demanded a discussion on price rise, but did not even have the courage to remain in the House when it was debated. This is your track record," he said.

India donates five peacocks to Geneva's United Nations Office

India has donated five peacocks, including a rare white-feathered one, to the United Nations Office at Geneva (UNOG), reviving a decades-old tradition. At a special ceremony held on Friday, India's Permanent Representative to the UN in Geneva, Arindam Bagchi, formally handed over the five peacocks to UNOG Director-General Tatiana Valovaya. "The Indian Peacock, a symbol of grace, beauty and resilience, represents India's enduring commitment to the conservation of biodiversity and environmental stewardship," the Indian mission said. The five young peacocks comprise four blue peafowl and one white-feathered male.

Bangladesh urges India to expedite Hasina's extradition

Indian High Commissioner Trivedi calls on Bangladesh PM Rahman; 'somewhat reassured' after the meeting, says Minister; exchanged views on 'matters of mutual interest', says Indian mission

Kallol Bhattacharjee
NEW DELHI

Bangladesh has urged India to "expedite" the extradition of former Prime Minister Sheikh Hasina, who took shelter in India after being deposed in 2024. The matter featured in a discussion when Indian High Commissioner to Bangladesh Dinesh Trivedi called on Bangladesh Prime Minister Tarique Rahman on Monday.

The meeting took place amid tension in bilateral relations following Ms. Hasina's virtual press conference on August 5, in which she had criticised Mr. Tarique Rahman's government.

Following the meeting in Dhaka, Bangladesh Foreign Minister Khalilur Rahman said that he felt "somewhat reassured" by the conversation that took place between Mr. Tarique Rahman and Mr. Trivedi.

"Bangladesh hopes that India will expedite the process of extraditing Sheikh Hasina," said Shahadat Shadhin, the Prime Minister's Deputy Press Secretary. The meeting took place at the Bangladesh Prime Minister's Office in the Secretariat in Dhaka, Mr. Shadhin said, and added, "Prime Minister emphasised on the need to create a conducive environment to further advance India-Bangladesh bilateral relations."

Positive development Mr. Khalilur Rahman and Foreign Affairs Adviser Humayun Kobir were present during the meeting.

"The Prime Minister at the same time reiterated the request to extradite the suspected killers who are connected to the assassination of Shaheed Osman Hadi," said Mr. Shadhin, referring to reports that the individuals connected to the December 2025 killing of Hadi had fled to India.

The Indian High Commission in Bangladesh said the two sides "exchanged views on matters of mutual interest" to strengthen relation with a "people-centric approach".

Following the meeting, Mr. Khalilur Rahman said, "On August 5, Ms. Hasina undermined the Justice Department of Bangladesh, which is a pillar of our nation. The Government of India had allowed her to do that. We want all states in the world to respect our state institutions. We hope the Government of India will understand that matter."

"After talking to them, I am somewhat reassured that such incidents will not be repeated," said Mr. Khalilur Rahman while speaking to the presspersons after the meeting. He further said that Mr. Tarique Rahman has two invites from India, one for the BRICS summit in September and another for a bilateral visit.

Diplomatic sources here have interpreted the meeting as a positive development as it came at a time when Dhaka is also hosting a high-level security-related delegation from India.

Hasina's conference

The Bangladesh government had said that it was "outraged" by the remarks made by Ms. Hasina in the press conference held in New Delhi's Foreign Correspondent Club. Mr. Kobir had met Mr. Trivedi before the conference saying that Ms. Hasina's political activities from India could "harm" positive movements in bilateral ties.

SC proposes special courts for violence cases in Manipur

The Hindu Bureau
NEW DELHI

CBI's status report revealed that out of 904 witnesses in the CBI cases, 891 were yet to be examined

The Supreme Court on Monday proposed special courts to exclusively hear Manipur ethnic violence cases investigated by the Central Bureau of Investigation (CBI) and the National Investigation Agency (NIA).

A Bench headed by Chief Justice of India Surya Kant made a request to the Chief Justice of the Gauhati High Court to constitute special courts, separately to hear CBI and NIA cases linked to the 2023 Manipur violence on a day-to-day basis. The court sought a status report on this aspect by the next date of hearing.

Additional Solicitor-General Aishwarya Bhati submitted from the latest status report that out of the 31 cases investigated by the CBI, final reports were filed in 27, including 22 chargesheets and five closure reports. Four cases remain under investigation.

Ms. Bhati said cognisance was already taken in 20 of the 22 chargesheeted cases. The law officer said only one of the 22 cases was triable by a Magistrate, while the remaining involved serious offences to be tried by a Sessions court. Ms. Bhati said the NIA had investigated a total 30 cases, of which chargesheets were filed in 15 while the remaining 15 were still under investigation.

Earlier hearings had seen the top court insist on status reports on the investigation detailing evidence to "bring home the guilt" of persons accused of various heinous offences, including the sexual assault and gang rape of women during the sectarian violence that rocked the northeastern State.

The CBI's status report had revealed that out of 904 witnesses in the CBI cases, 891 were yet to be examined. "Having regard to the total number of witnesses proposed to be examined, we request the Chief Justice of the Gauhati High Court to consider the feasibility of allowing the CBI/NIA court to exclusively deal with Manipur-related cases. Other cases be transferred to some other court," the top court said.

9 of family killed as van swept away in flooded drain in M.P.

The Hindu Bureau
BHOPAL

Nine members of a family, three of them children, were killed on Monday after the van they were travelling in was swept away while crossing a swollen drain in Rajgarh district of Madhya Pradesh amid flood-like conditions caused by heavy rain.

Of the 11 people in the van, only two, including the driver, were rescued, Sarangpur Sub-Divisional Officer of Police Arvind Singh said.

The victims, hailing from Satwas in Dewas district, were travelling to a shrine in Kadlawad when the incident took place around 9 a.m. at a small bridge over the drain in Padana village.

The driver of the van reportedly ignored warnings from people about water flowing over the bridge and attempted to cross it, an official said.

"When we were in [the middle of] rescue efforts elsewhere in the morning, we received information from Padana about the van. The rescue teams reached the spot soon and all nine bodies were recovered by afternoon. The van was pulled out using a crane," Mr. Singh said, adding that teams from the State Disaster Emergency Response Force and the Home Guard were also in-

involved in the efforts.

Financial aid of ₹4 lakh to the next of kin of each of the deceased has been announced by the administration.

The police are conducting a preliminary investigation, and legal action will be taken against the driver if negligence is found on his part.

Post-mortem examinations have been conducted on the rescued bodies, Mr. Singh said.

The National Song, Vande Mataram, will be sung from the ramparts of the Red Fort for the first time as Prime Minister Narendra Modi arrives for the 80th Independence Day celebrations on August 15, while young students and members of Gen Z will get greater representation at the ceremony, with student achievers to be seated on the ramparts.

Youth in focus his customary address to the nation. The celebrations will have a pronounced focus on "Yuva Shakti", with the contribution of young Indians to the government's vision of a "Viksit Bharat by 2047" being highlighted.

As part of the commemoration of Vande Mataram, 2,500 National Cadet Corps cadets and MY Bharat volunteers will form the words "Vande Mataram" on Gyanpath opposite the Red Fort ramparts. An Indian Air Force Mi-17 helicopter will fly over the venue carrying a banner marking 150 years of the National Song and shower flower petals over the gathering, he added.

He said the youth-centric theme will also be reflected in the participation of 19 Indian medal winners from the International Physics, Chemistry, Biology and Mathematical Olympiads 2026. They will be seated on the ramparts during the ceremony.

Pan-India guests

Nearly 5,000 special guests have been invited, including young innovators, entrepreneurs, start-up founders, skilled workers, farmers, artisans, sanitation workers and beneficiaries of various government schemes. More than 1,500 Delhi-based guests from different States and Union Territories, dressed in traditional attire, will showcase the country's cultural diversity. Around 600 winners of quizzes and competitions organised by the Defence Ministry in collaboration with MyGov will also attend the celebrations.

For visitors, 25 cloak rooms at six locations and 20 wheelchairs have been arranged. Metro services will begin at 4 a.m. on August 15, with free travel for invitees.

Under-recovery on domestic LPG narrows to ₹188/cylinder

State-owned oil-marketing companies narrowed their under-recoveries on domestic liquified petroleum gas in August to about ₹188 per cylinder, Minister of State for Petroleum and Natural Gas Suresh Gopi told the Lok Sabha. Mr. Gopi said despite compensating for subsidies in FY23, FY26 and FY27, accumulated OMC losses rose to ₹59,000 crore as on July 31 this year. While under-recovery was ₹500 per cylinder in July, it was over ₹700 per cylinder in June.

‘Geopolitics driving valuation discipline for IPOs in H12026’

Ashokamithran T.
MUMBAI

Valuations of companies planning to get listed on the stock markets have moderated to more ‘disciplined’ levels, following increased market volatility driven by geopolitical uncertainties.

“Investors are rewarding firms with strong fundamentals. Clear earnings visibility and reasonable valuations continue to receive strong demand, while aggressively priced initial public offerings (IPOs) are seeing a more cautious response,” said Sumeet Lath, associate director and co-head - ECM execution at Anand Rathii Advisors Ltd.

Current pricing may mark the start of the next IPO cycle.

This was not the case last year when several issuers sought to maximise valuations by pricing IPOs at the upper end of listed peer multiples, he added.

Companies that seek listing have adjusted to this reality. Many of the entities, which may have planned to list in the beginning of the calendar year, deferred plans as geopolitical tensions turned stock markets volatile and listing outcomes uncertain.

“This is working well for investors. IPOs with market capitalisation of between ₹8000 crore to ₹40,000 crore are sweet spots for investments as these falls under multiple investment mandates” said Bharat Lahoti, president and co-head, factor investing, Edelweiss MF.

Race against time

There is also a race against time to complete the listing as favourable issuance windows are becoming fewer and less predictable, especially with the expiry of the listing application looming, according to Mr. Lath. “As of June, 176 firms had valid Securities and Exchange Board of India (SEBI) approvals with 74 more awaiting approval.”

An IPO is usually a 3-4 year journey with SEBI nod as the last milestone.

Many firms hence choose to proceed despite lower-than-desired valuations or reduced issue size than wait for ideal market conditions and risk letting nod lapse, said Pranav Haldea, MD, PRIME Database.

A slower IPO market has led to the start of the next cycle. This transition period of pricing discipline is the start of the next IPO boom, Mr. Lahoti said.

AAI got request for waiver of airport-airline cross ownership restriction: Govt.

Jagriti Chandra
NEW DELHI

The Airports Authority of India (AAI) received a request seeking a waiver from provisions that bar cross-ownership of airports and airlines, the government told Parliament amid reports the Adani Group sought relaxations as it explored entering the airline business.

“Request seeking waiver of the relevant agreement provision has been received by Airports Authority of India,” Minister of State for Civil Aviation Murlidhar Mohol said responding to a question from CPI (M) MP John Brittas in the Rajya Sabha.

Though Adani Enterprises denied the media reports, a prominent business daily subsequently cited a letter from Adani Airports CEO Arun Bansal seeking relaxations from the government.

Mr. Brittas also asked if the Centre had assessed the potential impact of such cross-ownership on competition, conflict of interest, slot allocation, airport charges, ground handling and fair access to airport infrastructure for competing airlines.

“The matter has not yet been examined by the Ministry of Civil Aviation,” Mr. Mohol replied, without naming the entity that sought the waiver.

The concession agreements for Delhi and Mumbai airports cap aggregate airline ownership in the airport operator at 10%, while those for the Noida International Airport (Jewar) and Navi Mumbai airport allow up to 26% ownership in an airline. These provisions can also be applied in the reverse, restricting airport operators from acquiring significant stakes in airlines.

Life insurers’ new business premium rose 20% in July

The Hindu Bureau
HYDERABAD

Life insurers mobilised ₹47,004.84 crore new business premium (NBP) in July or a 20% rise vis a vis July 2025. State-owned LIC led the segment with more than a 23% rise in NBP or first year premium to ₹27,993.61 crore. Private life insurers (26) secured ₹19,011.23 crore, a 16% rise.

Emkay Research said life insurers’ stocks saw corrections over the past few months on regulatory overhang. At current level, valuations inadequately reflect franchise strengths – brand, distribution and scale – of the players.

Russia’s share in India’s oil imports jumps to 48% in June

The U.S. Senate has passed a bill that will see tariffs of up to 100% being levied on top 5 countries importing Russian oil and gas; the Bill now awaits passage in the House of Representatives

T.C.A. Sharad Raghavan
NEW DELHI

War relations

Each time a recent war has spiked oil prices, India has turned to Russia cut down on overall oil imports, its purchases from Russia bucked this trend. That is, India imported 8.7 MMT of Russian oil in June 2026, just 1% lower than in May, and 25% higher than in June of last year.

As a result of this strategy, Russia's share in India's crude oil imports jumped to 48% in terms of quantity and 48.6% in terms of the value. Russia's share has been rising consistently every month since March and the outbreak of the war in West Asia.

According to the U.S. Bill, the tariffs would apply on a country that was among the five largest importers of crude oil or natural gas from Russia during the 12 months preceding the date of the enactment of the Act, and that then continues to import oil or gas from Russia after 30 days of the enactment.

China and India are the top two importers of Russian oil and India's rising dependence on Russian oil shows it cannot quickly cut back on this source at a time when supplies through the Strait of Hormuz are still constrained.

The premium Russia has charged India for its oil has been steadily declining, data shows, from $77.7 per tonne in April 2026 to $10.6 per tonne in June. Russia had been providing India a discount until as recently as February 2026.

Sanctions exposure

The Bill also specifies that tariffs could be imposed on countries that have helped Russia evade sanctions. The Ministry of Petroleum and Natural Gas (MoPNG) told The Hindu that India has specifically taken measures to pre-empt any sanctions exposure.

“It [sanctions exposure] was pre-empted through ship-to-ship transfer operations in international waters via the Red Sea route through Yanbu and Fujairah precisely so that a single choke point, or a single sanctions regime, could not halt India-bound cargo,” MoPNG said in a clarificatory note it had sent The Hindu in late July.

It is unclear as of now whether India's actions would entail helping Russia evade sanctions.

Apart from Russia, the United Arab Emirates (UAE) too saw its share in India's oil imports rise to historic highs. India sourced 17.5% of its oil imports by volume from the UAE in June 2026 and 18% by value, the highest share for both so far.

Taken together, this means that Russia and the UAE together accounted for nearly two-thirds of India's oil imports in June 2026, the highest-ever combined share enjoyed by any two countries. The MoPNG, however, said that such concentration was not a matter of concern given Indian oil marketing companies stand ready to diversify quickly.

“Indian refineries had spent a decade acquiring the logistical flexibility to switch between crude grades and shipping routes the moment disruption struck, which is the definition of a diversification strategy, not its absence,” the note said.

GEC third phase in final stages, up for Cabinet approval

Saptaparno Ghosh
NEW DELHI

The government is in the final planning stages of instituting the third phase of the intra-state Green Energy Corridor (GEC), senior government officials privy to the development told The Hindu, adding that it had been sent to the Union Cabinet for the final approval.

Separately, another official said that the scheme would carry an outlay of more than ₹50,000 crore.

The Hindu also learnt from officials that the focus in the third phase would be on augmenting the intra-state transmission lines further in “renewable-energy rich States” among other things.

“Most of the packages under the second phase have been awarded. It is expected to complete in the next 2 years,” a senior official said, adding, “Now we are mulling another scheme [that is, the third phase], we are seeking to institute a scheme for renewable energy-rich States for developing transmission lines to evacuate renewable energy from one location to another.”

The purpose of GECs is to transmit electricity produced from renewable sources, as solar and wind, from areas rich in the sources to distant places by synchronising them with conventional power stations in the grid.

In a submission to the parliamentary standing committee on Energy on

Focus would be on augmenting intra-state transmission lines in renewable-energy rich States

August 6, the Ministry for New and Renewable Energy had stated that it aimed to “evacuate about 135 gigawatts of renewable energy in the third phase.”

In the same report, the committee had flagged concerns that had led to delays in completion of Phase-I and Phase-II of the GEC. These relate to “right of ways (RoW), delay in award, forest clearances and Great Indian Bustard (GIB)-related clearances” in the first phase.

It added that “non-participation of States during tendering process, consultation of tender and regulatory issues, etc,” were among the issues observed in the second phase.

The committee had also observed that seven out of eight States, that is, excluding Gujarat, had completed their work under the first phase, with States part of the second phase having sought an extension with the ministry “actively monitoring the completion through dedicated review mechanisms”.

I would like to set my own benchmark

A little over a year into senior badminton, Ayush has learnt to live with the pace, pressure and expectations that come with playing the world's best. Now, on home soil, he gets his biggest test yet against World No. 1 Shi

GETTY IMAGES

INTERVIEW

Ayush Shetty

Anirudh Velamuri

He used to let his badminton do the talking. Laid-back by nature, Ayush Shetty rarely showed too much emotion on court. These days, there is more fire and aggression, something he says gives him energy.

He will need every bit of it at the World championships in New Delhi, which gets underway at the Indira Gandhi Indoor Stadium on August 17 (Monday). Ayush, on tournament debut, will face Shi Yu Qi, the World No. 1, with the weight of a home crowd and the expectations that come with being India's next big hope in men's singles.

But the 21-year-old isn't walking into the Worlds burdened by what came before him. He is walking in believing he has finally learnt to match the pace of the best. Now he wants to test that belief on the biggest stage. Excerpts from an online interaction:

It has been a little more than a year on the senior circuit now. How has it been so far?

When I entered the senior circuit, playing against the top-20 players was really a great challenge.

Matching their pace, in particular, was really tough. But I've now adapted to it. I think I can push them and play at their pace. I'm a lot more confident now.

You're going to make your Worlds debut in front of your home crowd in New Delhi.

Yeah, that brings pressure, but there's also excitement playing at home. It's a really special feeling, and I'm really excited about it.

Indian badminton has a rich history at the World championships. When you walk into that arena, you will be carrying expectations that players from many other countries won't have...

I think there are some expectations. I won't say that people aren't thinking that I won't go deep. But, yeah, my first round match will be a great challenge against the World No. 1. I'll be expecting good support, and I'm looking forward to it.

You lost to Shi at the Asian championship earlier this year. How does that play on your mind ahead of your meeting at the Worlds?

There's no revenge or any other kind of emotion in my mind. It's a new tournament, and I'm not really thinking about that defeat. I'll definitely be analysing that match and I'll be more prepared, I feel. I'll be tactically better this time as I remember Shi outplayed me in that clash.

When you say better prepared to face Shi, what exactly do you mean?

I've lost to him thrice, and I've had some good learnings from those matches. In terms of the tactical aspects of the game, I think the Asian championships match was much better. We've been working really hard on those things right now and I feel a lot stronger. It'll again be a tough match, but I think it'll definitely be a different one this time.

Alwi Farhan and you have a long history, and you could potentially run into him in the round of 16. What makes him a difficult opponent?

Alwi plays at a really high pace. The variations he has from the backcourt are really amazing. He has one of the best drops in men's singles right now. That makes it really tough playing him. And he's also a bit cheeky on the court; he doesn't give his opponent a lot of space. Off the court, he's a good friend of mine. No doubt, it's not really nice when I'm playing against him.

You did defeat Alwi at the China Open...

That was more of a tactical contest. There was a lot of drift playing its part, too. My coach (Sagar Chopda) and I had a solid strategy, and it was executed really well. That's how we were on the winning side that day. I think it was really amazing. I lost to him twice before, but this was a good match for me.

After the first round, you might run into someone from Sri Lanka or Peru, whose playing styles would be very different. Is that on your mind going into the event?

I think we should always go match by match. Right now the main focus is on the first round, and it'll be a really good battle against Shi. I'm not thinking about who is coming later on.

Even though you're still very young, you have a lot of experience winning medals at big tournaments. Does that give you the confidence going into this competition, or do you see this as a very different and much bigger challenge?

That does give great confidence. I've done well at the Asian championships and Thomas Cup. But I definitely think that the World championships would rank bigger than all those events.

What are some of the things that you've been working on of late?

We've been preparing really well for the World championships. We're working on all aspects of the game, including the physical and tactical parts. We're working on being more accurate in shot-making.

There have been some changes to your training pattern. Do you think they will enhance your game in this tournament?

Yeah, definitely. The focus has been on peaking for these tournaments, and I think the preparations are going really well. I would definitely be at my best while playing at the Worlds.

How has it been working with Irwansyah Adi Pratama?

The training has been a lot tougher. We have been training really long as well and he's been focusing more on speed. I've been trying to get much more faster, much more agile, and play aggressively. Outside the court, he's a very good guy. I can share anything with him and he will guide me in the right direction. That way, he's been really open.

What are the things you expect from him during a tournament?

On match-day, it's more about the contest. We analyse the match, he has his inputs and we prepare accordingly. It's nothing too in-depth, we don't talk a lot about the match but we just focus on the specifics.

How has it been training and sparring with Sindhu?

We have a similar type of game. She is also tall and attacking. There's a lot to learn from her.

You've also slowly become more expressive on the court. Is that something you've worked on?

Yeah, I think it helps me get more energy. I've been consciously focusing on it. My natural style would be a bit more laid-back, not express much, but I've been trying to be more aggressive on the court now.

There's been a lot of praise for you from the likes of Sindhu and Viktor Axelsen, among others, in the past. As an upcoming player, how do you receive what's being said of you all around?

It's a great honour to be praised by big legends. But also, when you're having early exits, it's the opposite. I focus more on myself, on getting better every day and believing in the process. I am enjoying playing badminton, and that's been my motto all along.

When you look at the Indian men's singles players who have already created a legacy at the World championships, do you see that history as a benchmark to chase?

I don't see it as a benchmark to chase. I would like to set my own benchmark. I'm not focusing on what the legends of the game have done. I've been focusing more on myself, to keep playing better and winning matches.

Do you feel the weight of representing the next generation of Indian badminton?

I would not like to focus or think about setting a benchmark for the next generation. Since we'll be playing at home, there is definitely some pressure. But I also see it as a great opportunity for me to debut at a special tournament like the World championships in India.

Badminton is inching closer to the new 3x15 scoring system...

It will change the game a lot. I would prefer it to be 21 (points), but everyone will have to adapt. It is a new challenge for all players. It'll be a much faster and more explosive game. There won't be that many gruelling battles.

If a 10-year-old kid from a small town near Mangaluru is going to watch you at the Worlds this year, what do you want that kid to learn and take away?

I think it would be about how everyone comes to the stadium and supports the players. It would be amazing for any player to play with the crowd behind them, cheering for every point. I think that would inspire everyone, and that would mean a lot.
